INSPECTION IS POSTPONED

Examining Officer is Sent to Inspect the Nebraska Guard.

SIGNAL CORPS WILL BE CALLED, HOWEVER

Drill Slated for Tuesday Night and Preparations Goin On.

Federal inspection of Company B, Indiana Signal Corps, which was to have been held Monday night, has been postponed indefinitely and may not be held at all, according to late communications received by officers here. Whether or not the company is inspected it will be called into service August 5, when the national guard of the state is drafted into federal service. Maj. James V. Heidt, who was to make the inspection, has been sent to Nebraska to inspect the entire guard of that state. For that reason it was necessary to postpone the inspection of the new Indiana companies on his itinerary.

A communication from Maj. F. H. Hill, commander of the First battalion, Indiana Signal Corps, which is made up of the local company together with Company A, of Indianapolis, bears the statement that the battalion is in high standing with the central war department, Chicago, and that signal officers are very anxious that it be accepted.

In the meantime preparations for the departure of the local company are being pushed rapidly and will be completed by the time for the call. The postponement of the inspection was followed by a postponement of Sunday drill, but the regular weekly work of the company will be carried on Tuesday evening.

A "canteen" has been opened in the company headquarters, third floor of the Old National bank building, and are members of the company, are purchasing their smoking materials and other incidentals carried in stock. By this means the profits derived go into the company fund, which is expected to be a source of comfort to the members in the field.

CATHOLICS CAMPAIGN FOR WAR CAMP FUND

Many Are Pledged to Help in Drive for Million Dollars.

At a meeting in Knights of Columbus hall Friday night, nearly two hundred Catholics pledged themselves to work next week to do this city's share in the campaign to raise one million dollars, this fund to be used for the care and comfort of Catholic soldiers in the war camps.

Maurice Niezer, who made the principal talk at the meeting, pointed out that from 25 to 30 per cent. of the soldiers would be Catholics, and the object of the campaign was to furnish recreation and divine services to these men. Others who talked were Rev. Edward Dillon, Charles M. Niezer, Dr. E. J. McCosker and Harry Hogan.

The campaign will start Sunday, and announcement will be made in every parish in the city. Teams will be organized to solicit subscriptions.

RANSACKED HOUSE.

Henry Korn, 127 West Woodland avenue, reported to the police that somebody had entered his home Friday night and had ransacked the building. Several of the rooms in the house were found to be in a wild state of disorder when the family arrived at the residence late in the evening. No valuables are missing.

CAN'T TAKE COPS.

Oscar Lenz, patrolman, and Will Brown, motorcycle policeman, were among the first whose names were drawn for conscription. They expect to be exempted because of their present duties.

FIRST PHOTO OF PERSHING'S MAIN ARMY LANDING IN FRANCE

This is the first photograph of the actual disembarkation of General Pershing's main army in France. It has been passed by the censor. On the transport here shown, and many others like it, the American soldiers were carried to Europe. The soldiers shown in the foreground have just stepped from the ship. Others still a board are eagerly waiting opportunity to get down the gangplank. Below is shown Maj. Gen. Sibert, Pershing's right-hand man on the job, conferring with staff officers.

OBJECTS TO HAVING HER EYES BLACKENED

Sadie Stull Says Charles Also Threatened to Take Her Life.

Sadie Stull has begun suit for divorce against Charles Stull, her husband, and sets forth in the complaint that she objects to having her eyes blackened when Charles gets mad.

The plaintiff also alleges that the defendant threatened to take her life and that she fears he will carry out his threat because he is accustomed to taking heavily of intoxicating liquors. She asks the court to restrain him from molesting her.

In addition to these complaints she also states that Charles has called her names which are too vile and indecent in their nature to set forth in print. She states they were married February 11, 1912, and separated June 12, 1917. She asks for twenty-five dollars support money per week.

Supreme Order of Ben Hurs Pay Death Claim Over Which Suit Was Begun.

Through the district deputy, M. J. Clear, the supreme lodge of Ben Hurs have paid to the clerk of Allen county a death claim of $1,500 over which suit was begun several weeks ago. Bessie Zurbuch begun action against the lodge enjoining them from paying Mrs. Hosford the beneficiary of the insurance policy the amount of the policy. It was also stated at that time that the lodge had refused to make payment, but Mr. Clear states that at that time the death proof had not been filed.

COUNTY AGENT TO ASSIST.

A. J. Hutchins Will Help Government in Securing Farm Labor.

County Agent A. J. Hutchins Friday received posters and instructions from Washington, D. C., which ask him to act as a sort of clearing house for the government in securing labor on the farms throughout the country. The idea is to equalize the help in the harvest fields throughout the country. If one district is oversupplied while another is wanting it will be equalized.

Money to German Nieces.

The last will and testament of Sophie Seacrist, deceased, which was filed in circuit court Friday, provides that the estate, valued at $12,000, be left to her two nieces who reside in Baden, Germany. Settlement of the estate cannot be made until the war is over.

WILL BE TRIED FOR FAILING TO REGISTER

William Burke, a nomad, who gives his home as Toledo, will be sent before the federal court in Toledo for trial upon a charge of failing to register for conscription. He was arrested several days ago by police on a loitering charge. He failed to show, in police court, that he had registered.

United States Commissioner Logan held a questioning session in his office Friday afternoon. He was convinced that Burke has not signed for draft. He bound the man over to the federal court. Burke will be taken to Indianapolis for a brief preliminary hearing and sent from there to Toledo.

William Thompson and Harry Henninger, turned over to the commissioner by police, were able to show that they had registered when brought before the government representative.

WAR STATE EXISTS AGAINST CITY WEEDS

All property owners are given notice that they are drafted into the army of weed exterminators. Drastic declaration of Police Chief Lenz states that all weeds must be laid low before next Tuesday. Affidavits will be made out against neglecting citizens after that time, the chief announces.

In several parts of town, where food gardens do not flourish, the weeds have been allowed to grow riot. While there are not as many weeds this year, because of the garden campaign, yet the plants which do wave were never heartier. They have been encouraged by much rainfall. They have reached the nuisance state. They must be wiped out.

"Get busy with the scythe now," urged Chief Lenz, who is not anxious to prosecute citizens.

GETS PENALTY JUST FOR STORY TELLING

Daniel Huner Begg in Vain for Judge to Wait a Minute.

Just because he told a matrimonial yarn Daniel Huner was fined $25 and costs by Judge H. W. Kerr, in the city court, Saturday morning. Huner was charged with loitering on Friday, but the charge could not be substantiated. When the young man was about to be turned loose the judge asked him: "What did you do with your wife?" "Have no wife," was the short reply. "Where is the woman who was staying with you at the rooming house?" continued the judge.

"There was no woman staying with me," came the stout answer. But the judge had heard different. He continued the case until Saturday. A boarding house keeper told that Huner had signed up at her place with a woman. When confronted by the landlady Huner admitted that he had storied.

"I will have to fine you for perjury," said Judge Kerr and he named a $25 penalty. "Wait a minute," urged Huner. "That is all," said Judge Kerr.

"Well, thank you, judge," concluded Huner.

Will Support.

James Baughman admitted that he has been slack in making payments for keeping of his wife and child. His wife stated he had given her some money but not enough. Baughman agreed to pay $20 a month in the future and the case was dismissed.

Other Police Court Cases.

Mrs. George Raber, 1119 Broadway, has signed an affidavit charging Charles Frymouth, 60, with indecent relations with her 6-year-old son. The woman claims that the man had assaulted the boy. More witnesses will be summoned and Frymouth will be tried on Monday. He is in jail upon failure to furnish $300 bond.

Mary Roe is the name given by the woman charged with assault upon one of her neighbors. More will be known of the case on Tuesday when the interested parties are brought into court for trial.

Joseph Colona, charged with driving his automobile past a street car when passengers were being discharged, was acquitted.

Ruth Porter was given over to juvenile authorities. She is charged with loitering.

Ed L. Morris raised a row at the Wayne hotel Friday evening. He was fined $1 and costs.

Cases of public intoxication were: Homer Converse, fined $5 and costs; Harry Brown, Will McGee, Phillip Brady and George Morrow were each fined $1 and costs. Harry Fernwell will be tried on next Wednesday.

MOTHER IS RELEASED FROM LARCENY CHARGE

Had Taken Hood for Baby Before Clerk Halted Exploit.

The mother of six small children and wife of a farmer living near Fort Wayne was apparently shopping in a downtown apartment store Friday afternoon. The woman carried a hand bag. A clerk thought that he saw a pair of faintly white stockings flit into the top of the bag.

The clerk followed the woman. She went into the basement and wandered aimlessly about. As she carried her hand bag back up the stairs a pair of a stocking dangled loosely from its side.

"If you want to purchase those stockings I will wrap them up," politely stated the clerk.

The woman appeared angered and grew turbulent. The clerk called the police. Patrolman Ernest Paul took the mother to police headquarters. In the hand bag was found a baby's hood, two shirts, two pairs of canvas slippers and a hat. The woman was identified as being a respected farmer's wife and the mother of six children. She was released upon her promise never to shop lift again.

FRIARS PREPARE FOR THEIR ANNUAL PICNIC

Rumor hath it that many members of the Friars club went on a diet Saturday, having good cause for the deed. Sunday the annual picnic of the clubmen will be held and Oscar Cotton has been very busy for several days preparing the "feed." The men will leave the club quarters about 10 o'clock in the morning and go to stop 10 on the Robison park car line.

There the annual picnic stunts will be staged. In the afternoon the annual baseball game between the married members and the single birds will be staged. Many other festivities are planned, but members of the club insist that the "eats" will have the whole bunch eclipsed.

GOVERNMENT OF CHINA BELIEVED MUCH STRONGER

London, July 21.—Conferring the announcement that Feng Koo Chang has accepted the presidency of China, a dispatch to the Times from Peking today says this fact serves to strengthen the hands of Tuan Chi Jui, who has now completed a cabinet of moderate men.

"The victorious entrance of the northern army into Peking," adds the dispatch, "places Tuan Chi Jui temporarily in the position of dictator and gives him an opportunity to establish a firm government."

"It is unlikely that China will declare war now, but when the long deferred step is taken it will arouse much opposition in the south."

This is another lesson in French slang—the daily language of the poilus in the trenches.

The first line gives the English phrase, the second is a literal translation of the French slang expression, the third is the French and the last is the pronunciation in English form.

In the pronunciation key straight lines over the letters A and U indicate long sounds, as in "hâte" and "dûce"; curved lines denote their short sounds as in "hât" and "dûc"; two dots over the U indicate a sound similar to the German "ue," which may be approached by Americans by saying "oo" and "oo" at the same time; the small U above the A indicates the French "au" and must be pronounced.

ALL ABOARD FOR ROBISON PARK FOR THE FIRST AND ONLY TIME THIS YEAR FOR THE MAJORITY OF THE CHILDREN IN THIS GROUP.

In the above photograph are seen the children of the Rescue Mission who enjoyed the annual outing held at Robison park. The picture was taken just before the three special cars of the traction company took them to the pleasure resort. A chicken dinner was served at noon. Rev. J. A. Nipper, superintendent of the mission, wishes in this manner to thank the merchants who together donated all the foodstuffs for the dinner. Many of the children have in this crowd only got to Robison park once a year, and that is when the mission has its annual picnic.

Warring Old Soldiers Fail to Get by With Ruff Stuff

Johnny Nee can't stand having his club defeated or else he's a fistic sort of a dabbler. Anytime in the second inning when the pressure was getting hot, he decided to avenge himself, and going up to Ump's Kuhns he proceeded to push his mitt in that gentleman's kind and open face. The Chiefs quickly forced an alliance with the arbitrator and managed to down the militarism represented by Nee. Johnny played no more baseball yesterday.

In the meantime the Chiefs played ball and proceeded to show the Vets up considerably. They rumbled the Buckeye outfit 9 to 4, and seemed to take great delight in doing it. Two pitchers were used by both clubs, but neither visiting slabsman proved effective.

Higbee was removed from the mound before anything serious happened in the sixth and Bobby Roberts held 'em spell-bound.

Dayton started in hard and took two runs for an opener in the first. Stewart and Derrick were the hitters. In the second half the locals took one. Then came the big frame. Kelly started with a single and Williams bunted. Wells fielded the bunt and heaved the pill an awful distance, allowing Kelly to score and Williams to take third. Vandy walked and Higbee doubled. Breauz sent the manager across and Smith's triple scored Higbee. Smith only managed to hit three times out of five times yesterday, which makes us fear that he is slipping.

In the fourth the Chiefs got another when Vandy singled, Higbee sacrificed, Breauz singled and Siegfried came through with a sacrifice fly. In the fifth Dayton scored one and in the sixth they put another across. At this point Higbee was removed in favor of Roberts and then the Chiefs made three runs.

Roberts and Vandy singled and a long triple by Breauz sent them both across. The little outfielder went across on Siegfried's second sacrifice fly.

Today we have with us the Springfield league leaders, hitting demons, fielding sharks and all around high-class ball players. The Chiefs would like very much to cop the series and have sworn to do the darndest.

A preliminary to the game will be played by the Turner and Penny shop league clubs, this game starting at 1:45 o'clock.

FIRST AMERICAN ATROCITY.

ABOLITION OF THE PIE!

A hint of the first great national war horror comes from the middle west. Kansas, so safely situated between coast and coast, originates the first American atrocity.
Already the men of Kansas send out an S. O. S.—"Help or we perish!"
Kansas may become a pieless state.
Her council of defense recommends that all pie timber be diverted to other uses for the duration of the war.
Now, nobody doubts the patriotism of the native Kansan. So doesn't this look like another of those German pie plots?
Only the Teutonic mind could conceive of a plan which would so completely destroy the peace of America; or could stage such a conspiracy right in the middle of our fair land, doubtless with paid propagandists to spread it all over these free states of the motherland of pie, New England.
Why discuss liberty further? What are the censorship, conscription, or a free press, when the existence of our sacred pie is threatened?
Some say suffragists started the movement to abolish pie. The militants reasoned it, that congress could not be harassed more effectively than by calling the American woman, the world's most famous pie-maker, off the job.
To be sure, man eats too much pie. After one full meal, he insists on eating another in the form of rich crust and sweetened fruit or custard. And perhaps we might avoid a war famine by cutting all desserts from our menus.
But why commit the atrocity of dropping pie out of American history? Better far make pie a substitute for something, say meat or tobacco.
When somebody remonstrated with a noted author, for eating pie at breakfast, he mildly inquired, "What is pie for?"
It has been left for the war to disclose the reason for pie—perhaps it is part of the great German preparedness, planned decades ago, to set this republic by the ears, to disrupt the nation, to swamp our food bill in congress by centering the attention of the common people on the perils of the pie situation.
Again we must look to England's experience. She still feeds her Tommies on jam, "plum or apple." War wisdom. We must never deprive our Sammies of pie, at least as long as they are at home where mother can feed them.
And it is safe to say we never will.
Though all Kansas women go to jail for it, Kansas will never be a pieless state. Men like pie.

EHMKE, BRILLIANT PITCHER FOR SEVEN FRAMES, CAN'T GO THE WHOLE ROUTE

By PAUL PURMAN.
An astute baseball manager once made a pertinent statement.
"Ball games," he declared, "are not played with last year's averages and must be won with what you have on the field the day the game is played."

All of which calls to mind one Howard Ehmke, Detroit pitcher.
Ehmke, in the early days of the spring when prophecy counted more than figures and when last year's figures were all there was to go on, looked like one of the veriest rosebuds of the season, a player who had it in him to win some twenty or twenty-five games and pull the Tigers out of the hole poor pitching had put them in since the palmy days of George Mullin and Wild Bill Donovan.
This Ehmke figured as an iron man, a pitcher with bewildering speed, a wizardly assortment of curves and a change of pace which kept the batters off their balance. Hughie Jennings counted on him to fill the hole in the Detroit outfit which games were sifting through preventing Hughie from floating a pennant over Navin park.

Let us see how Ehmke panned out. The last records show Ehmke has lost eight and won seven games with an earned run average of three per game. But what the records don't show is that Ehmke has lost the great majority of his games in the last two or three innings, indicating that he is a seven-inning pitcher.

Box scores show that Ehmke has allowed but 1.60 runs in the first seven innings of the games he has pitched and has permitted nine runs per nine innings on the basis of his last two innings.

Detroit critics are divided on the cause of Ehmke's failure to do better. His friends are inclined to be easy on him and say his failure to produce is due to overconfidence.

Others, not so kindly inclined, say he is lazy.

Perhaps it is a combination of the two.
Ehmke is not the type who should tire at the end of seven innings. He is tall and slender with the muscle tissue which is built for endurance. He was regarded as sort of an iron man and his poor performance probably are due to a mental rather than a physical condition.

The main trouble with Ehmke may be that he is too young to take himself and baseball seriously. That has caused the downfall of many promising stars.

THINGS THAT NEVER HAPPEN

Cruise and Roush are Tied For American Stick Honors

Cobb's Lead Slightly Shortened Still 30 Points to Good.

Chicago, July 21.—Coming from behind, Walter Cruise, of St. Louis, had batted into a tie with Ed Roush, of Cincinnati, for National league honors, unofficial averages released today showing them hitting .331.

Roush playing in 78 games—five less than his rival—has driven out 99 hits for 124 bases, while Cruise has stretched 98 hits for a total of 131 bases. The St. Louis outfielder made twelve doubles, six triples and three home runs as against eight doubles, six three-base hits and one circuit drive for Roush.

The terrific hitting of six Cincinnati players is keeping the club safely reposing in the first division and in possession of team batting honors. Hal Chase, the veteran first base star with Cincinnati, is a point below the .300 class, and Clarke, one of Christy Mathewson's catchers, is hitting .321, but has only played in 36 games. Hans Wagner, the Pittsburgh veteran, is batting .313 for thirty-five games.

Deal, of Chicago, took the lead in sacrifice hitting with 19, while Burns, of New York, crossed the plate 55 times. Carey, of Pittsburgh, increased his lead in base stealing to 21. Hornsby is in possession of home run honors with eight. The averages include games of Wednesday.

RELIGION, TEMPERANCE AND HEALTH

REPENTANCE AND CONVERSION AS SCRIPTURES COMPILED BY MR. SPANGLE MAKE THEM CLEAR

BY A. SPANGLE.

What is said of the natural heart?
"The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked: who can know it?"

"I the Lord search the heart, I try the reins, even to give every man according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his doings." Jer. xvii:9-10.

Where do the sins that men commit have their origin?
"For out of the heart proceed evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false witness, blasphemies."

"These are the things which defile a man; but to eat with unwashed hands defile not a man." Matt. xv:19-20.

Is it possible for man in his own strength to come to commit sin and do that which is right and good?
Can the Ethiopian change his skin, or the leopard his spots? then may ye also do good, that are accustomed to do evil." Jer. xiii:23.

What change does the Savior say must take place in every one's heart before they can enter the kingdom of heaven?
"And Jesus called a little child unto him, and set him in the midst of them."

"And said, Verily I say unto you, except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven." Matt. xviii:2-3.

What does conversion mean? The word convert means to turn.—Webster.

"Therefore I will judge you O house of Israel, every one according to his ways, saith the Lord God. Repent, and turn yourselves from all your transgressions; so iniquity shall not be your ruin."

"For I have no pleasure in the death of him that dieth, saith the Lord God; wherefore turn yourselves, and live ye." Eze. xviii:30-32.

"But shewed first unto them of Damascus, and at Jerusalem, and throughout all the coasts of Judea, and then to the Gentiles, that they should repent, and turn to God, and do works meet for repentance." Acts xxvi:20.

What does God command all people everywhere to do?
"And the times of this ignorance God winked at; but now commandeth all men everywhere to repent." Acts xviii:30.

What leads to true repentance?
"Now I rejoice not that ye were made sorry; but that ye sorrowed to repentance: for ye were made sorry after a godly manner, that ye might receive damage by us in nothing."

"For Godly sorrow worketh repentance to salvation not to be repented of; but the sorrow of the world worketh death." 2 Cor. vii:9-10.

Of what are we to repent of?—Sin.
"Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord." Acts iii:19.

What is sin?
"Whoever committeth sin transgresseth also the law: for sin is the transgression of the law." 1 John iii:4.

What law? The fourth commandment. The seventh day Sabbath.

"For whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all."

"So speak ye, and so do, as they that shall be judged by the law of liberty." James ii:10-12.

What means does God use to convert, or turn, the soul from sin?
"The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul: the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple." Ps. xlvii:7.

"Nevertheless I tell you the truth: it is expedient for you that I go away: for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you; but if I depart, I will send him unto you."

"And when he is come, he will reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment." John xvi:7-8.

Is it not necessary for us to acknowledge our sins but to God only?
"I acknowledge my sin unto you, and mine iniquity have I not hid. I will confess my transgressions unto the Lord; and thou forgavest the iniquity of my sin. Selah."

"For this shall every one that is godly pray unto thee in a time when thou mayest be found: surely in the floods of great waters they shall not come nigh unto him." Ps. xlviii:5-6.

Does God require sinners to make restoration as far as lies in their power, to those they have wronged?
"If the wicked restore the pledge, give again that he hath robbed, walk in the statutes of life, without committing iniquity; he shall surely live, he shall not die." None of his sins that he hath committed shall be mentioned unto him; he hath done that which is lawful and right; he shall surely live." Eze. xxxiii:15-16.

Is there an example of a conversion of this kind in the time of Christ?
"And Zaccheus stood, and said unto the Lord: Behold Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor; and if I have taken anything from any man, I restore him fourfold." Luke xiv:8.

What did Jesus say to Zaccheus when he had decided to take this course?
"And Jesus said unto him, this day is salvation come to this house; for as much as he also is a son of Abraham."

"For the son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost." Verses 9-10. Has God promised to forgive us if we confess our sins?
"If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." 1 John i:9.

Can we deceive God in reference to our true condition?
"O Lord, thou hast searched me, and known me."

"Thou knowest my downsitting and mine uprising, thou understandest my thought afar off."

"Thou compassest my path and my lying down, and art acquainted with all my ways." "For there is not a word in my tongue, but, lo, O Lord, thou knowest it altogether." Ps. cxxxix:1-4.

"Neither is there any creature that is not manifest in his sight: but all

MY CONSCIENCE

BY JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY.

(Reprinted from the Century Magazine.)

Sometimes my conscience says, says he, "Don't you know me?" And I, says I, skinned through and through, "Of course I do. You air a nice chap ever' way, I'm here to say! You make me cry—you make me pray, And all them good things thataway— That is at night. Where do you stay Durin' the day?"

And then my conscience says, one't more, "You know me—shore?" "Oh yes," says I, a-tremblin' faint, "You're jes' a saint! Your ways is all so holy-right, I love you better ever' night You come around—'tel plum daylight, When you air out o' sight!"

And then my conscience sort of grits His teeth, and spits On his two hands and grabs, of course, Some old remorse, And beats me with the big butt-end O' that thing—'tel my closest friend 'Ud hardly know me. "Now," says he, "Be keerful as you'd orto be And allus think o' me."

Divine Justice and Certainty That Evil Brings a Punishment

(Youth's Companion.)

Robert came home from church in a thoughtful mood. "As far as I can see," he said to his father, as they walked along, "real success in life depends not upon goodness, but upon cleverness. Everywhere I see bad men enjoying long-continued prosperity and health and happiness, and conscientious, earnest men and women suffering from poverty and ill health and loneliness and despair. If there were one Who controlled the universe, and Who cared, could it be so?"

"I think," said his father, "that you expect the Almighty to reward and punish as human fathers do. When you were a little boy, I used to tell you that if you would keep your shoes shined I would give you a book, or a knife, or a pair of skates, or any other suitable reward; and if you were tardy or impertinent, I should whip you, or send you to bed, or keep you from going to the circus, or inflict any other punishment that seemed to me just. The rewards I offered and the punishment I threatened had no inherent relation to the virtue or offense that brought them."

"You mean that they were arbitrary?" asked Robert.

"Exactly," answered his father. "But God's rewards and punishments never reward or punish as naturally result from the thing done. The richest man in the world may be the wickedest. The amount of his wealth depends not on his goodness or his badness, but on his obedience to the laws of the increase of wealth. If the wickedest man on earth most perfectly obeyed the laws of physical health, he would be the healthiest man on earth."

"Isn't that just what I said?" asked Robert. "If a bad man be clever enough he can win his money and go to bed. Goodness doesn't matter."

"Nothing in the universe matters so much," answered his father. "Nothing in the universe is more certain than that evil will be punished. Its punishment is the most awful that the mind of man can conceive. The punishment of evil is the increase of evil in the soul of the offender. The dishonest man, by his dishonesty, becomes capable of greater dishonesty. He becomes dishonest incarnate. At last he fails to know even the meaning of the words honesty and dishonesty. So it is with impurity. The man who has given himself over to impurity, literally becomes impurity; he can not distinguish between the pure and the impure. He doesn't really know what the words mean! So it is with meanness and with every other evil. It would be infinitely less hideous to be beaten or to be burned than it is to be transformed into the likeness of the evil we have committed."

"But in what lies the reward for the suffering good man?" Robert asked.

"His reward never can fail," answered his father. "The reward of being honest and generous and clean is no little insignificant thing such as unthinking men would be glad to have. It, if after a man had tried for years to live up to his best the Almighty should give him a roll of $1,000 bills, he would not doubt His care. But how infinitely greater than that is the sure reward God gives him!"

"What is the reward for being honest under great temptation? It isn't a little thing like being made governor of a state; it's an infinitely bigger thing. It is that the man becomes more honest. The reward of controlling your temper isn't something like a house and lot; it is the reward of having a strong character, perfectly controlled, free of charge, in God's hands."

"If God should say to us that if we tried our hands or put out our eyes, we'd be pretty careful! But God says more than that. He says, and every one of us knows He says, that we will be made governors of the world, and the land of sunshine, and of flowers. We learn to sing in our winter of trial as we dream of Canaan, the Lord's land."

Practical Religion As Great Sculptor Felt It in His Life

(Home and School.)

John Bacon, the noted English sculptor, whose genius was immortalized in prose by Lord Macaulay and in verse by the poet Cowper, was a man of pronounced and practical piety. No matter how much he was occupied with business, how exalted by applause, or how tempted by wealth, religion was always his greatest concern.

One day when Bacon was hard at work in his studio a lady visited him, and in the course of the conversation he happened to make a remark about religion. The lady then said: "My religion is to fear God and to keep the commandments." Then she discussed plainly that she did not care to discuss religion any further; whereupon Bacon said quietly: "Do you not recollect that it is said 'They that fear the Lord speak often one to another?'"

In other words, he believed that if two people with true religious feeling met, they should never be afraid of feeling embarrassed to talk about their religion.

On the day of his death, Bacon desired to bear such testimony that it would be as good as a good influence upon others, and so he dictated the following and requested that it be placed near his grave:

What I was an Artist Seemed to me of some importance While I lived; but What really was a Believer Is the only thing of importance To me now.

THE SOURCE OF ITS BEAUTY.

Once there was a brier growing in a ditch, and there came along a gardener with his spade. As he dug around it, and lifted it out, the brier said to itself, "What is he doing that for? Doesn't he know that I am only an old worthless brier?" But the gardener took it into the garden and planted it amid his flowers, and white roses came, and lovely roses were blooming on that old brier. Then the gardener said, "Your beauty is not due to that which came out, but to that which I put into you." This is just what Christ is doing all the time with poor human lives.—Selected.

THE FIRST SUBMARINE.

The first submarine of which we have any record was invented by God, and the first passenger to travel in it was his disobedient prophet, Jonah. This submarine was created and on hand at the moment of Jonah's great need. God's providence was over him even in his sin, and God would not let him perish until after he had had time for serious reflection. In this submarine Jonah was the only human passenger, and he had no perspective to show him what was going on outside, and to distract his mind. There were days of undisturbed communion with God, while it did not broaden Jonah into a prophet with a world vision, did lead him to decide to obey Jehovah, and through his obedience to save his own life for worthy service for God. This decision being made, Jonah was carried, free of charge, in God's submarine, and landed at a point nearest to Ninevah, where he was able to do the greatest work of his life.—Watchman-Examiner.

YOUR HEALTH AND HOW YOU CAN KEEP IT

A Medical Test Once a Year Avoids Attack of Disease.

Just what the total death toll taken on the battlefields of Europe is has not been completely and authentically compiled as yet.

But it is known that since the war in Europe began one million citizens of the United States have died from preventable, or at least postponsible diseases of the heart, arteries and kidneys, including apoplexy.

The most probable reason for this enormous and increasing loss of adult lives is our rapid and extraordinary change that has been going on in our living conditions during the past two generations.

Before the war there was no marked increase of death rates in Europe, where living conditions had been unchanged for many years and where the high nervous tension so characteristic of America was unknown.

There is also significance in the fact that during the past fifty years the proportion of our population which has changed from a physically active to a physically inactive, or from an outdoor to an indoor life, has enormously increased.

This has been caused by the great gain in our wealth, in time saving and labor saving devices and in cheap transportation. With this has also come a change in the nature and richness of our food.

To avoid the degenerative diseases of middle life temperance in all things should be the universal rule. A life well balanced with work, play, exercise and sleep, with moderation practiced in habits of food and drink will fortify a body against attacks of many kinds.

To check up the results of an orderly life, there should be periodic medical examination. This is a means of learning what preventive measures should be taken to cure disorders in their very beginning.

Nutrition Is Not Valued by the Expense of It.

The most expensive food is not always the most nutritious. In fact the contrary is more often true.

According to systematic investigation, two-thirds of the families of industrial workers are chronically underfed, due more to ignorance than to poverty.

Many people are governed in their buying solely by the appeal to the eye, which is a temporary appeal or to the appetite which is often abnormal.

A general knowledge of food values may be obtained by a little study. Guided by it any woman may feel she is getting the worth of the money she spends for food.

She will realize that fruits and vegetables out of their natural season add more novelty than nutrition to the meals of the day. She will understand the lure of fancy pastry and richly sweetened varieties of bread displayed in the bakery, because she knows their value and that they are more apt to disturb digestion than to promote it.

She will not provide two foods from the same class for the same meal, such as macaroni and corn-starch pudding, meat and eggs, lettuce and celery. She will know how to substitute for a food that is scarce and high one that is cheaper but practically the same in fuel-content, such as rice for potatoes, cornmeal for wheat flour and one of the various table oils in place of olive oil.

Danger of Typhoid Lurks in Sparkling Streams.

Favorite camping grounds are usually those along the attractive-looking brooks.

But too often it is these attractive waters, which we find so soothing to the thirst that are deceptive. They are often clear and sparkling, yet loaded with miserable house drainage, carrying at times the deadly germs of typhoid fever.

This summer the waters may be more dangerous than usual because of the hurried arrangements of military camps, with the want of sanitary planning to protect our springs and streams.

Don't be deceived by the old-fashioned pump, the boiling springs and the clear water rippling over the pebbles in our little mountain streams for frequently they have been poisoned by people who are not yet sufficiently educated to protect the streams thoroughly against pollution.

When camping in strange locations never drink the waters without filtering or boiling. If possible carry pure drinking water with you in bottles or jugs.

SHALLOW WATERS AND DEEP.

I remember walking across the intervening mile between Loch Lomond and Loch Long. Loch Lomond is an inland lake, and when I left it its waters were disquieted and boisterous, lashing the shores with angry waves. Loch Long is an arm of the sea, and its waters were perfectly calm, and I could look through its lucid depths and see the seaweed rooted on the rocks beneath. And the life of the soul, when it is like a small, measurable lake, is easily disquieted, and little disturbances toss it into convulsions. But when the soul knows God, when it recognizes its vast relationships, when it feels the tidal flow of the infinite within the waters of the breast, it has the secret of a great calm, and the little things leave it undisturbed. When the soul knows God it can be still.—Rev. J. H. Jewett, The Christian Herald.

BIBLE ONLY BOOK TO BRING CHEER AND INSPIRATION TO SOLDIERS IN THE TRENCHES

BY REV. CHARLES STEELZIE.

A close-up experience in the trenches and hospitals will convince any man that the bible is the greatest comforter and inspirer in the world. This is why it is the "best seller" in the world.

The bible was written thousands of years ago, but nothing that has since appeared in printed form has had anything like the same circulation.

Men may talk as they please about other books being "inspired," but when a soldier is about to go to the front, or when he realizes that he must get ready for "the roll call up yonder," he doesn't ask that the chaplain or nurse read something to him from Shakespeare or Milton—he wants the bible.

And because this is true, it's a fine thing that the American Bible society has for just 100 years been placing bibles with soldiers in every notable war on American or foreign soil.

It prints the bible in 150 languages, and employs over 2,000 correspondents for distributing the bible, in whole or in parts. Last year about 8,000,000 volumes were distributed, and during the 100 years of its history nearly 118,000,000 volumes.

Hundreds of the society's correspondents are now busy in the trenches and training camps giving copies of Khaki-covered bibles and testaments to the soldiers.

And it isn't done in a perfunctory fashion either. For there's always a word of advice as to how to read and what to read, so that the soldier may get the best use of the bible.

preparation for war. You can almost hear the sounds of martial music and the shouting of fighting men.

And when comfort is needed, the Twenty-third psalm, between the Canadian and German lines. "It was all right, though," he said, "for thanks to the silent influence of this little book (pulling a testament out of his pocket), I was able to make my peace with my Maker."

They found a testament in the hands of a dead soldier on the battlefield, with these words written on the fly-leaf: "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life." Who can deny that this made him a better soldier?

To a correspondent who had given a soldier a new testament came a letter in which the soldier wrote: "I have found the pearl of great price"—referring to what he had discovered in the bible.

"We are coming face to face with death—we have mighty need of consolation," wrote another.

The bible keeps men human, and often makes them divine. This is what is needed in the great war we are now fighting.

The Danger to Girls in Great City Told

by Grace Humiston

(By GRACE HUMISTON.)

For many years the complaint has been made of the city of New York that it lacked the element of home life that produced the solid men and women of affairs. The congestion of population, the lack of family life, the lack of a flat might not have any means of knowing the character of the nearest neighbor, and the necessity of permitting children to go to the streets for recreation and air have all contributed to taking from the girlhood of the city the guarding influences that are essential for the proper safeguarding of the young.

Such a condition demands the most careful work on the part of the police to keep the streets free from evil-minded men and women who make a business of ensnaring innocence for personal profit. If there is the slightest laxity on the part of the police a danger spot is at once created. Many such danger spots exist in this city. There are many men and women who are essentially wolves at large in this big town.

One of the most glaring results has been the growing list of missing girls. Many of these girls have gone away from home leaving no trace of their course. Police investigation has failed to find them. In many instances the search has been fruitless because of the theory that was employed in the case of Ruth Cruger that they have voluntarily gone away and that the element of crime was at best incidental and minor.

I am convinced that any number of girls have been so taken from their homes through influences that the law ought to prevent. To drive out these influences and make less possible the spoliation of the young, while seeking to recover the girls themselves, is a crying need. I wish to see an organization of serious and able men and women take a hand in this work. Such an organization is now well under way. Many men and women who do not wish their names to be connected with the movement are silent partners in this venture. It is sure to bring astonishing revelations and important results.

Mrs. Humiston is a New York city lawyer who finally solved the mystery of the Ruth Cruger case. She will devote herself to fighting white slave iniquities in the great metropolis.

Efficiency in What? Can You Answer the Questions He Asked?

(The Presbyterian Advance.)

A young man of twenty-four stepped into a business office in a large city and walked up to the desk where an elderly man sat examining a bundle of papers.

"Look at that, father!" the young man said with a smile of pride. "I've made nearly one hundred on my efficiency chart! What do you think of that?"

The business man looked up at his son with a smile and a feeling of pride at his appearance, and then his eyes fell on the list of questions put by the efficiency bureau that had interested the young man to compete with many others for the first place.

1. Are you physically sound and free from all traces of disease?
2. Can you apply yourself to mental labor without great fatigue?
3. Are you an exact mathematician?
4. Do you have any bad habits?
5. Would you be willing to employ yourself in a business that required honesty, quickness of judgment, keen intellect?

6. Are you quick to see and take advantage of a business opportunity?
7. Are you in debt? If so, how did you become so?
8. Do you have extravagant habits of dress, amusements, or social life?
9. Can you secure good letters of recommendation from business men in the city who know you?

10. How much money have you ever saved, and how did you earn it?
The father read the list and, then, without a word, reached for a sheet of paper and put down the following:
1. Are you a Christian? Would you

For Peace Hath Her Heroes Faithful as Those Famed in War

(Literary Digest.)

It's midnight on the Oklahoma prairies. A heavy passenger train, loaded with precious human freight, is rushing through the gloom, covering the miles. A sound behind him, he turns his head, and gazes into the muzzle of a "45." "Hands up!" comes the crisp command, "slow down, quick!"

The driver is an old-timer and obeys. The bandits, fifteen in number, cover the train from end to end. They marshal the train crew, in short order, near the engine.

"Get in line!" is the order. Comes Ed. Oldham, rear brakeman, lantern in hand, a black-visaged robber holding a pistol to his ear. "Line up there, you!" the bandit chief tells him.

"I can't," says Oldham; "freight behind. I've gotta flag it, and he starts back over the hill.

A bullet slings by his ear. "Stop!" echoes the sharp command. Oldham turns his head, but keeps a-going.

"There's a freight just over the hill, I tell you. There will be a wreck if I don't get back there," he retorts.

The colts crack and snort. Close enough this time. The tips of two fingers off the brakeman's hand. Not the lantern hand, though, thank God.

"I'll shoot to kill next time," warns the robber, as he follows up the still-retreating trainman. Oldham answers, but plods doggedly on. "Can't help it. I must flag that freight!"

The robber lowers his gun, a look of admiration glinting in his eyes. "One game—fool," quoth he. Then he listens intently. Far away, over the hill, comes a rumble.

There sure is a train coming, boys," he says to his mates. To the brakeman, "Come along!" They break into a run together, pant up the steep hill, gain the crest, the rumble growing into a roar. Then the red lantern waves warningly, brakes whine, and as the headlights flash over the rim of the hill, the freight stops—just in time. Three Pullmans of sleeping passengers, besides the packed day coaches, are saved from a death-dealing collision.

That brakeman was trained to obey. He knew his duty and did it. Is any soldier upon Europe's firing line, officer or man, doing more? Only a railway private, but a hero. And it's true, every word of this tale.

There is no being so poor and contemptible who does not think there is somebody still poorer and still more contemptible.—Dr. Johnson.

God wants us to have a perfect holiness, he knows we can never have it by working for it; so he offers to give it to us in Christ.—C. G. Trumbull.

The love that is born of God is strong enough to forgive enemies, deep enough to reach the lost and broad enough to lend a helping hand to the farthest. With its wings it scales the highest mountains and descends into the deepest gorges and crosses the broadest seas in search of those in greatest need.—Bunyan.

NOTHING DOING WHEN LADY PICKETS COME

Perfectly Free to Do Bit at White House Gate—Feel Snubbed.

Washington, July 21.—Silent picketing at the white house gates was resumed by twelve members of the women's party today without interference from the police or citizens. It was the first time since the women started their demonstration for the benefit of the Russian mission that the women had been permitted to parade their banners before the white house unobscured.

It is understood that since President Wilson pardoned the sixteen members of the women's party, sentenced to serve sixty days in the workhouse for their activities, the police have been ordered to pay no attention to the "pickets" so long as they do not display banners with inscriptions insulting to the president or reasonable. Apparently the women as well as the small crowd that gathered upon their appearance were keenly disappointed over the tame result. Arrests had been expected, and legal advisers, including Dudley Field Malone, were preparing for the fight to be made to prevent further stays in jail.

President Wilson was not in the white house. He is taking a week-end cruise on the Mayflower.

RUSS ARMIES LITTLE GOOD

Military Committee System Fails and Discipline Must Be Restored.

INSUBORDINATION AMONG SOLDIERS

Army Forced to Another Retreat When Men Refuse to Give Battle.

London, July 21.—A dispatch from the correspondent of the Times at the headquarters of the eighth Russian army dated July 16, says that the system of military committees has failed and that the future success of the Russian army depends upon the restoration of a proper spirit of subordination among the soldiers.

FORCED TO RETREAT.

Petrograd, July 21.—A further retreat has been made by the Russians in eastern Galicia, the war office announces, because the troops did not show the necessary stability and at points did not fulfill commands. Dispatches say that a most intense artillery battle is raging on the Snorgren-Krevo front. Several hundred German heavy guns are said to be engaged. The Germans sought to advance but were driven back by the Russian fire, a crack Siberian corps bearing the brunt of the fighting. It is said the Russian guns are obtaining the mastery. Fighting was begun yesterday on the Rumanian front, Austro-German troops made an attack which was met by a Rumanian counter attack. The Rumanians drove back the enemy and restored the situation.

LOANS TO THE ALLIES. Washington, July 21.—Total loans by the United States to Great Britain including the eighty-five million dollars placed to that country's credit yesterday, stand today at $770,000,000 and the grand total of all loans to the allies at $1,388,000,000.

Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Strawbridge, of 1021 East Wayne street, received a telegram notifying them that their son, William H. Strawbridge, was drifted. The young man holds a responsible position in New York.

JERSEY GUARD ARRESTED. Newark, N. J., July 21.—Karl Desel, a member of the First regiment of the New Jersey national guard, said to have been formerly a non-commissioned officer in the German army and to have a brother who is now an officer in the German army, was today arrested here and put in jail on orders from the department of justice at Washington.

GOLD AWAITS the MAN WHO CAN HIT a BASEBALL with a BASEBALL BAT

BY J. B. SHERIDAN.

AN he hit? That is always the first question asked by employers of baseball players when the name of a possible employee is mentioned to them. There is a great demand for labor, especially for intelligent and special labor nowadays. But the greatest demand for unique labor is in baseball.

Any capable boy of from 18 to 30 can get from $250 to $1000 a month, work three hours a day, half his expenses paid, travel all over the United States, have five months of the year at his own disposal, provided he can hit, field a little, throw a baseball fairly well and run reasonably fast.

It is the biggest cinch in the world. The money paid to baseball players and to persons connected with baseball is the marvel of men in other business who come into contact with its lavishness.

It may be said that baseball offers more opportunities to a young man to get ready money quickly than any other possible profession.

Now Gets $5000 a Year.

In the year of grace, 1917, the same Rogers Hornsby will draw $5000 for playing baseball with the St. Louis National League team for six months. He will travel all over the United States and part of Canada, his expenses will be paid, all in first-class style, Pullmans, hotels, valet service, etc.

And all that Rogers Hornsby can do for his $533.33 a month is to hit a baseball. Hornsby is no great fielder. Nor is he a fast runner. In all respects he is an average, raw-boned, sunburnt Texas lad, save that he can hit a baseball hard, far and frequently.

If Hornsby had stuck to the laundry wagon he was driving when the scout of the Denison club of the Western Association found him, he would probably be making $65 a month.

But a baseball scout saw him hit. Then the scout went to the manager of the Denison team and said:

"I saw a kid playing on a lot at Fort Worth that might do you some good."

"Can he hit?" asked the manager.

"He sure can," said the scout.

"Gimme his address," said the manager, quickly.

Next day Hornsby got a telegraphic offer of a position with the Denison club. He quit his laundry wagon and started to play ball.

Robert Connerly, a scout of the St. Louis National League club, saw Hornsby play for Denison.

"That kid looks as if he can hit," said Connerly. So he paid $500 for the transfer of Hornsby's services from Denison to St. Louis.

Looked Like Anything but Athletic.

Hornsby did not look like much when he arrived in St. Louis. He was just a hollow-chested, razor-backed boy, lanky, loose-jointed. He did not look like an athlete or like a baseball player.

He went back to Texas with several hundred dollars in his pocket, went out on a ranch, slept long, drank lots of milk, and appeared in the spring 25 pounds heavier than he had been the preceding fall. He stood up to the bat with more confidence and took a healthy swing at the ball. He began to meet it. He began to hit. In two months' time, or a year after he had left his laundry wagon, Hornsby was famous all over the United States.

It all was because he could hit a baseball with a baseball bat.

Now, this Texas longhorn is drawing $5000 for six months' work. A year ago he was scared when he saw a big city.

Mark you, Hornsby is as yet nothing but a hitter. He is playing shortstop for the St. Louis Nationals. He is far from being a capable shortstop. He has been tried at third and first base, but as yet has to find himself a place in the field. He cannot run bases very well. But he can hit. So they pay him $5000 a year and are glad to get him at the price.

That's what you get for being able to hit a baseball.

Remember, too, that in the fall of 1915, when he came from Texas to St. Louis, Hornsby looked hopeless. He looked like a very poor amateur. But he had it in him to hit. It came out. He gets $533.33 a month.

Tris Speaker's Rise.

Take another Texas longhorn, Tris Speaker. Speaker comes from Temple, which is in the cow country. Speaker was a cowboy himself. He ran about the village and played a little ball. They put him on the team in Temple. He meant to be a bookkeeper, but found he could hit baseballs much better than he could keep books. Also that he could get much more money for hitting baseballs than for keeping books.

Houston heard of him. Donk Roberts, manager of the Houston team, offered him $100 a month to play with his club. Speaker thought that he had found an El Dorado. He played one season with Houston.

Then Roberts offered to sell his contract to St. Louis for $700. The St. Louis people said that they had enough wild Texas steers on their club, that they did not want any more. Roberts sold Speaker to Boston. Boston loaned him to Little Rock for a season, then recalled. Speaker began to hit. The result of it all is that for the last three years this Texas tyke has been drawing $3000 a month, or $18,000 for six months, for hitting baseballs with a baseball bat.

That is $5000 more for six months' work than the chief justice of the Supreme Court of the United States gets for twelve months' service. The chief justice gets about $1100 a month. Speaker gets almost twice that much.

In many senses, Speaker outshines Hornsby. Speaker is a great fielder and a great thrower. Hornsby is not. Speaker was a star for years before he got over $3500. Hornsby says that he is not yet 22 years old. He is not more than 24. Hornsby's day broke earlier than Speaker's.

But Speaker is taking down more money every month merely for hitting baseballs than great judges get for rendering decisions of mighty moment to the nation, to humanity and to the world.

Income $30,000 a Year.

When Speaker was in Boston and got his share of the world's championship spoils, he made $22,000 a year in salary and bonuses directly from baseball. He owns a ranch in Texas and he deals in cattle. His income is estimated at $30,000 a year. He is only a big, lusty boy, 31 he says; surely not more than 35.

It does not matter if you cannot sign your name to a contract—you can make your mark—if you cannot read, so long as you can hit a baseball with a baseball bat.

Take Joe Jackson, the great left fielder of the Chicago Americans. "Cracker Joe" they call him. Jackson is a Tennessean, born poor. He had scant educational advantages. He lived in the country and grew up lithe, tall and strong. His eye is as keen as the eye of an eagle. He comes from the mountain districts where a distant horizon lends power to the vision.

Jackson grew up to manhood in the mountains. Then he went to town and engaged at work in a cotton mill. He played some baseball with the mill team. He found out that he could hit.

In those days Jackson went barefoot. He played ball barefooted. Years later, when he was a star in a small Southern league, he would take off his spiked shoes, because they wearied him, and would play in his stocking feet. So they gave him his other nickname, "Shoeless Joe."

Jackson played with the mill team. Later he

Wanted to Stay in South.

The great teams of the North, Philadelphia, Chicago, Cleveland, etc., begged Jackson to join them. They offered him fabulous sums to leave the South. Jackson proved himself a real Tennessee mountaineer. He rejected large sums to stay at home in the Appalachians.

Eventually he was obliged to join Philadelphia. That club had bought the contract on his services from Columbia. Jackson had to play in Philadelphia or not play at all. He got a 200 per cent increase in salary to go. He went.

But he did not like it. He had been getting $175 for four and one-half months' play in the South, and he was getting $400 a month for six months' play in the North. Still his heart yearned for the land of cotton, cinnamon seed, sandy bottom. His heart was not in his playing. He did not appear to advantage.

Connie Mack, the paternal manager of the Athletics undertook to hold council with Jackson one day. He told him that he was not showing proper interest in his work, that he should brace up and do his best, that he was a great player, had fine prospects, etc.

"Ah, Connie," said Cracker Joe, "I don't keep much for the big leagues. I'd rather be at home in Tennessee."

"Well," said Mack, angered for once in his life, "if you have no more ambition than that you never will make a great player. You can go back to Tennessee."

So Mack sent him back to Columbia. Joe was perfectly content. He lost something like $250 a month or $1300 a season, by the change, but his nose longed for the odor of the pinetrees.

Next year Cleveland bought the contract of "Shoeless Joe." He came North again. Again he was stricken by nostalgia for the mountains. Again he failed to stick in big league company. As a matter of fact, he did not want to stick. He wanted to be in Dixie.

Cured of Homesickness.

Cleveland sent him back, this time to New Orleans. In this large Southern city "Shoeless Joe" was weaned away from his mountain love. He was in the South. That satisfied him. Getting around the bigger Southern cities weaned him insensibly away from his mountain home.

The following spring found Jackson, pretty well cured of his homesickness, back in Cleveland. He was not lonely. His heart was singing. He felt good. Then he got wading into baseballs and hitting them a mile. His fame was made.

Now this mountaineer, who comes from a country in which 50 cents a day and bacon and corn bread to eat, makes a man's wage, who worked in a cotton mill and who cared nothing for money, is making $5500 a season for hitting baseballs with a baseball bat.

It is a unique talent. It is heaven born. No man can impart it. No man can acquire it. Great hitters of baseballs with baseball bats are, like poets, born, not made.

Nobody ever taught Speaker or Jackson or Hornsby to hit baseballs, although there is an established style of correct hitting, just as there is an established style of correct handwriting.

Nowadays, they say that baseball players come out of colleges. They do. But the colleges do not make baseball players. The baseball players who come out of colleges have previously gone into the same colleges as baseball players. They go in or are coaxed in, because they are good baseball players. They come out, four years later, naturally better baseball players.

Hornsby, Jackson and Speaker never saw the inside of a college. It may be that Speaker did go, for a time, to a business college. This said that he meant to learn to keep books. It is doubtful that he ever did go even to business college. Hornsby and Jackson never made a bluff at going to college. Their educations have been of the most elementary character.

Once I spoke to Harry Lord, a famous hitter and third baseman, about the possibility of improving by instruction capable young men in hitting and in playing baseball.

"You can't do it," said Lord. "You can take the best-looking young athlete you know, a chap with good average baseball ability, and instruct and educate him for five years. But you never will put into him what is in Joe Jackson, who would not know his own name if he saw it in letters a foot high on a billboard."

That's the way it is. You can't instruct men to hit baseballs with baseball bats. The talent must be natural to them.

Yet there are well-established formulas which govern the successful hitter. He must not step back from the plate as he hits. He must swing evenly, horizontally, with the course of the pitched ball. He must "follow through."

Now Jackson, Speaker and Hornsby do all these things without knowing that they do them. No one ever taught them. They just naturally fell into perfect styles of hitting.

Perfect Hitting Position.

Look at Jackson's position at the bat. regard his right foot and his right shoulder. The left, or front, foot is in advance, closer to the plate than the right, or rear, foot. The right or forward shoulder is nearer to the plate than the rear or left shoulder. It is a perfect hitting position. That, a keen eye and a strong pair of wrists, make Jackson the greatest fair-away or slugging batter in the game.

The man grew wild in the mountains, but he is a picture of ease and grace that no physical instructor could produce. Jackson is built like a deer, slim, strong legs, powerful thighs, slender waist, immense back, chest and shoulders, powerful neck and small head. The man is graceful as a fawn, straight as an arrow. Yet he never took a lesson in physical culture in his life. He knows nothing about systems of physical education, about dieting, internal bathing, etc. All he knows is to hit baseballs with that big bat of his.

Now, Joe has a wife, a fine family and several large motor cars. He is up in his thirties, for he did not come out of the mountains until

Hornsby is a mere kid, though. It is only a year or so ago that he was making $400 a year. Out of 600 balls he struck at he managed to hit some 200 safely. For that he got an increase of $4500 a year in salary. He can't field; at least he has not yet found a position in which he can play. He can't run bases very well. All he can do is to hit. He did this for but one season. So he gets $5000 a season, about $25 for every safe hit he makes.

Speaker and Jackson get more money than Hornsby, but they are players of long-established, all-around merit. They can field and run bases as well as hit. Hence, Hornsby's rapid rise is most extraordinary of all.

This spring will see millions of young men considering choice of careers. Most of them will accept, not what they want, but what they can get. The job that comes first to hand probably will settle their future careers. Others will have sense and sand enough to wait, to fight the best they can and to finally choose for themselves.

I do not recommend baseball as a final profession or ultimate goal for any young man. As a means to ready money, as a means to an education, as a means to a start, no business of profession of the day offers such facilities of getting cash quickly as baseball.

But to get money in baseball, you must be able to hit a baseball.

If you can do that, son, and are poor and ambitious, or want, or need, the money, go to baseball. It is a gold mine for a poor boy.

Roping Matches

DURING a meeting of the stock growers on the reservation opposite Miles City, Mont., there were some roping matches of more than ordinary interest. Of all cowboy sports, roping contests are the most exciting, and call forth more skill and agility than the man who has never visited the Far West can appreciate.

Never visited the Far West can appreciate, unless he comes to know it through reading Wild West stories.

When a contest of this kind is arranged, a place of ground is selected, care being taken that it is level and free from any dog holes, rocks or brush that might bring down a horse while running at full speed, and injure both it and its rider.

A bunch of thirty or forty lively young steers, full of grit, are then driven up by three cowboys, two of whom hold the bunch, while the third "cuts out" the animals one by one for the contest. Timekeepers are appointed, and the first competitor comes forward on his pony.

He takes his stand 40 or 50 yards from the bunch, and a fine picture he generally makes, with his big white hat, his spurs and his lasso. Then a steer is cut out from the bunch and started on the run. At a given signal the cutter-out pulls up his broncho in the proverbial 4 feet of space, and the competitor dashes after the steer.

A sharp race follows, and the second the cowboy gets near enough he swings the rope above his head, takes careful aim and circles it around the steer's horns. In an instant the broncho stops suddenly, bringing the steer to a halt. Then the horse runs around the steer, which is promptly thrown. The rider fastens the rope to the horn of the saddle and dismounts, leaving the horse to hold down the steer, which it invariably does by sitting down on its haunches and bracing itself with its forelegs.

The cowboy proceeds to tie the steer's hind legs, and the moment he has done his task is completed and the time is taken.

EACH MAN TO BE NOTIFIED

Those Conscripted Will Be Told When to Report for Examination.

Each Person is Subject to Call in the Order Drawn.

Seven hundred and nine young men of Allen county will compose the first honor roll that will have to answer the country's call for soldiers for participation in the world war for democracy. Five hundred and fifty-seven of the 709 will go from Fort Wayne.

Every man who registered is subject to call, but in the order that their names were drawn at Washington, Friday. The fact that any man's conscription number has been drawn does not mean that he has to report immediately to his district board for examination. There has been some misunderstanding as to the next step to be taken in raising the national army. Jesse E. Eschbach, state conscription agent, with headquarters at Indianapolis, declares that every man will be notified by the board in his district when to report for examination. There is nothing for any man to do, he said, until he has been so notified, either by letter or in some other way, so be determined later.

There was no limit to the interest taken in the drawing. Thousands upon thousands were affected. In some families three or four boys within the conscription ages were drawn early. It was noticeable that some streets were hit harder than others. Within the next few months it is not at all improbable that the 709 young men that Allen county has been called upon to furnish will be seeing service upon the battlefields of Europe. They are subject to their country's call whenever and wherever their services are needed.

The young men who will make up Uncle Sam's new army will be subject to call, however, in the order that their names were drawn. A man was down in the list should not be too certain of not having to respond. There will be a great many rejected because of physical defects and many others will be excused because of valid claims of exemption.

Fort Wayne is divided into three districts. All outside of Fort Wayne in Allen county comprises another district. There are 2,500 in district No. 1, 2,232 in district No. 2, 3,151, the highest number, in district No. 3, and 2,616 in the rural district, making a total of 10,509.

A search has been made of the residence of Nikolai Lenin, socialist leader of the recent outbreak here. His whereabouts is unknown. The regiments participating in the Petrograd disorders are being disbanded. More troops arrived today from the front. The state banks and other banks have been re-opened.

NO HITCH IN FIRST DRAFT

Of the monotonous drag of the drawing and recording of numbers. The participating officials worked in relays, but the strain of the tedious process began to weigh heavily on all of them before the end. General Crowder, the provost marshal, replaced the blindfolded official at the drawing bowl, and himself drew out the last number. Scarcely had the historic event thus reached its close than the news of the last drawing had been flashed over the country. The telegraphic feat of transmitting the 10,600 numbers as rapidly as they were drawn was pronounced by officials today as among the most notable features of the whole process.

Had Right of Way on Wires. The Associated Press virtually cleared its wires of other matter and gave the right of way to the draft numbers from the start of the drawing, with the result that newspapers everywhere were able to give to their readers promptly the lists of those chosen in the various local districts.

No small part in the country-wide success of the lottery plan was played by The Associated Press operators who worked for long hours with nothing before them but the eternal groups of figures and with the thought in their minds that a mistake of a single figure would be a matter of utmost concern to thousands of men and tens of thousands of their friends and relatives.

For that reason, no attempt at unusual speed could be made, with the result that errors were kept at a minimum. Some mistakes were unavoidable, however, for in some respects the official tellers' reports were at variance and a comparison and rectification was proceeding today. The rule followed was that agreement in records of two of the three tellers in any case should be sufficient to show that the variation was the mistake of the third. All the records of the drawing will be so rectified before the official reports are forwarded to local boards.

Will Provide Cancelled Lists.

In reporting the numbers to the boards, the federal government also will provide special lists with the high numbers which do not apply in the given district and cancelled. The process will not be reduced to the fine point of providing a cancelled sheet that shall exactly fit each district in the country but lists with cancellations made by groups of thousands will be used and one will be supplied each local board with the line drawn at the thousand mark next above the highest number in that district.

With the close of the drawing the great bulk of the business of making the new army ready for service will pass to the state and local authorities. They now must post the numbers of the men to be called for examination and later must take up the subject of exemptions. It will be their duty, in short, to turn over to the federal government when the mobilization call comes in September their given quota of men all ready to be soldiers.

AUTHOR OF LAW PLEASED.

Washington, D. C., July 21.—Senator Chamberlain, chairman of the senate military affairs committee and joint author of the draft law, who drew the second number for the selective draft today issued the following statement: "Everything went off with absolute precision, testifying to the care with which the admirable plans had been formulated by the president under the skillful management of Provost Marshal General Crowder. It will prove to the country that the selective draft plan for securing an army is the fairest that could have been devised, distributing the burden of the war so far as man power is concerned, what is evenly and justly among all young men of the country between 21 and 31. Any other system would have taken only the willing."

"It is not a conscript system nor does it provide a conscript army. On the contrary every man drawn is entitled to feel honored and I believe will feel honored that he has been selected to serve his country."

HEALTH OF ARMY GOOD

Medical records thus far make it appear that the appeal had been anticipated by the majority of men for health conditions are limited almost exclusively to a few cases of measles and mumps contracted before leaving the United States.

Every soldier already had been vaccinated against typhoid, and in addition each troop section is equipped for filtering every drop of water. Likewise, every man under 45 years of age has been vaccinated against smallpox and will be similarly protected against cholera should it make its appearance.

The American army has just completed taking over the French base hospital near here which will be opened within a few days, with the Johns Hopkins unit comprising thirty persons and surgeons, including a number of noted surgeons, 25 attendants and 125 American nurses. The hospital has a capacity of a thousand beds and will be exclusively for the American forces.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY'S WAR NEWS

tered upon the battlefields in the east, where the Russians are having to contend with disaffection in their ranks as well as with the Germans and Austrians, there is sufficient action in progress on the western front to command close attention.

The German crown prince received a severe beating in his recent attack along a wide front in the Alsine region, but nevertheless is sacrificing more of his troops in renewed efforts to shake the French lines. The French line, fighting last night south of Cerny, on this front, but although the French positions were twice penetrated the results of the fighting showed them to have remained intact in French hands.

A British attack on the northern end of the Belgian-Franco front, which the intensity of the big gun fire of late had seemed to indicate as impending, has not yet been delivered. Plans for an extensive attack are being continued.

and last night they penetrated German positions on a wide front in the vicinity of La Bassée and Armentières. A big raid was also conducted on the German trenches at Greenland hill, north of Rouex.

NE WHAY APPEARS ON THE WHOLESALE MART

Five Loads Are Sold at $10.00 to $12.00 on Saturday.

New hay put in an appearance on the local wholesale market Saturday morning, five loads having been sold at $10 to $12. The appearance is somewhat belated this year, due to adverse conditions under which farmers have been working. Six loads of old hay were sold last night at $11 to $15.50. Corn was in for another boost, too, only one load appearing and that going at $1.85. In addition to the hay and corn, five loads of oats were weighed at the city scales, these selling at 75 and 77 cents per bushel.

DISCOUNT OF CROP PUTS CORN AHEAD

Reaction Follows Course of Early Gain—Wheat Shows Strength.

Chicago, July 21.—Fresh strength developed in the corn market today owing in the main apparently to the wide discounts of new crop futures as compared with corn ready for immediate use. Opening prices, which ranged from the same as yesterday's finish to 1/4 higher, with September at $1.63 to $1.63 1/2, and December at $1.16 1/2 to $1.17 1/2 were followed by material further gains, but then a decided reaction.

The close was heavy, at the same as yesterday's finish to 1/4 lower, with September at $1.63 to $1.63 1/2 and December at $1.16 1/2 to $1.17 1/2. Prospects of quick action in congress in fixing a minimum price was credited with helping to lift wheat prices. After opening unchanged at $2.50 July, and $2.18 September, the market rose to $2.26 for September.

The close was strong, 5/8 to 3/4 net higher, with July at $2.55 and September at $2.27.

New high price levels were reached in oats.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

High pressure persists off the Atlantic coast and a high area of moderate intensity is moving inland over the north Pacific states. A depression of considerable depth, central over Saskatchewan reaches southward over the Rockies to Arizona.

During the last 24 hours showers have occurred in the south Atlantic and Gulf states, and locally on the middle eastern slope and in north-central sections. The weather is slightly cooler than the seasonal average in the Gulf states but in northern districts from the Rockies eastward to the north Atlantic coast temperatures are generally above the normal.

As a rule the temperature changes of the last 24 hours have been unimportant.

Cannot Enlist After Local Board Posts Name

REGISTRANTS WHO WOULD VOLUNTEER MUST MAKE HASTE

Provo Marshal General Crowder Issues
a Ruling That Definitely Fixes Time When Man Is "Called."

MASTER TALLY SHEETS SOON TO BE SENT

Washington, July 23.—Registrants under the selective draft law are not eligible for voluntary enlistment in the regular army or the national guard after their names have been posted by local exemption boards as summoned for examination.

Brigadier General Crowder, provost marshal general, promulgated this ruling today to make definite the status of men on the registration lists who now may desire to join the regulars or the national guard. The ruling which is supplementary to instructions sent to recruiting officers by Adjutant General McCain is as follows:

"After a registered person has been called for military service by his local board and directed to appear for physical examination he ceases to be eligible for voluntary enlistment."

The ruling of General Crowder was necessary in order to establish definitely the time when a registered man was to be considered as falling within this prohibition.

General Crowder held that posting the name of a registrant by the local board at its headquarters constituted notification to the registrant that he was called for examination, and thus set the period when he would be no longer eligible for voluntary service. Prior to that time even though his name may be among those who will be called in the first quota in any district a registrant may be accepted for the regular service as a volunteer.

Checking Official Tally. The official tally sheets of the draft was about complete today and printing the master sheets which will guide local exemption boards in summoning the men for the first increment of 487,000 troops proceeded rapidly. The sheets probably will start out in the mails late today. Regulations to govern the application of the master list by the local exemption boards have already been promulgated and include a method by which any difficulties arising from confusion of serial numbers are to be overcome. The plan is to regard such registration cards as additional to the number already provided on the local lists.

A separate drawing will be held by state authorities to place these additional cards and such other cards as may have come in by mail, since July 30, in order as they are drawn. They Petrograd, Sunday, July 22.—The chaotic conditions prevailing on part of the Russian front are disclosed in a telegram sent to Premier Kerensky, the provisional government and the council of workmen and soldiers' delegates by the executive committee and the commissioner of the provisional government with the second army, on the southwestern front. The telegram announced the inauguration of stern measures to combat dissatisfaction.

"We unanimously recognize that the situation demands extreme measures and efforts, for everything must be risked to save the revolution from catastrophe," the message reads. "The commander-in-chief on the western front and the commander of the second army today have given orders to fire on deserters and runaways."

RUSSIA APPEALS TO PEOPLE TO JOIN TO RESCUE THE NATION

Petrograd, July 23.—Following is the text of the proclamation issued by the provisional government calling on the people of Russia to oppose the dangers which threaten the nation from within and from without:

Citizens: The fateful hour has struck. The German emperor's armies have broken the front of the national revolutionary army. This terrible operation has been facilitated by the criminal levity and blind fanaticism of some and the treachery of others.

At this fateful moment when, taking advantage of the general confusion, the hidden forces of counter-revolution are raising their heads, the remodeled provisional government clearly realizes its heavy responsibilities. It possesses, however, full and firm confidence in the strength of the great Russian people and in the rapid restoration of the life of the nation.

shaken the national organism has manifested itself and burned itself out in an acute crisis.

The government firmly believes that the crisis will lead to recovery, not death. Strong in that belief, the government is ready to act with the energy and resolution the exceptional circumstances demand.

The government regards as its first and capital task the application of its whole strength to the struggle against the foreign foe and to the defense of the new governmental regime against every anarchical and counter-revolutionary attempt, without hesitating to take the most rigorous measures in its power.

At the same time the government reiterates that not a drop of blood of a Russian soldier shall be shed for any foreign end, as it is the duty of the Russian people to defend their own life and freedom.

London, July 23.—That high German command had based its calculations on food supplies which America has been sending to neutrals became known according to the Daily Mail, through the famous speech of Herr Erzberger, head of the Catholic party in the reichstag, made before a secret session of that body.

This newspaper referred to this address as a "bombshell." Herr Erzberger remarked that although America's entry into the war was of little military value it was important owing to the extent to which Germany has depended on the neutrals for food and other supplies.

COUNTY FAIRS AGREE TO HELP IN RECRUITING

New York, July 23.—The management of twenty-two county fairs to be held during the summer and fall in all parts of the country have agreed to aid the navy department in its recruiting campaign, according to an announcement made today by the naval publicity bureau. At many of the fairs it was said posters will be displayed and billboards erected. The navy department wish it should the navy department wish it.

Several of the larger circuses have also agreed to do what they can to aid recruiting. One will carry a special recruiting tent with it during the show season, which will be turned over to the navy department for the purpose of recruiting in each town the circus visits.

HUSBAND IN PORT OF MISSING MEN

Grover Scott, 1408 Franklin avenue, was in the best of spirits Saturday evening. He kissed his wife and two small children "bye-bye" and went to the barber shop. The night swallowed him up when he left the shop. No trace of him has been gathered by his distracted wife since that time. Police have been informed and are aiding in the hunt for the young man.

"He could not get into the army because of having a thumb off," said Mrs. Scott Monday. "I find that he quit his job at the Brown Trucking company Saturday. I do not know where he can be now."

Summary of the Day's War News

Unlimited powers have been granted the Russian provisional government under Premier Kerensky to grapple with the sinister forces threatening to wreck the new Russia born of the March revolution.

The grant comes from the most powerful representative body in the nation, the council of soldiers and workmen's delegates and the peasants of all Russia assembled in Petrograd.

The title of the ruling body, the "Government of National Safety," recalls immediately the famous committee of public safety of 1793, formed in the crucial period of the French revolution. With Kerensky serving not only as premier, but as minister of war and marine, it is apparent that vast powers are thus lodged in the hands of this one man, suggesting those of the virtual dictator.

The mayor will proceed at once to appoint a successor for William Geake, who was chairman of the board representing the city district west of Calhoun street and north of the Pennsylvania tracks, known as district No. 2. Mayor Hoesy believes the draft law gives him authority to appoint the man himself and to secure the approval of the governor later.

Mayor Hoesy may wire Governor Moody in order to explain the situation and secure his approval of the new appointment Monday evening. The mayor is anxious to have the vacancy on the important board filled with all dispatch.

ALL AMERICAN AIRMEN TO GET UNDER ONE HEAD

Paris, July 23.—Plans have been completed for bringing all American aviation forces here under a single direction, working in conjunction with other military branches. The aviation corps will be planned into two classes. One will operate within 125 kilometers and the other within a range of 200 kilometers. The tactical units will co-operate directly with the troops, doing preliminary reconnoitering, pursuing enemy aviators and bombing enemy establishments. The strategic squadron in general will operate independently. They will be engaged in destroying enemy bases and supply bases. They will also take part in squadron fighting and day and night bombardments. Observation balloons will be used largely as an adjunct to the artillery. It is ordered that hereafter the names of no American officers except Major General Pershing and Major General Siebert be mentioned in news dispatches.

ARMED KILTIES MARCH CHICAGO STREETS FREE

Chicago, July 23.—The sight of British troops under arms marching through the streets of Chicago was witnessed for the first time today when a battalion of Canadian Highlanders and their regimental band paraded the downtown section. The Highlanders, who are here to stimulate "British recruiting week," came direct from New York, and as a tribute of American regard brought the colors of the Seventy-first regiment of New York.

MERCURY ON WAY TO HIGHEST POINT

Temperature Monday Gave Promise of Rivaling the High Mark.

Late Monday afternoon the mercury of the government thermometer was still climbing and evidence was given that this would be the hottest day Fort Wayne has experienced this year. At 2 o'clock, eastern time, or 1 o'clock, standard time, the temperature was 87 degrees.

Thus far last Saturday was the hottest day when the thermometer registered 89 degrees as the high mark. Sunday the highest point reached was 88 degrees. Sunday was an extremely uncomfortable day as people suffered from the intense heat.

A slight breeze Monday made the weather more bearable. The weather man predicts showers for tonight and Tuesday, which will undoubtedly give temporary relief. The temperature at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon was 88 degrees and at 2 o'clock 87 degrees.

HURRY MILK TO ICE, NEWEST HEALTH ORDER

"These are the sun baked days when bad milk will kill many babies," said Dr. J. H. Gilpin, Monday.

Put milk on ice just as soon as it is received at your home, is the order given by the health department as a result of the sultry spell.

Lay the milk bottles directly against the ice chunks, is added. Direct contact with the ice means an added coldness of twenty degrees. Keep the milk as cold as possible.

"If milk is not on ice it will be unfitted for baby's use in a half hour," says Dr. Gilpin.

Besides precaution in caring for milk the health men urge that all gar-

KERENSKY GETS POWERS TO ACT WITHOUT LIMIT

Council of Soldiers' and Workmen's Delegates and Peasants of All Russia Vote for Safety.

COUNTER REVOLUTION IS NOW FEARED

Petrograd, July 23.—The council of soldiers' and workmen's delegates and peasants of all Russia voted today after an all night session to grant the government of Premier Kerensky "unlimited powers" under the title "Government of National Safety" for the re-establishment of public order, both at the front and at home.

There are indications that the workmen's and soldiers' council, after the events of the past week and all circumstances connected therewith are apprehensive of a counter revolution.

The central committee has issued a manifesto calling local organizations of the revolutionary democracy and army to be ready at any moment to rally round their political centers, namely the councils of the workmen and soldiers.

The sweeping new powers were granted to the provisional government in a resolution adopted today by a combined sitting of the executive committees of the council of workmen's and soldiers' delegates and the council of peasants' delegates. The resolution which was passed by 252 to 57 reads: "Recognizing that the country is menaced by a military debacle on the front and by anarchy at home it is resolved:

"First—That the country and the revolution are endangered;

"Second—That the provisional government is proclaimed the government of national safety;

"Third—That unlimited powers are accorded the government for re-establishing the organization and discipline of the army for a fight to a finish against the enemies of public and for the realization of the whole program embodied in the governmental program just announced."

MAKING ARRESTS.

Petrograd, July 23.—Lieutenant Dashkevitch and another delegate of the Workmen's and Soldiers' league has been arrested. Dashkevitch is charged with inciting the Petrograd troops to repudiate the provisional government.

FORT WAYNE BOY IS GIVEN A PROMOTION

John Quinn Made Foreman of I. C. Erecting Shops at Burnside, Ill.

John J. Quinn, a Fort Wayne boy, is making good in railway work and will soon be, it is believed, by his admiring friends, in a high and responsible office. Word was received here Saturday to the effect that he had been appointed general foreman of the erecting department of the "Burnside" shops of the Illinois Central company at Chicago. These are the most important shops of that company. Mr. Quinn was born, reared and educated in Fort Wayne. He learned the machinist's trade in the Vabash shops in this city, commencing the apprenticeship seventeen years ago. Later he went to the Pennsylvania shops and was for a while a gang foreman there. Three or four years ago he went to the Burnside shops, where he passed through some minor promotions until he assumed the present responsible office. John is a brother of Thomas F. J. Quinn, the well known Pennsylvania train dispatcher.

COMMERCIAL BRANCH MEETS.

Convention of G. E. Salesmen Opened This Morning.

The fourth floor of the big factory building of the General Electric works, on the south side of Wall street, very much approaches in appearance a mechanical and electrical exhibition, rather than a convention hall. Nearly every product of the big electrical plant on exhibition on the floor and is taking an important part in bringing out the salient points of the various papers that are being read before the gathering. There are salesmen and "special men" from every part of the United States and Canada at the meeting, which will continue until tomorrow night. General Manager F. S. Huntington gave the opening address, which complimented the men for the part they have taken in the immense traffic the company has enjoyed the past year or two and, predicting greater achievements in a business way for the coming years. Today's program included an address by T. W. Behan on "Fractional Horse Power Division," Mr. Kline, on "Apparatus Division," Mr. Smith, on "Price Books and Contract Forms," Mr. Roberts, on "Estimates and Quotations," Mr. Hirsch, on "Compensaries and MIC Charging Sets," Mr. Archibald, on "Farm Lighting Conservators and Panels," and Mr. Towne, on "Advertising of Fort Wayne Department Specialties." After each paper a general discussion followed.

RAISED AGE LIMIT.

A Strong Man of Any Age Can Now Find Employment.

Posters from the east announce that the Pennsylvania company has practically eliminated the age limit for new employees. It announced that all men in good health and able to work will be given employment temporarily on that road. Of course when it comes to reducing the force, the old ones will be dropped out first. The General Electric works has also raised the age limit for new employees to fifty and several who are above that age and below fifty-five have been employed. The company recognizes that there are many men over fifty years old who are able and willing to perform as much labor in a day as many of the men under thirty-five years.

SOLDIER LOSES A FOOT.

George Bowman Wounded While Stealing Ride on Train.

Saturday afternoon at Ada, O., George B. Bowman, a member of the Second regiment of Ohio national guards, lost a foot when he fell from the bumper of a car as he was "stealing a ride" on Pennsylvania extra No. 9.087. The wounded soldier was turned over to his superior officers, who sent him to a hospital. Bowman resides at Leipsic, O. The train was in charge of conductor S. O. Middleton and engineer Beidenmeyer.

GEORGE PLACIER HEARD FROM.

Ray Hoffman, general foreman of the general testing department of the General Electric works, received a postcard from somewhere in France, on which was written, in addition to the address, the name George Placier. And nothing more. On the opposite side of the card was a peaceful farm scene—four or five children seated on the grass watching a number of sheep and cows grazing in a wooded field. There was nothing suggestive of war in the post card, except the absence of news. Mr. Placier is in the marine service of the French. He worked several years at the General Electric works in this city. His first service there was four or five years ago, following which he resigned to go in the United States navy, where he remained three years. Then he returned and after a course at a college at Columbus took up the surgery, which he followed one season. Re-entering the testing room, he worked a year and then left for France and the post card received by Mr. Hoffman was the first heard from him since he left the works.

QUESTIONS STATE EVIDENCE.

Defense in Fishback Trial Hints Witnesses Were Instructed.

Hartford City, Ind., July 23.—That the state's counsel operated a school at Redkey to instruct witnesses how to testify in the trial of William Fishback, charged with the murder of Roy Brown, was intimated by attorneys in the examination of Guy Lacey, called by the state today. Lacey denied that he had been instructed how to testify and had been offered $500 to find convicting evidence.

Lacey said that Fishback told him in a Dunkirk saloon, "I'll bet $100 I'll be arrested with Ray Landess for the murder, but there'll be another."

IN HANDS OF RECEIVER.

Huntington, Ind., July 23.—The C. E. & C. is again in the hands of J. C. Curtis, the receiver, who was appointed by Judge S. E. Cook in 1908, when Eben Lesh brought suit asking the appointment of a receiver. Mr. Curtis arrived in Huntington at 10 o'clock and immediately took charge of the short line. He will manage it until the date of sale, September 17. Mr. Curtis, while still receiver, had retired from active management in April to give J. M. Wilson, who bid in the road last January, a chance to demonstrate that he could make the road pay its expenses and to give him time to pay for the road.

A three-inch perpendicular gash was cut above the left eye from both sides of which brains issued to the ground. The child had been playing in the yard, which is separated from the pasture by a wire fence, through which he crawled, soon after which he was kicked.

CONDEMNNS PATENT

REMEDY PROMOTION

National Tuberculosis Association Swats U. S. Commerce Department.

New York, July 23.—Recent action of the United States department of commerce in recommending China to American patent medicine interests as a good field in which to develop their business, is unanimously condemned by anti-tuberculosis workers all over the country through a resolution adopted by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis made public today.

It is maintained that the information and advice on this subject given in the departmental consular report No. 78 practically places a branch of the United States government on record as promoting a traffic that has been condemned as an evil by every reputable medical or public health body in the country, both official and unofficial. This is of particular moment to anti-tuberculosis workers in view of the fact that the sale of alleged "consumption cures" constitutes one of the most tragic phases of the patent medicine traffic.

The National association in its resolutions severely criticizes the department's action in these words: "Resolved, that the National association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis condemns such action on the part of the United States department of commerce, and that the executive secretary be instructed to forward a copy of this resolution to the secretary of said department, urging that hereafter the influence of the United States government should not be used in support of the patent medicine business."

The National association estimates that not less than $20,000,000 is invested in the business of manufacturing and exploiting fake cures for tuberculosis, and that the annual income from these concerns and individuals is $15,000,000. About one-third of this amount is spent for advertising, leaving a profit of $10,000,000 a year, which is characterized by the association as "blood money" taken from ignorant consumptives. There are over 500 of these so-called fake tuberculosis remedies listed. No drug or specific cure for this disease has yet been found, it is declared; but, if discovered early enough, tuberculosis may be cured by proper medical direction and the application of fresh air, rest, and good food.

It is pointed out that China has not yet recovered from the effects of the opium habit that was fostered upon it by western civilization and that it is particularly unchivalrous of the United States government to help foster a new evil upon this people while they are in the throes of reorganizing their society on a more intelligent and democratic basis.

Samuel H. Death had been due probably to apoplexy or heart failure. Mr. Flickinger had not felt well upon arising in the morning. He leaves his widow, a daughter, Mrs. Lloyd Mowrey, and the following sisters: Mrs. J. Martin, Mrs. Steve Martin, Mrs. Steve Shaw and Mrs. David Kinsey.

How to Overcome Foot Troubles

If you have tired, burning, aching feet, corns or painful callouses, you know only too well the misery and torture that they bring. It is unnecessary, however, to suffer longer with any of these foot troubles. Go to your drugist and get a small jar of Ice-Mint. Rub a little of this cooling, healing discovery on your tired, aching, corn-plagued, swollen feet. Instantly the pain of corns and callouses vanishes. And shortly the most stubborn and painful hard corns, soft corns, corns between the toes, or aching callouses, will shrivel up and lift out easily with the fingers, roots and all.

Ice-Mint costs little, is easy and delightful to apply and aside from removing every painful corn and callous will leave your feet cool, soft and supple.

A LITTLE PATIENCE WILL PAY.

The suffering suffs mobilized in Washington for guerilla warfare on the president are to have unmolested privilege to picket the white house, to march their solemn rounds and to carry their emblazoned banners at their own sweet will, personal convenience or obligation to soldierly duty. Having got near a score of picketers out of a Virginia workhouse with its many associates and its vermin and its jail soil and its uninviting toil and still more uninviting fare, the president has let it be understood that future interference with the ladies will be distasteful to him. That is not doing what the picketers want him to do and expect him to do, but it is doing a good deal.

The militant women want President Wilson to pass a law giving universal suffrage and put it in the constitution as an irremovable and unamendable part of the great American palladium. These functions usually are initiated by congress and approved by the people through indirect referendum in which the legislatures of the states functionate. But that's neither here nor there. The militants want the president to pass that law or make congress pass it or give them "the vote" without any law or something or other and want him to "do it now." The National Woman Suffrage association wants the same result, but recognizes that there is a prescribed course and that the president is just as powerless as itself to make congress do anything. That has been given emphasis in these later days. The national association is preparing to urge its claims upon congress and we believe that if this great body of women, numbering something more than two millions of members, will bear patiently with congress and the president until the most pressing of the war measures are disposed there will be excellent chance of a friendly hearing and perhaps something more to the point.

Mrs. Catt, president of association, and other leaders of that body have besought the Congressional union, the small body of suffragists under whose auspices the white house picketing proceeds, to cease trying to annoy the president and to heckle congress while the vital measures of the war were pending, but even this appeal of sister to sister in the name of a common cause, has failed to influence the unionists, who appear to be more interested in their martyrdoms and its notoriety than in forwarding "votes for women."

Universal suffrage is coming to the women of America. The war will set it forward here as it has set it forward in Great Britain. President Wilson is friendly to the cause and doubtless there is a majority in either branch of congress ready to support a resolution to submit the Anthony amendment to the states. Whether the votes necessary to make such a resolution valid can be had at this time may be doubted, though there has been a notable loosening of sentiment toward national enfranchisement of women and when congress can get to it there may be no trouble attending the matter. When it does come it will be the patience and the good sense of the workers in the National Woman Suffrage association and not the spectacular and silly tactics of the Congressional union that will have achieved the victory.

RUSSIA'S BAD FLIGHT.

There lie ahead of Russia critical times. The wisest minds and the stoutest hearts in all of that new and unformed mass of democracy will be needed to save the nation from its ruthless foes that assault it from without and its insidious enemies that plot against it from within. It is plain that Russia has more to fear from the elements of disorder at work among the people inciting resistance to authority and scheming against stability of government than she has to fear from the German armies massed along her frontiers. The Germans may beat Russia down as a military factor, put her out of the war, exact indemnities and rape her of territory, but with that leave her free to dispose of her internal affairs as the people may elect; but if Russia must fight Russians to preserve national entity there cannot be much hope that she will succeed. Anarchy if not strangled will tear the nation to shreds and leave it to be preyed upon from the outside and besides that set the people to preying upon one another.

When the new offensive of the Russian armies was launched the first of the month and notable successes were won by the brilliant Korniloff, it looked as though authority had gained the upper hand and that the spirit of loyalty and the fighting morale of the troops had been aroused and restored through the efforts of Kerensky. Events of the past few days have well-nigh destroyed every hope that sprung up three weeks ago. "On the battle front Russian regiments have given way to permit unmolested advance of the enemy. In Petrograd mutinous regiments have defied authority and fought with the loyal troops of the capital garrison. Anarchists who preach disorder for disorder's sake and hireling agitators who foment internal strife for the German gold they jingle have made common cause against the government. Prince Lyoff, the premier, a great democrat and one of the superb figures of Russian statesmanship, has found it desirable to quit the provisional government. Young Kerensky has become premier and is exercising practically the powers of a dictatorship. Into no better hands could supreme authority to strive for the fencing of Russia from her war foes and for the saving of the land from the forces of disorder descend than into the hands of this amazing young genius. It may be that for the time the provisional government will have to completely abate its complaisance to the free and easy spirit of unqualified democracy that pervades the civil masses and the armies and manage matters with strong hands. If Russia is going to be a democracy and go forward to prosper in material ways, to build up a capable and self-governing people and to found a state strong enough to hold itself together and fend its territories and its rights, there cannot be much further going in the direction pursued since last March.

Events moved with such swiftness in Russia when the revolution broke loose that every national mooring was torn up and the country has been drifting until it finally has brought up in very rough water. Finland is attempting to cut loose and establish complete political independence. The Ukraine presents a problem of menacing difficulty, the soldiers and sailors of Kronstadt have been in a state of mutiny and asserting independence for several weeks and other provinces are rebellious and adding both to the din and to the danger.

Russia is in a bad way when her people will lend no ear of reason to men like Lyoff and Kerensky. Her strong men must save her from her foes and from her ignorant and disordered masses who lately have freed themselves and have a fatuous notion that that is all there is to it. Once Russia plunges herself into a civil war or into unbridled anarchy, as the prospect seems to flatter, the people will understand the need of leadership and strength in their government.

A WORK THAT CANNOT BE OVERDONE.

There is constantly increasing call for the supplies made by the Red Cross branches. There are not enough workers in this department of service to the nation in war. Here in Fort Wayne, the Red Cross chapter numbers some eight thousand members and a vast amount of work is going ahead, yet the volume that is done, great as it is, does not answer the demand. This seems to be true over practically the whole of the country.

Workers are needed for the Red Cross service at home. It should be borne in mind that this service is just as necessary, just as patriotic and just as pressing as service at the front. America has not only her own soldiers to look out for in the matter of Red Cross supplies, but the soldiers of some of her allies. There is a shocking dearth of even the simplest and most elementary things on some of the battle fronts, where sick and wounded men suffer agony wholly needless and in some cases go to death that might easily be escaped save that hospital supplies are wanting.

America is now the only country fighting on the side of democracy that is able to provide these supplies and America is abundantly able to do it. It needs only that there be plenty of workers to turn out the things most commonly needed. Almost every woman can devote some measure of her time to this work. Some are today giving practically all of their time to it. This is most worthy on the part of such as can do it, but it is not necessary in all cases, nor any great percentage of them. All who are able doing what is reasonably possible without neglect of domestic concerns would serve the country admirably.

The senate at length got through with the food control bill and produced something the house will not stand for. Perhaps that was the idea.

"Fare, please! All the glad ones, and the sad ones; all the good ones, and the bad ones—get on here!"

DOG DAYS.

I'll sing a curious little song.
Perhaps you'll find it dull and dreary;
In truth, I drive the Muse along,
And often notice she is weary.
To sing of dog days I'll confess Requires a lot of nerve and notion;
Still, if you'll bear with me, I guess,
You'll save lost motion.

When Sirius upon the scene
Climbs upward with his constellation,
The other stars feel real mean,
And drive the world to consternation;
Poor mortals must, perforce, throw dais,
Or seek the heart-destroying places;
Freak baths allure, the mud and silt Preserve our graces.

The angry stars get jealous now
Of Sirius, who roars and blusters—
He stirs all heaven to a row
With hypochondriac-like flusters.
Throughout this time when flies abate,
Our beam refuse to let us swat them,
This heavenly bully drives us daft—
We know we've "got them."

Our cows—they give us buttermilk;
Our pigs break through our beds of tulips;
Our silk worms all refuse to silk,
We keep alive by mock mint juleps;
Just how we strive through heat and wet
Proves that our life's no bed of clover—
Well—let us sweat and swear and get These dog days over!

Food conservation is great business, but we personally know a great deal more about food conservation.

Dying for an ideal, according to our observation, is usually far easier than living with her.

Probably it would be just as well to let the suffragists of Washington act as censors—It would give them place without pain and importance without usefulness.

The optimist asks, "Hasn't it been nice and wet for us?" The pessimist queries, "Doesn't it beat all hell how the rain has killed the corn?" Temperament takes the high note; temper swears at it.

It is injudicious to lie until you have found out that the truth is unacceptable.

CHINA IS DONE WITH THE MONARCHY SAYS AMERICAN MISSIONARY LATELY HOME

By TYLER BENNETT.

Returned Missionary to China.

"You had you are leaving so soon," remarked a Chinese friend the day I left Peking early last month. We had just received news that the revolving military governors had set up their provisional monarchical government in Peking and were preparing the bombs with which they expected to blow up the young and feeble Chinese republic and thus clear the way for the restoration of the old monarchy.

"There is likely to be a good show here in a week or ten days," he continued. "I am already bidding for the moving picture privileges. We think we will stage the show down on Feng Tai flats and run special trains from Peking."

"How can you talk like this," I exclaimed, "when the fate of your country is trembling in the balance?" He smiled blandly, as orientals will, and assured me the situation was not serious. When I reached Tokio a week later, I learned from confidential sources the revolution was expected to be little more than an opera bouffe affair. More recent dispatches confirm this.

Yes, China has already tasted of republican government and likes it.

In the last four months I have been in ten provinces and have talked with hundreds of leading Chinese.

Although republican government was so new to China six years ago that a new word had to be invented and incorporated into their vocabulary to convey the idea, nevertheless these people with striking unanimity told me, "We shall never go back to the monarchy."

At length I went to an old gentleman, a foreigner, who has served China forty years in a government capacity.

"How does it happen," I asked, "that these Chinese who, until so recently, had lived under an absolute monarchy, are now so loyal to the republican government?"

"Well," he said, "there are many reasons. In the first place, the Chinese are naturally democratic and always have been so in spite of Peking."

"A more immediate reason is this—the missionaries. It was the American missionary who started China toward a republic."

When a man once gets into his head the idea of brotherhood, whether his skin is black, or white, red, or yellow, he stops kow-towing to monarchy.

When a man learns that he is a brother, autocracy gets onto the toboggan.

The Chinese Christians have led the fight in China for constitutional government. In the parliament recently adjourned in Peking, more than forty members were Christians, and C. T. Wong, the leader of the Kuo Ming Tong, and vice president of the senate, used to be general secretary of the Y. M. C. A.

I am well persuaded, after the most careful investigation, that my aged friend is correct. The American missionary, not intentionally, but, nevertheless, actually, brought republicanism to China.

Furthermore, I am just as sure that, in spite of the long struggle which lies before the new republic, China will never, never go back to autocracy or a Manchou monarchy.

that Ireland may soon be facing starvation. In these matters the kaiser has a way about him encountered nowhere else in history.

German couriers entered Norway, a friendly country, to plant explosives in Norwegian ships. German consuls kept account of the sailings of Norwegian vessels so that U-boats could be handy to meet and sink them. A secret wireless station was maintained on an island off the coast of Norway, and from this vantage a wide view of the sea was obtained, submarines signaled and neutral sailors sent to their death.

If Norway breaks off relations with Germany or goes farther and gets into the war, the Prussian press will fan at the mouth again and say that British money has bribed the statesmen of Norway, that Northcliffe has bought up the Norse press, that when all is said and done the Norwegians are a lot of swine and it becomes the duty of Germans to their German god to wipe this degenerate race off the face of the globe.

Save five or six nations, not one of the 21 now fighting Germany or carrying on no diplomatic exchanges with it was an enemy to begin with. Most of the world had nothing but admiration for the greatness of German achievements, nothing but liking toward the German people and friendliness toward their government. But the policy of Berlin would not permit the maintenance of friendliness in self-respecting capitals. It abused neutrality, it murdered neutrals. It sowed discord, practiced bribery, used the property of the impartial from which to operate against the enemy. In the case of Norway, it not simply preyed on Norwegian shipping but also used that country as a base for the purpose. Its own crimes have brought the world against Germany, not the persuasions or intrigues of the foe.

Baseball has lost its grip in this city.

Fort Wayne has more bicycle riders than any other city of its size in the Union.

Theodore Pyles, of 61 Grand street, was overcome by the heat yesterday and suffered a fatal sunstroke.

Joe O'Rourke has accepted a position in Belger & Lennon's restaurant. He will play ball with the Pilseners.

J. W. Lynch, night clerk at the Aldine, resigned yesterday and will go to his home in Lexington, Ky., which he has not visited for fourteen years.

O. N. Guidlin, superintendent of the Western Gas and Construction company, has applied for a patent on a new and improved water gas apparatus.

The fire commissioners met yesterday to look for a site upon which to erect the new central fire engine house. Seven different sites were examined.

Workmen are busily engaged in laying double street car tracks on Calhoun street. By this evening they will have been laid between Superior and Main streets.

The funeral of John P. Johnson, the man who was murdered Tuesday night, occurred this morning. About 200 people, most of whom were women, attended the service.

Yesterday an Arab girl, who was peddling some trinkets, called at the home of Mrs. Taylor Connell, on the south side, and tried to make a sale. While talking to Mrs. Connell the girl was attacked by a large and vicious dog. She was thrown to the ground, bleeding her wrist in the fall. The dog was then in the street.

planes, especially a standardized fast battle-plane.

By that time the aircraft production board plans to have developed a standardized type of engine, lighter and relatively more powerful than any foreign engine. Initial tests already made will be followed by rigid tests, on Pike's Peak, of the engine's efficiency under flying conditions of cold and rarified atmosphere.

As soon as these standard engines have proved their worth under these tests, the leading automobile factories with a yearly capacity of more than 100,000, will start work. Thus by the time the airplane factories are ready to assemble the high-speed types, engines of the finest quality will be ready.

A large part of the $639,000,000 will be spent on some twenty additional training fields and the maintenance of thousands of student aviators.

There are enormous difficulties ahead of the men responsible for the air service program. It will be new work for most of the factories, there are great problems in securing the quantities of special steel, spruce and linen needed, and there are knotty points in design and standardization.

But discounting the certain delays and mistakes, before next summer America's air service will have climbed from bottom place among the great nations almost, if not quite, to the very top.

THE LINE-UP ON GIRLS' DAY

The line-up will be four abreast on Girls' day, Wednesday, July 25. Girls, 10 years of age and under, should assemble on the tower side of the pavilion and face the depot, while those above 10 should line up on the river side and face the grove. Headed by the band, the parade will move to the grove band stand, where the new queen will be crowned by H. E. Williams, principal Toledo Junior High school, whom all the girls in Fort Wayne know. Two-thirds down the parade column, the American Fifteenth and Drum corps will lend its inspiring march step to the marching girls. It has been difficult to procure the extra quality clump dyed flags used in former years on account of the great demand made all over the United States upon the manufacturers. Only 1,200 flags have thus far been secured. Hundreds of girls in Fort Wayne have three or four flags procured in former years at Robison park. Every girl in the parade should carry the flag this year above all other years. Therefore, that none may be disappointed, Manager Williams would regard it as a mark of unselfishness and loyalty if the girls of Fort Wayne would bring their flags with them. Hundreds of girls have never been in the White Dress Parade and will enter this year for the first time, and Manager Williams wishes that these girls receive the 1,200 flags now on hand. If the day be pleasant and the sun smiles, two thousand girls will be in line this year.

Uncle Harry Explains the Peace and Revolution Rumors From Germany

"There's something about Germany that I wish you would explain to us, Uncle Harry," said Helen. "Be glad to, if I can," answered Uncle Harry. "But that's a pretty big order."

"Well, it's this," said Helen. "For weeks there have been dispatches and articles in the paper saying that there are rumors from Germany that the German people may rise in revolution and overthrow the kaiser and the imperial government. Why do people think that the war may end with a revolution in Germany?"

"I don't believe the people in Germany are thinking anything about starting a revolution; almost all the men are in the army and lots and lots of the women are working in the factories making munitions," said Joe.

"I'll answer your question in a minute, Helen," said Uncle Harry. "But first I must explain a few things to this young man."

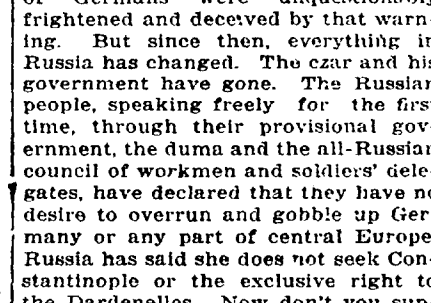

"Isn't that so, Uncle Harry?" asked Joe.

"Part of what you say is correct," explained Uncle Harry. "It is true that most of the men, and many boys of eighteen and nineteen in Germany are in the army, and it is also true that thousands of women are working in the munitions factories, but—"

Uncle Harry turned to Jimmy and said: "Jimmy, who was it started the revolution in Russia that overthrew the czar and the Russian imperial government?"

"The women who were starving, and the workmen in the factories and the soldiers," answered Jimmy. "And the reasons the soldiers joined with the workmen in the revolution were that they, that is, the soldiers, suspected that the czar and his ministers were not doing all they could to help the Russian people get food, and they suspected that the czar was not playing fair with them," explained Uncle Harry. "It is pretty generally known now that the czar's government did not furnish the Russian sol-liers with sufficient supplies, and what is more, the soldiers and workmen of Russia and their leaders believed that the czar or some of his representatives were trying to make a separate peace with Germany. In plain words, the soldiers did not think the czar was playing square with them."

"Do you think any of the German soldiers and workmen feel the same way toward the kaiser and the imperial government?" asked Joe.

"I haven't any doubt of it," said Uncle Harry. "And my reason for saying that is that a number of German citizens have been sent to jail and many newspapers have been suppressed by the government because they have tried to talk about these matters to the people of Germany or have demanded that the government make peace offers that the allies would probably accept."

"Do you think the German people are as loyal and patriotic to their government as they were at the be-

Home Budget is Needed to Cut Down Expenses

(BY BIDDY BYE.)
Housewives who have never considered their income as a whole and proportioned it carefully to the various needs of the family have now more than personal economy to think about for planning household expenditures is a patriotic service.

The business man who does not know the outgo of all departments of his "household" is well on the way to failure.

A careful study has been made of the budget for an income of $1,500 a year, which is representative of many American families. The usual designation of five individuals is considered to compose the family—husband, wife and three children under twelve years.

Of the $1,500 income the largest amount is allowed for food, 30 per cent; shelter gets 20 per cent; clothing 18 per cent; operating expenses, such as heat, light, gas, telephone, laundry, service, etc., 10 per cent; and amusements, vacations, insurance, sickness and all other expenses 22 per cent.

The allowance for food is $450 a year; $37.50 a month, less than $10 a week.

Having the monthly allowance before her, the housewife knows just what she has to count on and by a little calculation and observation she can figure on the food cost per day, per meal, or per individual. If she will go to the market herself every day, pay cash for her purchases and make a few minutes at her desk after marketing she will have no need of periodical reckonings like the visits of the public accountant in the business office.

Experts of the bureau of labor figure out of every $100 spent for food almost one-third goes for meat. They also claim most families rely for the mainstay of their diet on the most expensive foods, while the cheaper staples, just as high in food value, as beans, rice and cornmeal—are used sparingly.

So long as meat, fish and eggs, rather than the cheaper cereals and vegetables, predominate in the diet, food prices will continue to be a burden to all.

Taking Care of Germs is a Self Interest

(BY BIDDY BYE.)
We should not overlook the fact that the highest patriotism as well as self-interest demands we give our first thought to preparedness against disease attacks in our own homes and conservation of our own and our family's health. We should be particularly careful about the water we drink, as it composes 95 per cent of our bodies.

The day of idealizing the old oaken bucket is passed with the nursery rhyme and the fact that the water in the bucket is not pure is a fact that is not to be overlooked.

KEEPING MAID IN THE HOUSE TOO EXPENSIVE, SAYS WIFE OF THE NATION'S PLANT WIZARD

By JACK JUNGMEYER.

Santa Rosa, Cal., July 23.—"If you must keep a maid, don't have her live in the home. It's too expensive for both housewife and domestic, and is fair to neither."

This is the advice of Mrs. Luther Burbank, wife of the celebrated plant wizard, who believes she has solved many of the servant problem perplexities.

"To get the best class of help, and cheerful, efficient service," she said, in the first newspaper interview ever granted, "arrange a working day schedule such as most other employees have, and insist that the maid have her own lodgings."

"This arrangement takes women out of the servant class. Their feeling of independence rises in far greater satisfaction all around. They go home to their own life and interests every evening and return with renewed energy and interest in their tasks next morning."

"It pays in more ways than none. Wages in this case will have to be a little higher, but as a matter of fact it is in the end the cheaper course for the housewife."

"You serve the help but one meal a day. She takes care of her own laundry. You are not giving up a room to her. She is not, as in the other case, a boarder at your home. You are not distracted with her personal cares and sorrows, while the maid, on the other hand, has a period of real rest and relaxation."

"When working by the day, help doesn't feel imposed upon, no matter what the household tasks assigned, where otherwise many requests are resented as unwarranted. An undertow of disagreeable feeling and antagonism is thus avoided."

"I have followed this plan for a year and find it an ideal arrangement. I have one servant and she seldom works eight hours a day. The fact that I pay her a good wage wouldn't justify me in feeling that I owned all her time."

"No man or woman should own all of any other person's time. Each person should have his own home and social life and diversions."

"This is all the more essential since the average home is not constructed to accommodate servants. Consequently they are checked off into the basement or garret, in dark, miserable rooms which can not inspire cheerful, efficient work.

"And when you board a maid you are virtually compelling her to pay more for her food than she can afford, because your table is more expensive than her own would be, and you take the cost of these meals out of her wage. It isn't fair. It doesn't produce the best results."

The solution of the servant problem is an involved one, and it is not to be overlooked that the water in the bucket is not pure is a fact that is not to be overlooked.

To make perfectly sure your drinking water is sanitary, inquire if your city's waterworks are using chlorinated lime to purify all water running through the mains. More than 100 cities, including New York, are doing this. In your city, Mrs. Housewife, doing this?

Every housekeeper should have a box of this disinfectant, recommended and used by the United States government, always at hand. It should be used in the garbage can, in sinks and drain pipes, in bathrooms and cellars and refrigerators.

One authority says chlorinated lime is twenty-five times more effective as a germ killer than the usual application of carbolic acid and states one pound of chlorinated lime will disinfect thoroughly 8,000 gallons of sewage. It not only has no odor, but makes garbage cans, toilets and all other necessary waste receptacles odorless.

WHITE OF EGG GIVES BROWN GLAZE TO PIES

To attain the attractive brown glazing which the pastry chef's pies always have brush a bit of white of egg over the top crust before setting the pie in the oven to bake.

To prevent a fruit pie from having a soggy under crust brush the lower crust with white of egg before putting the fruit in.

Before baking either pies or cakes the oven should be heated and tested with a piece of white paper. Light both burners and place a piece of white paper on the shelf in the center of the oven. When the paper is a golden brown the oven is ready for the cake or pies.

A few minutes after starting the baking turn the gas down half way. It is better to turn both burners down than to turn one out completely, as the former method keeps the heat even throughout the oven.

DRIED FRUIT LOSES NONE OF ITS VALUE AS FOOD

The food value of dried fruit is about the same as that of fresh fruit, while that of canned fruit is often higher, owing to the addition of sugar. But the cost of drying food is considerably less owing to the cheapness of the containers required and the small amount of space needed for storage.

The dry product takes up one-tenth of the space of the wet vegetable in storage and weighs about one-twelfth as much. According to an expert, as much dried vegetable can be packed in a tin about the size of a pocket tobacco box as a quart of canned fresh vegetables will hold.

Properly dried or dehydrated vegetables will keep fifty years in any climate if sealed. Dried vegetables and fruits will supply the housewife all the year without the expense of the upkeep of a refrigerator in summer.

WHY GERMANS FOLLOW OUT ORDERS

Americans who take orders from nobody find it difficult to understand why a great and educated people like the Germans can eat, drink, dress themselves, walk, talk, sleep, get up and wash their faces according to the orders of one man, William Hohenzollern.

Americans can understand why the Germans should be for Germany. Why Germans should be for, not Germany, but the Kaiser is something that Americans can't get around.

Hardest of all to understand is why the German people can send their sons to hardship and death when the six sons of this one man, William Hohenzollern, some of them line officers, have not received a scratch in this terrible war.

In other words Americans do not know or understand German history, especially Prussian history, or how the house of Hohenzollern achieved its unique prestige and power over a great people.

There are historians who say that the Hohenzollerns have molded the German people to their will, changed the character of the race, and made it over, not German, but Hohenzollern.

To accomplish such a thing a family must produce remarkable men. Thus the story of the Hohenzollerns is worth reading.

First let these conditions be understood.

Wedge in between hostile countries, Sweden, France and Russia, often a battlefield for the wars of outside nations, as Belgium is today, tilling a rocky, sandy, boggy and unkind soil for a living, the German people had to work so hard that they had little time for thought of forming governments of their own.

Autocracies were the governments of the day. Liberty flourished only in England, which was free from invasion; in the inaccessible mountains of Switzerland and the Basque Mountains of Spain, where land was poor and undesirable. A democracy could not live in open Germany, surrounded by and at the mercy of autocracies. So being too busy working the Germans took the best government given them, an autocracy. And it must be said that the Hohenzollerns have been the best of autocrats.

Germany was open to invasion by autocrats. This explains why one branch of the German race went to England and founded a democratic system of government, which has since become world-wide; the Germans who remained in Germany had to submit to autocracy.

Hohenzollerns and Bourbons.

It may be asked why did not the Germans throw off the Hohenzollern yoke when the French got rid of the Bourbons? The answer is that the Hohenzollerns were much better, kinder and more capable autocrats, better governors than the Bourbons, and that they kept a great standing army to overawe people. Then Prussia was a small country, some 4,000,000 to the 20,000,000 of France and hence easier to overawe. The Prussians did not have the great grievances against the Hohenzollerns that the French had against the Bourbons. Also, the Hohenzollerns were stronger men than the French kings.

When it is understood that the Germans of Roman times were the most liberty-loving people in the world, free as air, that a branch of the German race founded the great democracies of the world, the subjection of the German people to the house of Hohenzollern becomes all the more remarkable.

The Germans of the times of Caesar, about 50 B. C., were the very opposite of the Germans of today. They lived in forests, each man was a law unto himself. The only chiefs, leaders or kings they acknowledged were in wartime. In peace the individual German was as free as the American pioneer. He cherished that freedom. He acknowledged no chief but himself.

Those who know the Germans of today will see how utterly different the present-day Teuton is to his ancestor. The Germans are now hard workers, great agriculturists, community dwellers, governed by orders in every action.

This tremendous ethical change has been due in no small part to the labors of one powerful family—the house of Hohenzollern.

Good Business Men.

Speaking broadly, the men of the house of Hohenzollern have been good business men, far-seeing, hard-headed and almighty hustlers. They have been far-seeing men, fellows who, having come into possession of a few square miles of swamp and bog in Brandenburg, labored incessantly to increase their possessions and, according to their view of it, increase the possessions and prosperity of their people.

The Hohenzollerns are akin to the American farmer who is always coveting the "next eighty acres," and who works hard until his lands grow from an original quarter section, 160 acres, to half or maybe an entire county. Very often these thrifty farmers are fine agriculturists. They get out of the ground what they can and treat the ground right. So they hate to see shiftless and thriftless "houn' dog" farmers owning land about them. It is easy, too, for these men to feel that a man who does not get all the land is capable of producing should not own a farm.

So it has been with the Hohenzollerns.

KAISER, KAISERIN and GRANDCHILDREN

They have been great developers. They coveted their neighbor's goods, 'tis true, but very often the neighbor, in their point of view, was a bad farmer, who was not worthy of owning good land.

This trait crops out in the seizure of Belgium and Serbia.

It is the great characteristic of the Hohenzollerns. They have been good husbandmen. They have craved land. Sometimes they bought it for cash. Sometimes they fabricated what, in their minds, were perfectly good titles to land and made good these titles with the sword. But always the Hohenzollerns tried, first, the easiest methods. If they could buy at a fair price, and had the money, they bought. If they could marry into fair provinces they married into them. If they could lay claim to other provinces or counties or pieces of land or cities, by way of legacy, they laid such claims. Last of all, when they could attain their ends by no other means, they just went out and "jumped" by force the other fellow's claim.

Disliked to Fight.

Many people have an idea that the Hohenzollerns have always been freebooters, men who robbed for the fun and excitement of robbing. Nothing can be farther from the facts in the case. The Hohenzollerns have always been business men, robbers, if you will, but they have never acted precipitately or without full consideration, and, above all, without full preparation. They disliked to fight, but when they made up their minds that they had to fight to gain their ends they fought just as William II. is fighting, after full preparation, with the utmost consideration and with a terrific first punch. The Hohenzollerns have always been slow to hit, but when they hit they hit hard.

Nothing in all the history of this famous and, in many wise, great family is so indicative of its character as was the manner in which it prepared for and started the present war. In so much as William II. has been thoroughly trained in the practices and traditions of his house this was but natural and to be expected.

The first Hohenzollern with whom history has to deal was born of a family that lived in a castle of Hohenzollern in the Subian Mountains. The name means Hohen, high; zollern, toll, and fully sets forth the very soul of the family. The first man to get the name of Hohenzollern got a patent from the constituted authorities of the time to collect toll on roads running through his property. He made his roads so good that people chose to use them in preference to shorter but less well-kept roads. Then he raised the toll charges. Hence Hohenzollern, "high toll."

This passion for improvement which marked the founder of the fortunes of the family is the passion which marks the Germans of today, the passion for improvement of property and the extension of that property. The famous Berlin-to-Bagdad railroad is the lineal descendant of the Subian turnpike built 800 years before.

The "Hustling Kids."

The Hohenzollerns date from the eleventh century. They were first counts, then burgraves. Owning an original small property, prudent marriages and purchases made their holdings very considerable. Their prudent councils make them men of mark. The first of them to count for much was Frederick, the sixth burgrave of Nuremberg. To him Emperor Sigismund gave the mark or march of Brandenburg. Then, for our purpose, the history of the Hohenzollerns begins. It was not much of a gift. Brandenburg was mostly swamp and bog, inhabited by some 200,000 wild and warlike people. It was something like giving a man the Everglades of Florida filled with Seminole Indians. Only the climate was not good, like that of Florida. Probably few people would have accepted the gift.

Frederick was a hustler. He accepted with thanks and set to work to make Brandenburg a country. He pacified the people as best he could, set them to work, drained the bog and, sticking to his trade, made roads. He did not accomplish very much, but he set the wild swamp dwellers of Brandenburg to work and to make farms of bogs and of swamps and to build roads.

And since that time the house of Hohenzollern has been making its people drain bogs, make farms and build roads. Later came great factories and railroads and steamship lines, but the Berlin-to-Bagdad railroad is merely an offshoot of the Subian toll road.

Right there, in Brandenburg, started the paternalism of the Hohenzollerns. They were farmers, millers, road builders. The original inhabitants of the mark were little better than wild Indians, hunters, fishermen, robbers. Frederick could not see that sort of thing. So he set to telling his people just what to do. The Hohenzollerns have been telling their people what to do ever since.

For some 200 years after Conrad, his descendants kept on the work. They did not fight much, for Brandenburg was a weak province between strong provinces. But by 1400 they had Brandenburg in pretty good shape, cultivated, roads built, mills, and people all working hard.

Then came the thirty years' war, which almost exterminated the German people. Brandenburg and Prussia had nothing to do with the war. It broke out first between Sweden and Austria and was renewed from time to time by other principalities. Brandenburg was the Belgium of that war. The Austrian and Swedish armies overran the country and fought over every inch of the drained bogs and good roads that the Hohenzollerns and their people had reclaimed and built by 200 years of toil.

Brandenburg and Prussia were what Northern France will be when they get through fighting the thirty years' war. It was a ruined country. Then came the man whom William II. has so often stated was his model—the Great Elector, Frederick William Hohenzollern, born at Nuremberg.

When the Great Elector came into office he found Brandenburg a wilderness. He could not revive the dead nor reconstruct the destroyed. So he started all over again.

The Kaiser's Model.

The states which acknowledged the rule of the Hohenzollerns were scattered through Northern Germany. There were old and new marks of Brandenburg, the dukedom of Prussia and several towns and small properties dispersed among the states of other princes. Indeed, until the time of Frederick the Great, the grandson of the Great Elector, the elector of Brandenburg had to solicit permission from other princes to cross their states when he wished to visit parts of his own territory.

The Great Elector, in so far as was possible, set his decimated people to work, refilled the farms, rebuilt the roads and cemented his scattered possessions to the best of his ability. He did a wonderful work. He found Brandenburg a waste. When he died it was a powerful state. He was the first of the Hohenzollerns to start out on the theory that Brandenburg and Prussia should not be dependent upon Austria or upon the German Empire of which Austria was the head.

He was a great man, the Great Elector, and in many wise his descendant, William II. resembles the ancestor, whom he has often said, he has taken as his model. The Great Elector was brave but always disliked to fight. He was witty as a fox, haughty as a god; yet, when it suited his turn, he could cringe and fawn like a dog. He was impatient of opposition, yet bore with it. He did many cruel things, even had his own minister tortured, yet he was an affectionate husband and father and a wise, paternal ruler. Historians have been puzzled by the character of the Great Elector and have often enlarged on his faults while forgetting his virtues. It must be remembered that he found his country ruined and his people destroyed by a war that they had no part in creating. He left his country strong and his people, relatively speaking, prosperous.

Here again it is easy to see how the ancient German, so individualistic and so free, came under the rule of the autocrat. Germany had been almost destroyed by the thirty years' war. The strong men, the leaders in battle and in Parliament had either died or been killed. Only women, children and weak and weakened men prevailed.

The Great Elector took these war-wrecked men and women and made them strong and prosperous. It is not to be marveled therefore that the autocrat obtained a tremendous prestige among the German people. As freemen they had been destroyed. Governed by a benevolent despot they had prospered.

Some historians say that had this great historical figure not appeared when he did Germany would have disappeared from the map of Europe, that France, Sweden, then a first-class power, and Russia would possess the lands now known as Germany and also those of Austria-Hungary and Bohemia.

The Great Elector did a wonderful work outside of Brandenburg and Prussia. He was the man who gave German troops their first prestige. He built a fleet. His support placed William of Orange on the throne of England. He welcomed the Huguenots when France threw them out. To these Huguenots Germany owes her present pre-eminence in trade. Prior to the advent of these French artisans Germany had practically no craftsmanship.

The Great Elector was succeeded by his son Frederick, who tried only to emulate the kings of France in spending money. Then came Frederick Wilhelm, who became the first king of Prussia. It should be remembered that in all this hard work the German emperor, who was then king of Austria, was the big man in Germany. But Frederick Wilhelm laid the emperor under such obligations that, after much fussing, he was allowed to assume the title, not king of Prussia, but of king "in Prussia."

It was quite a boost for the Hohenzollerns, who had been electors and dukes to become kings. Frederick Wilhelm made the most of it. He was the chief farmer, the chief husbandman, the great farm and factory foreman, the price and cost man of the family. He was a sour, crabbed, mean, hard-drinking, hard-working, old chap, but he kept up the good work for the family. He paid especial attention to the army, and under his hand the Prussian infantry came to be known as the best in Europe.

The Original Drillmaster.

Frederick Wilhelm was the original Prussian drillmaster. To his right-hand man, the duke of Anhalt-Dessau, is given credit for being the one to introduce modern drill into armies. Frederick Wilhelm was the first German militarist. He kept a great standing army and instituted the famous Potsdam Guards, made up of giants obtained from all parts of the world. Penurious to a degree, Frederick Wilhelm would spend untold sums for a tall man. It is recorded that he paid $325,000 for an Irishman named Corbett who was some 8 feet tall and the biggest man in the famous guards.

Frederick was so penurious that he would not clothe himself or feed his family decently, but he would spend great sums on the army. He was his own auditor and would betide any defaulter. He collected taxes with an iron hand, but he spent the money honestly. He kept the people working hard, improving farms and stock and building roads. Frederick worked like a horse himself and he insisted that all Prussia work with him. He even issued an order that the old women who kept fruit stands in Berlin should knit when they were not waiting on customers.

A Rare Husbandman.

He was a clever old rascal and improved the country greatly. When the South German states expelled their Protestant artisans Frederick Wilhelm sent the emigrants and took them to East Prussia, which had been devastated during the thirty years' war. He issued farm loans to the impoverished emigrants and established them in trades and occupations. So from a desert he made East Prussia the richest province in his possession. Frederick Wilhelm was a man of intense passions and could be cruel to a degree. Historians say that at one time he wanted a court-martial to have his son and heir, Frederick II. (the Great), executed for desertion. He had treated the boy with such severity that the youth tried to escape to France. The court-martial managed to avoid the issue and refused to find Frederick guilty. But the young officer who befriended the prince, Lieut. Katte, was captured, and Frederick was compelled to witness the execution of his dearest friend.

He was a bitter old rascal, was Frederick Wilhelm, but he was a rare husbandman. He made his people work and cultivate the soil, build the roads, drill and practice craftsmanship. He ruled personally and with an iron hand. He told the Prussians what they should wear and how and when to wear it, what to eat and when to eat it, but he enriched his people and left them stronger than when he came to rule over them.

Cut to pieces and ground down by the Swedish and Austrian armies, the subjugated Prussian peoples found comparative peace, rest and profit under the hard autorratic rule of the Hohenzollerns. They might tell a farmer how to breed his cow and how to milk her and when to wean her calf. All of which is too much government for free Americans. But, to a people coming out of the thirty years' war, the fact that they could drink their own milk and eat their own beef and vegetables, instead of having them consumed by foreign armies, the rule of the Hohenzollerns was like the rule of heaven.

Here again we get a glimpse of how the Hohenzollerns further secured their remarkable ascendancy over the originally wild, free, independent, individualistic German people. Frederick the Great, son of Frederick Wilhelm I., kept up the farming, reclamation, roadmaking and craftsmanship of the family. He disbanded the famous Potsdam Giants, but kept up and improved the great Prussian infantry. Prussia had become a great state, for the reason that it could furnish anywhere from 20,000 to 100,000 first-class troops to Austria, Saxony, Poland, France or any other country that needed help. Therefore all these countries courted Prussia.

It is doubtful that Frederick the Great was at all so great a man as his father, and he certainly was not at all so great a man as his great-grandfather, the Great Elector. These two laid the foundation of success for the so-called great warrior, Frederick the Great.

Frederick Admitted Mistakes.

Frederick was a great soldier, though he ran away from the Austrians in his first battle, Mollwitz, which was won by his Prussian infantry after his flight. He wrote of himself that no general ever made more mistakes than he did. He won great victories and he was not particular about his methods in war or in peace. Though the Hohenzollerns have the name of being war-like princes, Frederick the Great is really the only warrior of the house. The Great Elector was a great soldier, but he fought only when he saw he could win. But he started the system that left the men and means to Frederick the Great.

Frederick the Great's most notable work for Prussia was done when he organized the Fürstentum, a convocation of German princes opposed to Austrian preponderance in the empire. It was Frederick the Great that laid the foundation in this Fürstentum of the work that Bismarck set the crown, the subjection of Austria and the elevation of Prussia to first place among the German states.

He also abolished serfdom and corporal punishment within his domains. The great blot on his name was the partition of Poland, which took place during his reign. The Empress Catherine II. of Russia, a German princess, was the chief mover in this iniquitous act, but Frederick was a willing participant therein.

Frederick William II., one of the few weak Hohenzollerns, succeeded his uncle, Frederick the Great. This prince was given to wine, women and song, for which indeed few members of his family fell. He started the ill feeling between Prussia and Russia, countries which had been friends to that time, when he sent the duke of Brunswick, with 45,000 Prussians and 65,000 Austrians, to put down the French revolution and establish Louis XV. on the French throne. The French defeated and destroyed the invaders, and the bitter animosity between the countries was born.

Frederick William II. did this simply to aid a brother monarch, something that the Great Elector or Frederick William I. never would have done. Unless these princes could see advantages for Prussia in a war, that war did not take place.

Prussia fell low under his successor, Frederick William III. This prince ruled when Napoleon overran Europe and almost destroyed Prussia at Jena. These two Frederick Williams, the second and third, were the weak princes of Hohenzollern. However, Frederick William III. was not all weak. When beaten by Napoleon he took heart and helped Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Von Stein proceed to rebuild the shattered state.

No Modern Army.

It may be said here that Scharnhorst, who founded the modern German army, was a Hanoverian. It was Scharnhorst who not only gave Germany its modern army, but also started the philosophy of war which Gneisenau, Clausewitz, Treitschke and Bernhardi brought to its present culmination. Scharnhorst trained Gneisenau, who trained Clausewitz, who trained Von Moltke, who trained Hindenburg, Von Falkenhayn and Ludendorff, the leaders of the German armies of today. Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Von Stein were the men who fooled Napoleon, who refused to let Prussia maintain more than 12,000 men under arms. By taking up and training 12,000 men as rapidly as possible then sending them back to their civil occupations and taking up another 12,000, Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Von Stein managed to have 100,000 trained men to finish Napoleon in 1813 and again in 1815. Singularly enough, none of the three were Prussians. Scharnhorst was a Hanoverian, Gneisenau of Austrian descent, while Von Stein was from Nassau. Of the three, too, Von Stein was the only one of noble birth.

Frederick William III. was not all bad. He had his good points, but he was not a true "get along" Hohenzollern.

He was succeeded by his son, Frederick William IV., an easy-going king. This young man was liberal and favored a limited monarchy to a great extent than any other Hohenzollern. He helped his people along. Under him came the abortive revolution of 1848, crushed by the standing army of Prussia.

After Frederick IV. came Frederick William Louis, grandfather of William II. Bismarck and the modern German state, the history of which is so recent that it does not need even brief recapitulation here.

BOWSER RED CROSS FETE.

Event at Reservoir Park Pleasant and Well Attended.

Notwithstanding the several other attractions in the city last night, the Bowler Red Cross fete at Reservoir park for the volunteer fire company of S. F.
Bowser & Company was well attended and proved to be a most entertaining feature. The fire ladders attended the festival in uniform and the attendants at the tables were members of the Bowser Red Cross society. A band concert was also an interesting and much enjoyed feature, while hundreds of red, white and blue lights artist-ically placed in trees and elsewhere threw a patriotic light over the scene.

American flags and bunting were also in evidence everywhere.

ALFRED H. MEYERS

SEVERELY BURNED

Exploding Oil Pipe Sends a Cloud of Flame About His Head.

A. H. Meyers, tinner helper at the Pennsylvania shops, sustained most painful burns on the face, neck and head at 5:30 o'clock last night, when an exploding cylinder port pipe sent a sheet of flame about him. The accident happened in the pipe-fitting department and was due, it is said, to the oil pipe becoming clogged up while one of the shopmen was taking it out of the cylinder. Mr. Meyers was hurried to the Lutheran hospital, where he received attention from Dr.
VanSweringen, the company's surgeon.
At first it was feared his eyes might be permanently injured, but thorough examination developed the fact that they were not seriously injured.

MAY SUBMIT TO OPERATION.

Walter Niemeyer, clerk for Foreman Frank A. Opatz, of the Pennsylvania blacksmith shop, is under the care of Drs. H. A. Duemling and E. A. Crull, at the Lutheran hospital, where an X-ray was taken today to determine the character of his ailment. It is either gallstones or appendicitis, the physicians say, and an operation may be necessary. Mr. Niemeyer was similarly attacked several months ago, but recovered apparently. The malady has returned with increased severity.

celled. This was a disappointment to Manager Brinker, but he states that he will be able to engage another than was the bonus for the first half of the present year. It is said that 648 employees will come in for share of the bonus.

EYE PAINFULLY HURT.

Paul R. Sarver, a grinder at the Pennsylvania machine shop, sustained a painful injury when a spark from an emery wheel on which he was sharpening a tool lodged in one of his eyes. The sight is not permanently injured.

(Special to The Sentinel.)
Antwerp, O., July 21.—After a lingering illness of several months, Mrs.
J. A. Cromley departed this life at the home of her mother, Mrs. Frank Olmstead, at Hicksville, O., Wednesday at 2 a. m. Mrs. Cromley contracted a cold some time after the birth of a baby daughter, and tuberculosis set in and the best medical aid was unable to check the disease. The little daughter preceded her to the great beyond
June 5, where they are now reunited.
Mrs. Cromley was of a lovely disposition, and was regarded with high esteem by a large circle of friends here, especially among the younger set, who were greatly grieved by her death. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, from which place her funeral was held Friday at 2:30 p. m., her pastor, Rev. George B. Sessions, officiating. Interment in Maumee cemetery. The grieving husband has the deep sympathy of all in his bereavement.

up their quarters at the state armory report is current that the boys will go to Montgomery, Ala.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE TEACHER ENGAGED

Miss Gertrude Wiley Will Succeed Miss Spafford at Columbia City.

Columbia City, Ind., July 21.—Tentative plans are now being considered by the city school officials to vocationalize two departments of the curriculum and extend it materially. Miss Gertrude Wiley, who has had ten years' experience at Whiteland, Ind., will succeed Miss Spafford, gone to Red Cross service, in the domestic science or home economics department. She will arrive here August 1st to inaugurate a canning campaign in the community. The school board has purchased a steam pressure canning outfit for this purpose. The board also will probably co-operate with the county board and the county agent, B. L. Hummel, in getting an instructor here in vocational agriculture, who will work under the direction of Z. M. Smith, head of vocational agriculture in the state. This instructor will spend a half day with his linger and Mr. and Mrs. John Kepler.

The machine, part of the funeral procession of the late Daniel Gardner, upset when the steering device became locked at a curve in the road.
The distressed party was soon released from the machine and Mrs. Bollinger was taken to a physician at Huntington, where her injuries were dressed before she was brought to her home at South Whitley.

Johnson Arrested.

Town Marshal Isaac Davis, of Churubusco, received a telephonic message Thursday evening from authorities at Bay City, Mich., stating they held a man answering the description of cards mailed out by Churubusco citizens offering $1,000 reward for the capture of Jack Johnson, alias Nolan and Kelly, who, on the night of May brutally assaulted his employer, Art Bonward, Churubusco barber, who befriended Johnson by allowing him to sleep in his home, where the assault occurred late at night. Johnson took diamonds and money worth over $300. A Anderson, well known restaurant proprietor of Churubusco, who knows Johnson, went to Bay City Friday to identify the man held there, and in case he is

AN ARMY OF DEMOCRACY.

It is to be in all aspects an army of democracy. The principle of it is fundamentally democratic. The method of creating it is democratic. The government had said to all its young men of that age best fitted for service, "You must serve." In thorough equality of chance all were submitted to the process by which the lot of each was determined. From beginning to end, so far as conscription has gone, nothing could have been more just or fair in its bearing upon all under liability. Some will complain, but their numbers will not be great. Others will shirk and if they can, evade, but they will be few. A great many will be exempted because for some one of a great variety of reasons they ought not to be in the army, but that will be either a measure of justice to them or a consideration of the government's vital needs in other fields than of the battle.

The first army only will be brought at this time to the colors under the law of selection after the regiments of the regular establishment and of the national guards have been filled to war strength. The expectation is and the probability appears that ere many months another great army will be needed and other hundreds of thousands of young men will come forward in the order of their numbers as decided by fair lot. Ten millions are registered. Each of these has an exactly determined place in the lists of those liable to service. He is known, has an identity, and is subject to call whenever needed. Some who may be set aside in the making up of these first levies will be called when later armies are required. No one can say what the necessities of the nation are going to be and under what stress they will at length place the government for fighting men.

But there they are—ten millions of them—registered for service and answerable when needed. That is democracy. There can be no other plan of national defense more democratic save that which in good course will follow the step now proceeding. Universal training and service established even at the outbreak of the European war—the necessity of which a few of the more far-sighted then preached and which all now can see—would have this nation today in thorough state for defense upon the most democratic principle of military service any nation can establish.

The country has approximated that principle as closely as the emergencies of this crisis have made possible. The need is for armies at once and the best of the nation's manhood has been called to uphold the authority, the rights and the dignity of their government. The first essay of the government to apply real democracy to its military arm has been impressive. It has been successful. It has been so far carried on without hitch or disorder, without resistance and without confusion.

The young men who rally to the colors under the conscription law go full of honors and with loud acclaim of the people of the nation. They exemplify and exalt a new and bright aspect of democracy in the United States of America.

ALL WORKING TOGETHER.

General Goethals and Chairman Denman in the province of shipping and a few members of the senate in the uplifted fields they so highly ornament are working cheerfully together to aid this country to get licked.

We know and all know that neither General Goethals nor Chairman Denman has any purpose of the sort in mind, but are actuated in what they do by the best intentions. There is an undesirable country that is reputed to be paved with good intentions, which is a great metaphorical truth. The trouble with the pair of them seems to be that each fancies that the job of building ocean tonnage faster than William's energetic U-boats can destroy it devolves wholly upon himself, whereas there is quite a contrary state of affairs. General Goethals was chosen to give executive direction to this work because on the Panama canal he proved himself an amazing genius for getting things done. Chairman Denman was put in the place he occupies because he knows about ship-building. General Goethals very probably knows a lot less about ships and ship-building than about some other things.

It would appear that these two estimable gentlemen, each great in his field and anxious to serve the country, might somehow dispose of their differences and permit the building of ships to be put under way and pressed with all the energy that both of them can put into the job. No one questions their patriotism; a good many are questioning their good sense.

On both counts some of those obstructionists, critics and carpers in the senate of the United States come in for utter condemnation. Their patriotism is questioned and their good sense has deserted them. There are a few of them whose names are fast becoming abomination in the land and the day is not far off when the voice of the people will be lifted loud and angrily against them. It is a sorrow to behold General Goethals and Chairman Denman in any way assisting these senators to get the country a licking.

The first man drawn for conscript service might make a bid for more than local fame if he were not quite so numerous. A few less than five thousand of him make the difficulties of creating an interesting movie of all he may henceforth do insuperable. And then some of him here and there is quite likely to claim exemption, which itself will add something to the emphasis of the distinction.

The favorite indoor sport at Indianapolis appears to be the indictment of municipal officials of that flourishing city. The batting average of them is 1,000, for those who haven't been the subject of true bills are made up for by others who have been lariatied twice or oftener.

The man who was worried because he didn't know and has now found out, ought to be relieved in mind if not made cheerful in spirit. Of course there are some disappointments—but everybody cannot get into the first army.

What Delay is Costing

BY HARRY B. HUNT.

The waste of thousands of tons of perishable foodstuffs—fruits and vegetables—through failure to provide a free channel from farm to city housewife, will be one of the immediate results of congress' food bill delay.

One of the country's greatest garden truck and fruit crops is now ready for harvest. The necessity for foodstuff saving is greater than ever before. But producer and consumer are still held apart by obstructive middlemen and commission brokers. These interests, to multiply their own profits, keep prices down to the farmer, discouraging his efforts to move his crop to market, and shoot prices up to the housewife. The result is she will not buy in quantity and persevere for next winter, but will purchase only for day-to-day use.

In an eleventh hour attempt to meet this situation the department of agriculture is planning a campaign among farmers and producers. It will help, but not save the situation.

Following a conference with big canners and food packers, Secretary Houston is laboring to get farmers to preserve, can and dry perishables for their own use.

This campaign plans no effort to get the city housewife these perishables at prices where she, too, may lay up her winter supply. She is to be left, as usual, dependant upon the big commercial canners.

Also, the average farm housewife always does put up sufficient fruits and vegetables for her own use, unless sugar and cans are impossibly high.

This situation well illustrates the difference between the department of agriculture viewpoint and that of Herbert Hoover.

Hoover would sweep away the obstacles that keep prices high to the city housewife and on the other hand, would maintain such prices to the producer that he could not afford to let his crop rot on the ground, which he often does now.

This he could accomplish, if congress would only grant the power the president has asked, by regulating distribution, forcing proper transportation and controlling marketing conditions.

Already the southern perishable crop is largely harvested. There has been much waste and loss, but northern prices have remained sky-high.

The harvest of perishables in the twenty-four north central states is just beginning. The maximum conservation can be met only by a control that will see that every city housewife, as well as every farmer's wife, has a chance to stock her pantry shelves against next winter.

This Herbert Hoover would like to do. Congress has prevented him.

FOOD ECONOMY.

(Chicago Tribune.)

Though we have a bumper crop of grain and potatoes this year we shall have to be careful to avoid waste to insure an adequate supply for ourselves and our neighbors. Even taking the crop forecasts of the department of agriculture at their face value, we cannot escape a serious food shortage unless we adopt rigorous methods of conservation.

But a writer in the Manufacturers' Record asserts we need not expect even an average crop production, to say nothing of a bumper harvest. He deplores the optimistic forecast of the department of agriculture, declaring the apparent showing of a big yield was obtained by comparing this year's production with that of 1916—a famine year.

By comparing the indicated yield of wheat, corn, oats and rye of the present year with the production of 1915 he arrives at the conclusion there will be a shortage of 327,525,000 bushels. The 1917 forecast indicates a yield of 678,000,000 bushels of wheat and 3,214,000,000 bushels of corn, as against 1,025,891,000 bushels of wheat in 1915 and 2,904,733,000 bushels of corn. The gain in corn this year is offset by shortage in other cereals.

It is obvious that greater drains upon our resources will be made this year than ever before. The foregoing analysis at least suggests for our thought and action the necessity for the most stringent food economy therefore becomes all the more urgent.

SONNET—"A PRAYER FOR PURITY."

O vastly more of Thee, sweet Christ, and less
Of sin that stains its crimson on the heart
And dulls the eyes of light! Do Thou impart,
O Father, grace to smooth away impress
Of shame, that fade before Thy righteousness—
The Gift to paint away those blot that start
Like lurid shadows from a canvased art
Seen in some studio of wickedness!

O Lord, as when the Tyrian dyer found
The blue that outshone every other blue,
Help us to win the crown and chrism hue
That seraphs on their gail-bright heads have bound—
Then shall we walk by Galilean lake,
And know what cleanses us for Jesus' sake.

Remosophy.

If you will keep company with rich people don't be too proud to accept the gratuities they offer.
The only place ambition should have in the general scheme of things is the dictionary—and it ought to be marked obsolete even in there.

Try being good to everybody—there are lots of folks who will not answer back.
People who show best by borrowed light may be dead ones even though they are not dead suns.

We ask for a small portion of the kaiser's American holdings when his property is confiscated by the state.
Bernstorff has been such a slimy crook that it is easy to see why Germany wishes to honor him.

Why conceal the fact—the German soldiers are the king brutes of history and ought to be treated accordingly.

Not Lethargy—Perhaps.

"The hall was opened last Sunday week when Rev. D. V. Williams, of the First M. E. church, called the attention of his audience to the seemingly lethargy they were in, and that if half of the accusations that were being charged to Redkey were true, it was high time to act."

—Redkey (Ind.) Times
Our private opinion, brother, is that in "lethargy" it is always "high time to act." But think of it in a church!

Passport to Patriotism.

Our Most Trivial Thought.

WHEN IT DOESN'T RAIN JUST EVERY DAY,
THE SUN IS VERY HOT;
AND WHEN IT'S ONE WAY THEN WE WISH
MOST LIKELY IT WERE NOT!

Brad's Not Up Optically.

Men clearing brush for Joe Burr, at Alloway, N. J., complained of finding glass in the fried potatoes prepared by Joe's cook. Says Joe: "Come to find out the cook wore bifocal specs and the heat from the cook stove had loosened them—and they dropped in the potatoes—I bought her a pair of goggles."

We've heard of glass eyes, and other things
Too, dropping in tomatoes,
But that can't hold a candle to Bifocals in potatoes;
To sum the situation, Joe,
When cooking spuds for yokels,
If spectacles, the cook must wear—
Be sure they're NOT bifocals.

—Braford in Fidia, North American.

Most cooks wear goo-goo eyes, dear Joe,
As we now pipe to Bradford;
And some cook fast, and some cook slow,
And some cook very sad, lord!

So we'd suggest for those who cook
For you, me, and Miranda,
They wear what we do—have a look!

They're KRYTOKS, and they're dandy!
(All opticians and optometrists kindly give us baksheesh! Also admit that our taste is of the best!)

Extracts from Solomon's Diary.

..... Saw a peach today. Yum—yum! Skin like warm baked clay. Eyes all green and hazel brown. Hair—the kind a night-bird gets his wings tangled up in. Ears made for a wise man's beard to tickle. Lips like a turned rosebud. Breath—perfumed jasmine. Chin curved like a lotus-bud.
Feet—exquisitely small and perfect. A kinkie trim and—

"Upon What Meat Doth This Our Caesar Feed?"

Anthrax, writing from the lake mista, seems tired of life. Says he: "I haven't caught a dinged thing here but a cold. I don't see why I didn't wait till next year for my vacation. You can't get fish enough here to live on, so I'm taking to Hindenburg's diet. Did you hear of it?"
"What do you think of old von Hindenburg's

Flat Irons and Beets, Flat Irons and Beets!
On Charlotte Russe Willie Pimple exists;
(Look at his neck! Look at his Plets!)
Lemons, eats old Mrs. Vinegarcel!
(Caustic old besom, and thin as a pest!)
Let's eat the things that von Hindenburg eats—
Flat Irons and Beets! Flat Irons and Beets!

Our Daily Tip to the Kaiser.

WILLIAM, SPEAKING TO YOU AS YOUR PHYSICIAN, WE MAY SAY THAT YOU ARE NOTHING BUT A SPOCK OF GANGRENE ON THE FACE OF THE EARTH, AND YOUR UNCLE SAMUEL INTENDS TO REMOVE YOU.

Old, But True.

"I saw him kiss your cheek!" "Tis true."
"O modesty!" "Twas strictly kept;
He thought me asleep; at least I knew He thought I thought he thought I slept."
—Coventry Patmore.

Farm Hint.

"Do not let the little pigs hang over a high trough."
Certainly not. They should be coaxed to hang over a brisk fire. There is nothing like training
the young.

Sketches from Life :::: By Temple

(Christian Science Monitor.)

There is a genuine note of encouragement in the information that the ways have actually been laid for, and that construction has actually begun on, ten vessels of the great fleet of ocean freighters, steel and wooden,
provided for in the war budget recently passed by the United States congress.
These ten vessels are to cost, altogether,
only $3,000,000 of the $750,000,000 appropriated to pay for the building of the new United States merchant marine. They are of the standardized type of wooden vessel, intended to be put together with all the expedition that good workmanship will allow, the main point in view being to overcome and render negligible the activities of the German submarine. It is a fair example of the efficiency that characterizes industrial methods in the United States, that, just as soon as congress enacted the necessary legislation, and the shipping board and General Goethals were ready to proceed from controvery to shipbuilding, the Foundation company was prepared, not only to design contracts for building its allotment of vessels, but to lay the keels, connect the ribs, and develop the skeleton of these craft, in its yards on the salt meadows along the Passaic river, between Newark and Jersey City. All delays ended with the debates in congress and the controversy over the relative merits of steel and wooden ships.

Each wooden vessel is to be of 3,000 tons burden, and, as already said, of standardized design and construction.
Thus, there will be duplication of parts, and the vessels, making allowance for the difference in size, can be put together as rapidly as railway freight cars, or a popular make of automobiles. The wooden ships will all look alike, when ready for commission.
Neither art nor aestheticism is considered in their construction. They are needed only to carry supplies to the allied countries. The principal thing is to get them afloat, and the next point of importance is to get enough
of them, and get them quickly. Since the ton ships in question may be regarded as the initial unit of the mammoth merchant fleet which the United States is going to float, primarily that the allied nations may be relieved of all menace of food shortage, what Franklin Remington, of the Foundation company, has to say regarding plans for carrying on the work should have profound interest for anxious people over a large part of the world, for what this company has planned, and what it accomplishes, may be taken as a fair indication of what may reasonably be expected of all the other corporations soon to be engaged in similar work. Said Mr. Remington a few days ago: "Hundreds of shipwrights,
carpenters, caulkers, and other mechanics, drawn from the Foundation company's construction force of 15,000
men, will be brought to the plant.
Many have arrived. And the ways at the bend of the Passaic, west of the company's regular yards, are being rushed to completion. Deliveries are to be fifteen days apart, until the ten ships are completed. All timber, machinery and material necessary for the big task are to be given precedence
over other less important shipments
by the central rail board, now operating the railroads of the country in harmony. Fourteen mills in the south and southwest will turn out the timber, which will be yellow pine, and deliveries are to be no longer than two weeks in transit from mill to yard."

This statement will go far toward explaining why the public has been so impatient in the matter of getting the war preliminaries out of political hands, away from parliamentary obstruction, free from official controversy and red tape, and safely lodged in the embrace of organized American industry. Organized American industry, being a human invention and achievement, is far from being perfect.

It has some very serious faults, it must be confessed by even its best friends, but inefficiency is not one of them. All organized American industry needs is a contract, and a liberal contract price,
and it will turn out the finished article
with as strict a regard for specifications as any organized industry in the world, private or governmental, independent or subsidized.

Herein has Germany made one more
of its tremendous mistakes in estimating the war strength of other countries. It assumes that, because the United States is a peaceful, rather than a warrior, nation, neither its government nor its people can carry on war successfully. It has sneered at the war declaration of the United States, a country without a great military eye-tear, a country untaught in martial ways, a crude, careless, inefficient, happy-go-lucky democracy, forgetting completely that the organized industries of the United States, the greatest in the world, could be quickly transformed into organized war-making industries.

There have been serious and regrettable delays in United States war preparations, but when the things that have been accomplished in three months are considered; how the country has provided a $7,000,000,000 war fund for itself and its allies; how it has registered nearly 10,000,000 men of service age; how it has mobilized its regulars and its national guardsmen;
how it has sent a fleet to British waters, and the vanguard of a great army
to France, what need is there of thinking that it will fail in shipbuilding, or
in any other particular?

Three months of preparation in the United States shows up brilliantly against forty years of preparation in Germany. If congress will but give the president a free hand, Germany will have reason to revise completely its estimate of the United States as an opponent before three more months go by.

HOW EMBARGO WORKS

(BY HARPER LEECH.)

Uncle Sam's embargo grip on the kaiser's throat is tightening day by day.

Its effect is keenly felt on both sides of the Atlantic. There are neutral protests from Holland and Schandinavia, and from American exporters.

Some of the latter seem to have imagined the embargo would lift the British blockade, and that things would be easier. They have discovered Uncle Sam is not going off half-cocked.

To enforce a real embargo takes an elaborate organization to issue the necessary export license for every shipment,
and inspect all shipments.

Building up that organization is the present embargo task. Until it is complete the British blockade will continue in full force.

At present shipment from America involves complicated legal procedure and three permits, (1) the usual ship clearance papers, issued by the collector of customs; (2) the American export license; (3) the British "letter of assurance," issued by British diplomatic agents to secure passage through the British blockade. Even then the ship is liable to British admiralty search and anything suspicious in an American port brings a scrutiny by the American custom house "neutrality squads."

This gives an idea of how hard it is to ship something to the kaiser through a neutral port.

The British have built up efficient inspection in American ports, now being copied in the American organization and eventually to be replaced by it. Then the American export license will supersede the British "letter of assurance."

Co-operation with the British in the first stages of the embargo gives the key to the whole purpose, to crush Germany by making the blockade air-tight. Every other consideration is secondary, neutral pleas and needs and the demands of the American export business alike.

Organization of the embargo machinery will proceed rapidly. The nucleus already exists in the customs service, the coast guard, the steamboat inspection bureau
and the "neutrality squads."

It is no secret that the principal business of the license men will be declining licenses, not granting them.

CONDEMNING MR. BARLEYCORN.

(Tipton Times.)

At Indianapolis an effort is being made to keep the soldiers away from the saloons and places of vice. If the booze traffic was knocked out there would not be one-fifth of the vices as now exist. Why will a sane people tolerate the sale of intoxicating liquors which are ruining so many people and rendering them incapable of taking care of themselves, to say nothing of the continued vices which they do not seem to resist. A man who drinks, especially those who get drunk, do not seem to have any of the finer or keener senses, and will do things that he would not think of doing if he were sober and at himself.
For the good of humanity in every community in the United States John Barleycorn must go and should stay gone.

FROM THE SENTINEL PAGES 25 YEARS AGO

The hot waves continue.
James Shepler opened his new grocery
at 256 Calhoun street this afternoon.

Jeff Meyers was injured in a runaway accident in the country yesterday. His right arm was dislocated.

The murder of last Tuesday turns out to have been but a drunken row and adds
no more crime to the record of drink.

"Skinny" Moore cut his right hand in a frivolous manner yesterday. He slipped and fell, striking a broken beer glass.

William Buschling, of Wallace street,
was handling a pop bottle yesterday,
when it exploded, cutting his right hand
and forehead severely.

Calhoun street is now a perfect network of wires. The old-time political processions with their high poles could not have moved through our streets.

Beebe R. Alexander, bookkeeper for Bond, the miller, was severely bitten by a dog yesterday morning. Dr. Myers cauterized the wounds on the injured man's right hand.

The republican district committee of the Twelfth district will meet at Fort Wayne Wednesday, July 27, to select a chairman to succeed Hon. Harry C. Hannan, resigned.

Last night a meeting of the republicans of South Wayne was held at the town hall and the "South Wayne republican club" was organized with the following officers: President, E. W. Cook; first vice-president, I. N. Taylor; second vice-president, Ezra Nickerson; treasurer,
John Erickson; secretary, F. J. Bechtold.

While conversing with a friend near
Meyer Brothers' drug store last evening,
Corporal Jones, of the Zollinger battery,
met with a peculiar mishap. His friend noticed a stream of blood oozing from his neck and inquired the cause. Jones placed his hand over the stream and rushed into the drug store, where an examination showed that he had in some manner rup-

tured a blood vessel.

OFFICIALS BLOCKING OIL COMPANY MOVE

Will Take Only Personal Bond for the Large Tanks.

Is the board of works deliberately blocking the way of the Sinclair Refining company, which has been granted the council's approval for installing several large tanks in Fort Wayne?

Many citizens believe that the action of the board in demanding that only a personal bond be given for the safety of the tanks is a prohibitive measure. It will be difficult for the company members to furnish personal bond in that amount. Their offer of $25,000 bond, signed by a reliable bonding company, was waved aside by board members Thursday night.

Mayor W. J. Hosey is known to be heart and soul against the plan to place a battery of large capacity oil and gas-line tanks inside the city limits. He believes that life and property will be endangered. He has said that he would fight the move at every possible point and that he believed the city officers would find a way to block the installing of the big tanks.

Action of the board of works in refusing to take the proffered bond of the refining company is thought by many to be the first move in an effort to halt the building of the oil tanks along the Wabash railroad, inside the city limits. It has been hinted that if the bonding company secures a personal bond the building inspector will step forward and declare that he cannot permit the "dangerous tanks" to be raised.

Certain councilmen have changed their attitude towards the tank building question, it is said. Several of the men who voted for the measure a few weeks ago are against it now because their constituents have raised objections to the placing of the oil tanks in the east end. Insurance men have raised their voices against the placing of the tanks near property insured by their several companies. The insurance rate of the city will be raised because of the danger from the east end tanks, it has been given out. The board of works members could have found a way out of the situation of refusing the oil tank bond, Thursday evening, it is claimed by some who see in the move an effort to check the building plans of the Sinclair Refining company. Whether the speculators who say that the administration will not allow the tanks to be erected is well grounded will depend upon future action of city officials.

The managers of the Sinclair company state that they believe they will be able to secure the large personal bond asked. They do not believe that fears of officials regarding the danger from the tanks are well grounded.

HICCUPS!

TIRELESS HALF-SOLES.

Petokey, Ia.—Charles Clayton has written Washington for a patent on half-sole shoes with remnants of worn auto tires. "Auto tires only wear out in patches," said Clayton.

"Other parts are good. Anything that will half-sole an automobile for a 5,000-mile guarantee will half-sole anything that walks. Think of a 5,000-mile guarantee on a pair of half-soles!"

PIGS RAID WAR GARDENS.

Mildred, N. H.—Mildred citizens, awakened when the town crier rang the city hall bell, thought it was a fire and got the hose cart out. The crier had detected war garden raiders, and suspected German spies, who fled. More conservative citizens blame Silas Perkins' pigs, and a curfew ordinance for pigs will be passed at the next town meeting.

SLAKE STEALS HER JOB.

Lilliputian, Me.—Miss Libbie Mosstentumble has refused a fine-paying position as teacher in the Philippines. While visiting her sister in Tilton, Miss Mosstentumble looked up Philippine books and found three chapters on snakes in one book. Of Irish ancestry on her mother's side, Miss Mosstentumble has hated snakes since one circled her ankle at the Sunday school picnic.

DUCK RAISERS IN ROW.

Demarest, Pa.—The Dalton postmaster has resigned because of a town fight. A letter addressed to the "Best Duck Raiser of Dalton" came to the postmaster, and Cyril Harcourt, who denies the Demarest hotel with ducks, claimed it. Harcourt says the postmaster wanted to give the letter to Alphy Seidmore, who does his wife's washing, to get a rebate. The entire town took sides. Harcourt raises only Indian runner ducks.

"WOODMAN, SPARE TREE."

Lost Horse, Wyo.—Residents have protested against raising of an old landmark by Lincoln highway graders. The landmark is a tree of great historic interest since pioneer days. It was the center for hanging bees for miles around and some of the best and most noted horse thieves were hanged there. Citizens think old landmarks will get scarcer and scarcer in time, anyhow.

SUSPECT GERMAN SPIES.

Stake, Mont.—Abraham Locke wrote the United States marshal some one had poisoned his well. Locke is working on an unbreakable buckle-pad for army mules and suspected the killer's agents. Failing to pump out the well, officers seized it, and found first models of the buckle pads. Locke had made them out of skunk hide. He thinks his little son threw them in the well.

Society

One of the first dinner parties to be given at the Elks Country club took place last evening with Miss Hortense Grimme as the hostess and Miss Mary Anna Schwieters, of Louisville, Ky., as honor guest. The table was handsomely laid and the menu was delicious. Baskets of sweetmeats made individual gifts and decorated the center of the table and other appointments of the table were expressed in dainty pink and white coloring. Covers were laid for ten. Miss Schwieters has been visiting Miss Helen Freilburger, of West Jefferson street, and other relatives in the city.

Miss Anna Petty, of Frankfort, Ind., is the guest of Miss Helen Christen. Mrs. Guy Mahurin has returned from a two weeks' visit in the country. Mrs. Al Holmworth and Mrs. D. H. ## New Way to Kill the Ant So It Stays Dead

Whether they are of the big black variety or the small red kind of ants, if they invade a dwelling place, are an annoyance that drive good housewives to the verge of distraction.

Once they get into a house it seems practically impossible to get entirely rid of them. So widespread is this problem and so many appeals have been made to health officers and government departments for information as to the best method of getting rid of ants that an official remedy has been recommended by the United States department of agriculture, bureau of Entomology.

The chief entomologist recommends arsenate of soda, which, while efficient, must be used with extreme care.

To one pound of sugar, dissolved in a quart of water, add 125 grains of arsenate of soda. This mixture should be boiled and strained and cooled before it is ready for use.

Procure a few small sponges and saturate with the syrup and place them where the ants can have ready access to them. Adding a little honey to the syrup will make the mixture more attractive to the ants.

When the sponges are filled or covered with ants, dip them in boiling water, refill with the syrup and place in position again.

This method of control has been tested for three years by an expert of the United States Bureau of Entomology and has given satisfactory results.

However, in using this preparation the greatest possible precautions should be taken in preparing this syrup and in safe-guarding it afterwards to prevent its being the cause of poisoning to members of the family or domestic animals. Especially should it be sealed and put away where children cannot get it.

Tailor-Made Gown for Early Mourning Wear

BY BETTY BROWN.

A firm which specializes on garments for mourning wear continues to use black faille as the conventional material. While trimming of any kind is considered out of place on a mourning garment, the huge sleeves and extra broad collar are telling points of style in a very handsome coat suit.

Although many fall suits have the "tuyau," tube, or straight up-and-down line, those designed for mourning wear retain the belt and full skirt which can never be considered too striking or freaky.

Methods for Canning Obtained by Writing

Those who heeded the advice of the United States department of agriculture to plant gardens this year are now wondering how best to preserve their surplus fruits and vegetables.

The specialists of the department, who have tried out various methods for canning, preserving, drying, pickling, and making jam, have recently issued bulletins showing how this work may be done successfully. Anyone can have these publications for the asking, so ignorance of the proper procedure will not serve as a legitimate excuse for allowing any garden produce to spoil this year.

Farmers' bulletin 839 contains directions for canning by the one-period cold-pack method all kinds of fruits and vegetables as well as fruit juices, soups, meats, camp rations and mushrooms.

When canning is not feasible or cans and jars are too expensive, drying offers a means of saving large quantities of surplus products which go to waste each year. Drying also affords a way of conserving portions of food too small for canning. Drying may be done in the sun, over the kitchen stove, or before an electric fan. Farmers' bulletin 841 tells just how to do this, using one of the driers now on the market or a home-made apparatus.

These bulletins are sent upon request to the division of publications, United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C. Send for copies for yourself and tell your neighbors about them. Fruits and vegetables preserved in any of these ways will help you in planning your three meals a day next winter.

CLEVER WAYS OF MAKING SOFT LIGHTS IN THE HOME

The girl who stencils will recognize in her oil stencil paper a possibility for making one of the new paper lamp shades. The oiling of the board or paper makes it translucent.

They can be painted in designs and stripes to match the general decorative scheme. Used in the natural old gold color they are equally lovely, especially if the base of the lamp is of a solid bright color.

Another way to treat the paper shade is to paste cutout designs from cretonne on the paper and paint in the background with black enamel thinned out as much as possible. This method makes the light shine through the colored designs and leaves the background opaque. Such a shade should not be used, however, where there is only one lamp in the room and where plenty of lights are needed.

A clever way of mellowing the light from these more decidedly designed paper shades is to cover the outside with a layer of delicate gauze in a deep cream or rose color. This will not interfere with the effect of the design, but will prove to give a much softer lighting effect than the plain shade.

MILK CAN SOON SPOIL UNLESS TAKEN CARE OF

Much has been said and much has been done to see that the milk dealers give the consumer pure milk, yet little has been said and less has been done to see that Mr. Consumer keeps it pure and clean. The dairyman is endeavoring faithfully to do his share to eliminate uncleanness and disease, but he can't do it all; the housewife must do her share.

The health department rules insist that milk must be pure, clean, cold and unadulterated when it is placed at the consumer's door, but it only makes suggestions to the housewife how to care for it after she receives it. Milk that is delivered in first-class condition can soon spoil if not cared for properly.

How many housewives are careful to put the milk immediately upon the ice?

Milk absorbs odors very rapidly and collects germs just as quickly. These may not produce disease, though they frequently do, but it is almost sure to produce digestive disturbances when fed to babies. Summer diarrhoea is very common among infants and this is frequently blamed to the teeth, yet most often it is due to their food. As soon as the milk is delivered at the door it should be taken in, the cap removed, the bottle wiped and a tumbler placed over the top of the bottle before it is placed in the spotlessly clean refrigerator. When removing the cap never push it in with the finger, but lift it with a regular milk bottle opener or a sharp-tined fork. Keep the milk in the regular bottle until used.

ESTABLISH LIBRARY AT FORT HARRISON

Entire State is Called Upon to Help in Movement of Commission.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 21.—The public library commission of Indiana has started a movement for the establishment of a library at Fort Benjamin Harrison and will call upon the citizens of Indiana for help in collecting 10,000 volumes and money enough to supplement the gifts, to subscribe for as many periodicals as possible and to cover the cost of supplies for organizing the library.

The following letter has been sent to the librarians of the state by Henry N. Sanborn, secretary of the state commission:

Among the many opportunities to help the young men of America, and especially of Indiana, who are training for soldiers, there is now offered you a chance to "do your bit" by performing a service peculiarly yours to perform.

The plan is to collect throughout the state books, periodicals and money to establish a permanent camp library at Fort Benjamin Harrison. This movement has the hearty approval of Gen. Edwin F. Glenn and of James E. Rogers, representing the United States war department national commission training camp activities.

The committee plans with your help to collect 10,000 volumes for the library and money enough to supplement the gifts, to subscribe for as many periodicals as possible, and to cover the cost of supplies for organizing this library. The work will be done under supervision of the public library commission by its staff and by volunteer librarians.

You are asked to:

1. Donate from your book fund for this year $5 for every $1,000 of annual income. This is only one-half of one per cent, a small amount for the institution to give to the nation.

2. To collect from your citizens an amount of money at least equal to the library's subscription. This can be done by personal appeals outside and by a coin box kept on the charging desk, marked clearly.

3. To collect new or nearly new copies of books and magazines not older than January, 1917, from your community. To sort these and send the suitable ones to the public library commission. Send no magazines unless the file is complete from January 1, 1917. Each library is asked to send fifty good volumes of fiction, biography, travel, poetry, plays, history or other fitting subjects for men.

When you have made your collection, send for shipping directions.

4. To advertise these wants in the local papers, by signs in the library, in stores and by any other methods suggested to the individual.

5. To volunteer, if possible, for working a day or more during August or September to help organize this library.

6. To do these things at once so that, if possible, organization may begin August 1st.

Through the publicity of the state defense committee the general public will be asked to bring books and money to you to be handled as already indicated. Please be prepared.

A MESSAGE BY LUTHER BURBANK TO AMERICANS AMERICAN FOOD MAY DETERMINE WORLD'S FATE

Hundred Million American Minds Must Be Concentrated on Filling the World's Food Bins, is Declaration of Famous Plant Wizard—Everybody Urged to Study Gardening.

Creator of hundreds of wonder grains, fruits, vegetables and flowers, this plant wizard is now identified with the national emergency food garden commission, and is freely devoting his genius and energy to the food situation.

The ringing call sounded in the accompanying message, the call to "Victory farming and gardening," is of vital interest to every American.

Burbank seldom speaks for publication, but when he does it carries a punch.)

(Copyright, 1917, Newspaper Enterprise Association.)

(World's Greatest Scientific Agriculturist.)

Santa Rosa, Cal., July 20.—Wheat, corn, potatoes—they may directly determine the fate of embattled democracy and the trend of world civilization.

It is therefore imperative that, in addition to organized effort expended upon sustenance problems, every American man, woman and youngster, no matter of what station or occupation, take a vital interest in the food supply.

This doesn't mean mere planting and harvesting alone. It means scientific farming and gardening.

It means that 100,000,000 American minds must be concentrated on filling the world's food bins.

There must be a universal passion and application to make two bushels of potatoes grow where one grew before; to raise four bushels of wheat in place of two; to develop and cultivate larger, richer, grains, fruits and vegetables.

This entails a fundamental education, at least, in the fundamentals of agriculture—knowledge that should perhaps be compulsory throughout the United States.

Every man, whether he work in shop, office, bank or in the ditch, should know when, how and why a bean or onion grows. No man is even moderately well educated who doesn't.

Out of such universal knowledge will come improvement in soil methods and products, better and cheaper living. It will sound the doom of the food hog in the United States.

things—even if only in a window box. Make an adventure of gardening. Watch for the "genius" plants that, appear occasionally among their kind, ready to be moulded into wonderful new foods by the discerning observer and the practiced hand.

Get acquainted with plants. They are as varied as the people you know. No two the same—not even the heads of wheat. Cultivate, select, experiment, and you'll be surprised how enthusiasm and interest will take the drudgery from the work.

The war has sounded the knell of haphazard farming in this country. We must go about this planting and harvesting business as scientists and artists. Sloth, bungling, ignorance and mere guesswork as to what the soil will produce is slacking of the worst order.

Use of the soil, whether by ownership or rental, today has become a solemn stewardship. The man who merely plods along, using good land to get small returns, getting 15 bushels of wheat where 50 would grow with intelligent application is not only unfit to be a farmer but is a menace to a battling democracy relying on him. In a tragic way he is falling in his stewardship of the soil.

These, I take it, are some of the big things which demand the thought of America's millions, not only the farmers and gardeners, but everyone. Wide education and government aid in every possible way must be immediately directed into these channels.

The big want in the country was nearly filled last week when eligibles for conscription made a rush to the country to take up jobs in the harvest fields. Last week was the biggest week for the Fort Wayne branch of the free employment bureau. A total of 171 men and seven women secured work through this office last week.

THE MOMENT OF TRIUMPH IS NEAR!! SLIM SEEMS TO HAVE TIRED. HIS SPEED AND RUNNING HAVE DESERTED HIM. THE CAPTAIN WITH A CLARION SHOUT OF TRIUMPH RUSHES FORWARD. BUT, WHOA!! GEE WHIZ!!! WHAT HAS HAPPENED? AH-HA!! THE FOXY HOBO ONCE MORE SHOWS THAT HIS WITS ARE ALWAYS WORKING "ON THE HIGH". THE CAPTAIN RECEIVES A JOLT IN HIS TUMMY THAT CAUSES HIM TO LOSE ALL INTEREST IN THE CHASE. OUCH!!

THE SHOCK TO THE CAP'S NERVES WAS SOMETHING FIERCE. HIS FACE WAS PALE WITH ANGER. HIS FURY KNEW NO BOUNDS. PANTING AND WILD-EYED HE ROARED FOR REVENGE. SLIPPERY SLIM, WITH HARSH PEALS OF RAUCOUS LAUGHTER BOUNDED AWAY. BUT,

THE PAIN-MADDENED CAPTAIN, HOLDING HIS ACHING TUMMY, AND WITH A TERRIBLE GLEAM IN HIS EYES, CALLS ON HIS INTREPID FOLLOWERS TO "GIT A WIGGLE ON". ONCE MORE THE EARTH TREMBLES WITH THE POUNDING FOOT STEPS OF THE CHASE. BUT HIST!!!

MORE MYSTERY HERE!! SLIM JIM'S TRACKS SUDDENLY END. NOT THE SLIGHTEST CLEW AS TO HOW OR WHERE HE HAD SO MYSTERIOUSLY DISAPPEARED. THE CAP GROWLED A MIGHTY YELD DEEP IN HIS BEARD. HIS RAGE WAS SOMETHING TERRIBLE TO BEHOLD. JUST THEN,

THERE WAS A DULL, SICKENING THUD. LANKY HAS JUST GOT HIS! WITH THE SPEED OF A BULLET HE GOES HURTLING THROUGH THE AIR AND CRASHES INTO SHORTY. ONCE MORE THE ARTFUL HOBO FROM HIS LAIR IN A HOLLOW STUMP HAS USED HIS INFERNAL MACHINE WITH DEADLY EFFECT. AND, GLORYING IN THE FAVOR HE HAD WROUGHT TO THE GRASSVILLE FORCE, AND FILLING THE AIR WITH BELLOWES OF MOCKING, UNHOLY MIRTH, HE ONCE MORE TOOK TO HIS HEELS. BUT WAIT!!

THE DOUGHTY GRASSVILLE POLICE ARE NOT VANQUISHED YET. THEY ARE MADE OF STERNER STUFF. SMOLDERING WITH WRATH, AND SMARTING FROM THE INDIGNITIES HEAPED ON THEM BY THIS ARTFUL FOX OF A HOBO, THEY TEAR AFTER HIM ONCE MORE. BUT,

WHAT'S THIS? GREAT GUNS!!! HAS SLIM JIM GONE CRAZY? LOOK!! HE IS CALMLY SITTING ON THE INFERNAL MACHINE WHILE THE GRASSVILLE FORCE, BREATHING MALEDICTIONS ON HIS HEAD ARE CHARGING DOWN ON HIM LIKE BOLTS OF AVENGING LIGHTNING!! WOW-W!!!

WITH THE AGILITY OF A CAT, AND THE SPEED OF A ROCKET, SLIM GLIDES ALONG THE WIRES TO SAFETY. THE SICKENING SILENCE THAT FOLLOWS IS SOMETHING AWFUL. IT IS BROKEN BY A HOARSE, STRAINED WHISPER FROM THE CAPTAIN, "CAN-YOU-BEAT-IT? (SH-H-H!! THIS NERVE THRILLING MELODRAMA WILL BE CONTINUED NEXT WEEK.)"

MORE MULES SHOULD BE RAISED

There Are Many Advantages in Raising Mules Which the Farmer Would Do Well to Consider.

Those who are accustomed to handling mules and who know of their remarkable faculty for adapting themselves to almost any condition, realize their value and do not hesitate to pay well for good animals.

The advantages they possess over horses in many ways compensate for the somewhat objectionable length of ear and exaggerated reputation for kicking. They are ready to work when two years old and on account of their toughness and steadiness of nerve may be kept at it twice as long as horses are fit for service. Mules can be raised more cheaply than any other stock, and, unlike horses, will never founder themselves if by chance they should have access to more feed than is good for them. They can be put into the market much sooner than horses, and, if properly handled, when two years old, will do as much work and stand it better, than four-year-old colts. Mules are less liable to contract diseases than horses, and their value is not decreased by blemishes as is that of horses. Mules seldom run away, but when they do they seem to run more from sport than fright, and generally wind up safely. They instinctively avoid holes, obstacles or dangerous places. They can stand heat, abuse or hardship better than horses and can always be relied upon. They are sensitive as well as sensible animals, responding quickly to kind treatment by docility and gentleness.

The great profit in mule raising lies largely in their growth. Mules grow so quickly that they are marketable when three years old, while horses cannot advantageously be sold under five years. In this way the cost of feeding and the trouble and risk of raising are decreased.

Buyers will always handle good mules, as the demand for them is steady. Where large numbers of mules are raised there are always plenty of mule buyers in that section of the country. Buyers do not go where there are no mules to sell. In time of war mules are always in great demand and bring good prices owing to their powers of endurance.

Comparing cattle with mules, one steer will eat as much as two mules. As compared with swine, if the same amount of feed that is fed to a bunch of hogs is fed to mules it will not take long to find which make the most money, aside from the fact that there is no risk from cholera.

In orchards or nurseries mules are invaluable. No animal can equal them for running out straight lines, and in cultivating young trees they seldom break or injure them. When well trained they are careful and obedient.

Mules occupy a place among our domestic animals that is indicative of honesty, durability and valuable service, and their failure to breed is looked upon by many as an indication of the fact that in them the climax of perfection has been reached.

The objection many farmers raise to the use of mules is that they do not breed, that they are stubborn, often vicious, and that they are entirely unsuited to pleasure purposes.

Those objections are worthy of consideration, but the many good qualities of these sturdy beasts seem to more than offset them.

From a commercial standpoint, it may be well to remember that a pair of 6-year-old mules, well matched, well broken, and well grown, weighing from 1100 to 1300 pounds each, will bring from $350 to $500.

More mules should be raised by the farmers all over the country. Breed your heavy-set mares to a good-sized, stylish jack, and when your colts come, take care of them and they will prove to be about the most profitable stock on the place, either to work or to sell.

LATE ONIONS.

There are several kinds of onions that may remain in the soil over winter. The multiplier, or potato onion, for example, can be planted from sets in the autumn and will produce excellent green early onions. A large onion of this type contains a number of distinct hearts, and if planted will produce a number of small onions. On the other hand, a small onion contains but one heart and will produce a large onion. A few of the large ones may be planted to produce sets for the following year's planting.

out the day, lose considerable of their first freshness by night; whether the eggs are to be incubated, marketed soon, or held in storage for future marketing, their quality has been lowered. Trap-nesters remove the eggs from the nests from three to five times during the day; as a rule the trap nest is an individual nest, and the layers are not able to crowd two, three or more at once upon a nest of eggs, overheating eggs and hens, both, as is frequently the case where the ordinary box nest is used.

Then, again, trap-nesters have found by experience that summer troubles with broody hens are greatly lessened by judiciously handling the traps. The frequent handling of the layers and prompt removal from the incubators, to diminish their brooding inclinations, and they do become broody. Many times the layers in the incubating broods do not become broody at all when using the trap nests, but continue to lay right through the summer. "Egg eating is a vice practically unknown where these nests are used," is the report of many who have had long experience with good trap nests.

It is an interesting fact that quite a number of the most successful trap-nesters installed and began to use trap nests during the summer months. By fall they had become quite familiar with their use, and were in a position to exercise good judgment in trap-nesting and culling the pullets, and the yearling hens through the molting period. It will be found that the great layers are remarkably for a tendency to molt without apparent loss of vigor, and they will continue to lay during a considerable portion, or the whole, of that period.

It certainly is an excellent plan to get the trap nests installed during the summer months, become familiar with handling them, without loss of time, and then one is prepared to start the new generation of layers upon the right road.

A. P. HUNT, JR.

MAKE THE CHICKS EXERCISE. There is only one sure way of growing strong, thrifty chicks, and that is by making them exercise. Having the floor of the brooders littered with fine straw, hay or straw, and a few handfuls of grain, will make the youngsters scratch—and it is this scratching that warms up their blood, sharpens their appetite, and gives them good health.

LOOKING FORWARD. In the future there will be higher standards of farming, whether it be a fruit farm or other branches of agriculture. The achievements that today read like the fairy tales of our childhood, will become more and more frequent until the whole average of farming production will be raised.

THIS HELPS. A good tight fence around each field helps to make the rotation count for the most. Every field should permit of pasturing not only with cattle but hogs and sheep as well.

Don't can anything that can be kept just as well dried or in other forms. Dry navy and mature Lima beans for winter use.

BANKERS ASKED TO ASSIST IN PORK PRODUCTION

Bankers in Many Parts of the Country Who Have Given Encouragement and Financial Assistance to Members of Pig Clubs During the Past Few Years Are Being Strongly Urged to Continue Their Aid as a Patriotic Duty.

Since hogs afford the quickest means of increasing our meat supply, continued and extended efforts of public-spirited bankers in furthering the organization of pig clubs by advancing to club members the money needed for the purchase of pure-bred sow pigs is doubly desirable and greatly appreciated at this time.

Pig clubs have increased very rapidly during the past seven years, the specialists point out. In 1910 there were 59 members in the United States; today the number exceeds 30,000, found principally in Arkansas, Alabama, California, North Carolina, Louisiana, Georgia, Texas, Oregon, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Kentucky, Indiana, and Massachusetts. These states contained 21,673 members last year, but pig clubs are being formed rapidly in other states. The demand for gilts and bred gilts by club members is unprecedented, even at the high prices at which they are held.

Financial assistance to the pig club members has been the means of introducing pure-bred hogs in places where otherwise this might have been impossible, and has helped to build up the agriculture of the communities which the banks serve. These clubs stand not alone for greater pork production, but by encouraging the amount of live stock on the farm, the production of much of the feed on the farm, and as their activities are coincident with or follow civil work in the growing of corn and forage crops, they are part of a system that favors a sound diversity in agriculture.

The other method is called the "endless chain" plan. This also involves individual contracts. The banker agrees to furnish a registered sow pig. The boy or girl agrees to join a local pig club, obey its rules, care for the pig according to instructions, breed her at not less than eight months of age to a registered boar of the same breed, raise the litter according to the rules of the club, and deliver to the banker two choice gilts (not less than eight weeks old) from the first litter. The member agrees also to take out registration papers for all the first litter pigs not sold for immediate slaughter. When these agreements are met, the original sow and the remaining pigs become the member's property. If the pig is unable to return two sow pigs out of the first litter the agreement continues until this is possible. If the original sow dies before farrowing a healthy litter the banker bears the loss. If the member does not fulfill all agreements, rights to the sow and her progeny are forfeited. In writing, and acknowledges that the sow and increase shall belong to the boy or girl.

When the banker receives the two sow pigs from the member and puts them out with other boys or girls under the same agreement, the endless chain feature of the activities is set in motion. This plan may be varied in details to suit conditions. For instance, the banker may require the return of only one sow pig, and stipulate that the boy or girl must join a corn or peanut club, raise at least half an acre of green feed, and exhibit the sow and her offspring at the county fair or live-stock show.

Under similar arrangements, boys have received calves to raise, and both boys and girls have received eggs of pure-bred chickens for hatching. It is urged that bankers in the south who have taken part in these projects heretofore continue their aid, and others, both in the north and in the south, take up the work, as it is a patriotic duty at this time to increase the nation's supply of food. County agents, state agricultural colleges, and the Department of Agriculture will answer gladly any questions regarding details of these activities.

There is money in hog raising these days.

About the June Bug

Have you ever seen the so-called June bug buzzing around an electric light or seen them swarm on the sidewalk in the gray of a spring-morning? They are a big, dark-brown beetle and at night when they bump against the window panes or fly thumping against the ceiling make you crawl and hunt for the broom.

This blundering, awkward beetle, of which the chickens and birds are so fond, are the parents of the corn pest known as the "white grub" which feeds on the roots of the plants and destroys them.

Millions of them are destroyed in spring by hungry birds and myriad others go down to death in swarming around the lights of a city. They are so sensitive to light that a flame, miles away, will attract them.

It takes three years for one of these beetles to develop from the egg. The beetles deposit their eggs in meadows and sometimes in corn fields. The eggs develop into thick, fleshy, white grubs which are also much sought for by birds. When matured they are fully one and one-half inches long.

Luckily for Mr. Beetle, the grub spends most of his three years in the soil out of the reach of enemies. Different beetles, however, are completing their growth every year and so we have the June bug with us each spring.

All corn is apt to suffer from them but owing to the habit of the beetle in depositing its eggs in meadows, corn that is planted in newly turned soil is more apt to suffer from these pests. The best way to destroy them is to plow and cultivate so that their natural food is destroyed and they are starved to death before planting the field. Some farmers let the chickens follow the plow and destroy hundreds of them in this way.—Chas. C. Wentzler.

KEEP THE COW STABLE WELL SURED. There is no surer way of producing milk with undesirable odors than by forcing cows to breathe the confined air of their stables, saturated with the fumes of their perspiration and excrement. The consequences of breathing such odors is so plain and certain that it seems strange that dairymen will allow it to be permitted to the extent it is.—Vincent M. Couch.

WINDBREAKS. Windbreaks are popular. They protect the farm house, the stock and give to the farm an appearance of winteriness. If you have failed to plant a windbreak plan to do so this next spring. Select the proper trees and location and get in your order for trees early.

FEEDING TURKEYS. As the turkeys grow and begin to wander about the fields in search of insects it is well to establish the practice of feeding them at their regular roosting place about sunset every evening. This brings them home where they are safe.

No openings in your cow stables to admit sunlight? This is a great mistake. Sunlight is death to many forms of germ life.

There is nothing that gives better for the investment than good poultry. Study the soil. Study how to preserve its fertility and you will thus become a progressive farmer.

EFFECTIVE CODLING MOTH TRAP

New Device to Be Used in Place of the "Banding" Method—Not a Substitute for Spraying.

A codling moth trap has been devised by E. H. Stegler, of the Bureau of Entomology, United States Department of Agriculture, to be used as a substitute for what is known as the "banding" method for destroying the codling moth. The banding method, in which a folded strip of burlap is wrapped around the tree trunk, demands a considerable amount of labor, and the new trap is designed to minimize this.

The trap affords an attractive place for the larvae to spin their cocoons, and it prevents the escape of the moths after they emerge from these. The trap, which consists of a burlap band covered by a strip of wire screen, is made as follows:

Strips of burlap 6 inches wide are folded into three thicknesses. The loose bark from the lower branches and trunk of the tree is removed and a strip of this burlap folded once around the trunk. It is held in place by large tacks, which should be driven in in such a way that the edge projects about one-fourth of an inch beyond the burlap. The burlap is then covered by black-painted wire screen with 12 meshes to the inch. This is cut into strips 6 inches wide and the edges of each strip are folded twice, allowing one-fourth of an inch to each fold. The strip of screen should be long enough to allow for an overlap of 3 to 4 inches when placed around the trunk of the tree. The wire screen is placed over the burlap band and tacked to the tree in such a way that both the upper and lower edges fit snugly against the bark. The projecting tacks used to fasten the burlap to the tree prevent the wire pressing against the cloth.

To make sure that no moths may escape through openings along the edges of the trap or along the flap, a thin coating of pitch tar may be used. This material, when heated, may be applied readily with a brush.

The traps may be placed on the tree at any time during the winter or in the spring not later than one month after the petals have dropped. As long as no openings occur in them they will require no further attention. The codling moth larva, having completed its feeding in the fruit, seeks a place to spin its cocoon, and for this purpose generally crawls up or down a tree trunk. Meeting the trap, it enters through one of the openings in the mesh of the wire screen and spins its cocoon beneath the burlap band. When it emerges as a moth its large size makes it unable to escape through the opening in the screen by which it entered the trap.

It must be clearly understood, however, that this trap is not a substitute for spraying.

for spraying, but merely an additional precaution. Nevertheless, some larvae will invariably escape, and the offspring of these are largely responsible for the damage to the fruit crop. By the use of the codling moth trap, in addition to thorough spraying, the majority of the unpoisoned larvae may be captured and injured by later broods will be materially reduced.

CUTTING ALFALFA.

When for any reason alfalfa turns yellow it should be cut immediately and removed from the field. A careful examination at such a time may indicate a lack of effective inoculation, disease, or the need of lime. Yellowing sometimes occurs, however, when all of these conditions are apparently favorable to the growth of the alfalfa.

CARE IN TRIMMING TREES.

In trimming trees, the wound made by cutting off a limb close to the trunk will soon heal over, while the wound made by cutting off the limb two or three inches from the trunk, leads to decay and sometimes causes the ultimate loss of the tree itself.

DUCKS EASY TO RAISE.

Ducks are more tractable than hens and more easily cared for. They can be tamed with a little care. Those that are kept over for breeding stock should have dry quarters but may be allowed to run all winter. The thick down protects them from the severe cold.

MIXED FEEDS.

Don't buy mixed feeds. They are, generally speaking, the offal at best, and too much of the farm thrown in for good measure. Mixed feeds are sold at the value of the highest priced ingredient, and they may be the least in amount. They offer a temptation to the mixer to misrepresent, and you pay dear for your whistle.

THE SHETLAND PONY ALWAYS POPULAR

The Shetland pony is always an object of interest, whether seen drawing a shining cart in the city park or bending beneath the cruel weight of his heavy burden on the mountain-trails of his native country. If he were less hardy he could not endure the severe labor he is made to perform in his native land, for there he is purely and simply a burden-bearer. Grain, iron, furniture, coal, ore and merchandise of all kinds are transported to all parts of the islands on the backs of the tough little animals. Three hundred pounds is the usual load for each pony, and long lines of these laden little beasts wind in and out among the hills of their native land.

The genuine Shetland pony, produced from the pure breeds of the Shetland and Orkney Islands, has become so popular and useful that the business of raising ponies has grown important. The business is not so simple as it might appear at first glance. In the first place, the progenitors—sires and dams—are usually selected from the Shetland Islands. Occasionally desirable breeds may be found in the interior of some of the other northern islands bordering Scotland, but the majority are found in the Shetland Islands.

The Shetland pony is unlike the horse in many respects other than that of size. He is more patient, and as a class is better tempered. Kittle under punishment, patient during severe labor, constant as a dog in friendship, combining marvelous intelligence with a tractable spirit, the Shetland pony is of all animals the best servant, companion and friend for children. There are grown persons who so admire the sturdy little ponies that they prefer a cart and pair to the best trotting-horse. They make up in strength and endurance what they lack in size.

On farms where these little ponies are raised for the market, kindness is practiced under all circumstances in their training. This is very important, because most of these animals in this country at least, are sold for the pleasure of young boys and girls and it is essential that they be trained to be docile and gentle. When the little pony colts, which a man can take up in his arms, carry about, is strong enough to run and play with its mother, a little halter is put on it, and it is taught to lead and start and stop at the word. When it grows stronger, but is not yet nearly full grown, a set upon it, a smooth, easy bit is slipped into its mouth, and it is driven about with the lines. A very gentle pressure of the bit on the tender mouth is sufficient to guide it. Later on it is hitched to a little yellow cart, and trotted about the smooth gravel drives under the spreading, beautiful trees, until it becomes thoroughly bridle-wise—that is, until it becomes trained to turn about instantly without hesitation in response to the bit. It is taken close to puffing locomotives and alongside queer-looking vehicles; into the neighborhood of shops where there is the sound of clanging iron and pounding hammers and ringing bells. Its actions under all these conditions are carefully noted and recorded, and its special qualifications for particular purposes fully ascertained.

The trainer knows the natural propensities and acquired qualifications of every pony about the farm fully as well as the teacher knows those traits in a pupil, and all those things go to make up a pony's record.

THE BROODY HEN. A setting hen can be broken from the setting propensity in a few days and be made to shell out eggs, and at a much less loss of vitality than to sit for three weeks and raise a large family.

Warring Old Soldiers Fail to Get by With Ruff Stuff

Johnny Nee Can't Stand a Beating and Gets Nawsty to Umps.

Johnny Nee can't stand having his club defeated or else he's a little sort of a dabb. Anytime in the second inning when the pressure was getting hot, he decided to assume himself, and going up to Ump. Kuhns he proceeded to push his mitt in that gentleman's kind and open face. The Chiefs quickly formed an alliance with the arbitrator and managed to draw the umpire represented by Nee. Johnny played no more baseball yesterday.

In the meantime the Chiefs played ball and proceeded to show the Vets up considerably. They rumbled the Buckeye outfit 3 to 4, and seemed to take great delight in doing it. Two pitchers were used by both clubs, but neither visiting slabsmen proved effective.

Higbee was removed from the mound before anything serious happened in the sixth and Bobby Roberts held 'em spellbound.

Dayton started in hard and took two runs for an opener in the first. Stewart and Derrick were the hitters. In the second half the locals took one. Then came the big frame. Kelly started with a single and Williams bunted. Wells fielded the bunt and heaved the pill an awful distance, allowing Kelly to score and Williams to take third. Vandy walked and Higbee doubled, scoring Williams. A sacrifice fly by Breux sent the manager across and Smith's triple scored Higbee. Smith only managed to hit three times out of five times yesterday, which makes us fear that he is slipping.

In the fourth the Chiefs got another when Vandy singled and Siegfried came through with a sacrifice fly. In the fifth Dayton scored one and in the sixth they put another across. At this point Higbee was removed in favor of Roberts and then the Chiefs made three runs. Roberts and Vandy singled and a long triple by Breux sent them both across. The little outfielder went across on Siegfried's second sacrifice fly.

Today we have with us the Springfield league leaders, hitting demons, fielding sharks and all around high-class ball players. The Chiefs would like very much to top the series and have sworn to do the damndest.

A preliminary to the game will be played by the Turner and Pennys shop league clubs, this game starting at 1:45 o'clock.

LINCOLN LIFE CLUB GOES TO HUNTINGTON

Either Ostermeyer or Lankenau will pitch for the insurance men. McKee, of this city, does the umpiring for the Huntington crew and will officiate at the game.

FIRST AMERICAN ATROCITY.

ABOLITION OF THE PIE!

By WINONA WILCOX.

A hint of the first great national war horror comes from the middle west. Kansas, so safely situated between coast and coast, originates the first American atrocity. Already the men of Kansas send out an S. O. S.—"Help or we perish!" For Kansas has no defenseless women and children. Her council of defense recommends that all pie timber be diverted to other uses for the duration of the war. Now, nobody doubts the patriotism of the native Kansan. So doesn't this look like another of those German spy plots? Only the Teutonic mind could conceive of a plan which would so completely destroy the peace of America, or could stage a conspiracy right in the middle of our fair land, doubtless with paid propagandists to spread it all over these free states, even unto the motherland of pie, New England.

Why discuss liberty further? What are the censorship, conscription, or a free press, when the existence of our sacred pie is threatened?

Some say suffragists started the movement to abolish pie. The militants reasoned, it is hinted, that congress could not be harassed more effectively than by calling the American woman, the world's most famous pie-maker, off the job.

To be sure, man eats too much pie. After one full meal, he insists on eating another in the form of rich crust and sweetened fruit or custard. And perhaps we might avoid a war famine by cutting all desserts from our menus.

But why commit the atrocity of dropping pie out of American history? Better far make pie a substitute for something, say meat or tobacco.

When somebody remonstrated with a noted author for eating pie at breakfast, he mildly inquired, "What is pie for?"

It has been left for the war to disclose the reason for pie—perhaps it is part of the great German preparedness, planned decades ago, to set this republic by the ears, to disrupt the nation, to swamp our food bill in congress by centering the attention of the common people on the perils of the pie situation.

Again we must look to England's experience. She still feeds her Tommies on jam, plum or apple. War wisdom. We must never deprive our Sammies of pie, at least as long as they are at home where mother can feed them.

And it is safe to say we never will.

Though all Kansan women go to jail for it, Kansas will never be a pieless state. Man likes pie.

He mildly inquired, "What is pie for?"

EHMKE, BRILLIANT PITCHER FOR SEVEN FRAMES, CAN'T GO THE WHOLE ROUTE

By PAUL PURMAN.

All of which calls to mind one Howard Ehmke, Detroit pitcher. Ehmke, in the early days of the spring when prophecy counted more than figures and when last year's figures were all there was to go on, looked like one of the very best of the season, a player who had it in him to win some twenty or twenty-five games and put the Tigers out of the hole poor pitching had put them in since the palmy days of George Mullin and Wild Bill Donovan.

This Ehmke figured as an iron man, a pitcher with bewildering speed, a wizardly assortment of curves and a change of pace which kept the batters off their balance. Hughie Jennings counted on him to fill the hole in the Detroit outfit which games were slipping through preventing Hughes from floating a pennant over Navin park.

Let us see how Ehmke panned out. The last records show Ehmke has lost eight and won seven games with an earned run average of three per game.

But what the records don't show is that Ehmke has lost the great measures were all there was to go on, looked like one of the very best of the season, a player who had it in him to win some twenty or twenty-five games and put the Tigers out of the hole poor pitching had put them in since the palmy days of George Mullin and Wild Bill Donovan.

But what the records don't show is that Ehmke has lost the great measures were all there was to go on, looked like one of the very best of the season, a player who had it in him to win some twenty or twenty-five games and put the Tigers out of the hole poor pitching had put them in since the palmy days of George Mullin and Wild Bill Donovan.

This Ehmke figured as an iron man, a pitcher with bewildering speed, a wizardly assortment of curves and a change of pace which kept the batters off their balance. Hughie Jennings counted on him to fill the hole in the Detroit outfit which games were slipping through preventing Hughes from floating a pennant over Navin park.

Let us see how Ehmke panned out. The last records show Ehmke has lost eight and won seven games with an earned run average of three per game.

By PAUL PURMAN.

An astute baseball manager once made a pertinent statement. "Ball games," he declared, "are not played with last year's averages and must be won with what you have on the field the day the game is played."

All of which calls to mind one Howard Ehmke, Detroit pitcher. Ehmke, in the early days of the spring when prophecy counted more than figures and when last year's figures were all there was to go on, looked like one of the very best of the season, a player who had it in him to win some twenty or twenty-five games and put the Tigers out of the hole poor pitching had put them in since the palmy days of George Mullin and Wild Bill Donovan.

OUR TROOPS AT FRONT.

(Philadelphia Record.)

The touring of France by American soldiers, to be shown off, which has been described graphically by some of the German authorities, has come to an end, and our troops are now in camp immediately behind the fighting line. We infer that the intention is to exhibit them now to the German soldiers.

If there is any doubt in the minds of the latter that their enemies are being reinforced from the greatest nation in the world west of Russia, it will presently be dispelled. One of the German military critics opines that our soldiers will be found respectable, but not brilliant. Well, that may be; we shall know more about it later; but the Germans have shown no great brilliance since they dug themselves in along the Aisne.

NAVY LEAGUE ASKS FOR COMFORT FUNDS

Get a Small Bank at the First & Hamilton and Donate Your Change.

The First and Hamilton National bank has arranged to co-operate with the Navy League of the United States in the matter of providing the enlisted men of the navy and marine corps with comfort funds, which consist of knitted sweaters, mufflers, mittens, wristlets, woolen helmets, etc. The Navy League has on hand letters from 20,000 to 30,000 women throughout the country who are willing to knit these articles free of charge providing the Navy League will supply them with the wool. To obtain the funds for this purpose the league is appealing to the people of the country through the banks. They furnish the banks with small leather covered pocket safes in which to deposit change. When the safe is filled it is returned to the First and Hamilton bank, which has the key and will forward the contents to the Navy League at Washington. The bank will then provide the individual with a key and he may keep the bank as a memento of patriotic and humanitarian work. Many people will no doubt mind the fact that every three dollars provides one of comfort outfit for one of our sailors.

Strange as it may seem, the government does not furnish these articles to the men, who would be forced to suffer from cold in the performance of their perilous duty were it not for the action of the Navy League in looking after their comfort.

The pocket safes will be ready for distribution at the First and Hamilton National bank within a week or ten days.

BRITISH PREMIER ANSWERS CHALLENGE

LLOYD GEORGE HAS RINGING DEFIANCE FOR DR. MICHAELIS

Germany Means Annexations All Round
if Victorious and War Must Go On to a Different Result.

ENGLAND PROVISIONED NOW FOR A SIEGE

London, July 21.—Premier Lloyd George said today that the speech in the reichstag of Dr. Michaelis, the new German chancellor, meant that if Germany were victorious, there would be annexation all around and that the military autocracy would be established more firmly than ever.

The speech showed, the premier asserted, that those in charge of affairs in Germany had for the moment made the choice for war.

The premier said the statement of Dr. Michaelis contained phrases which would be understood by the military powers of Germany. Unless these were wiped out, he added, they would again plunge Europe into a welter of blood.

Mr. Lloyd-George said the food supply for the 1917-1918 period had already been secured and that a program of cultivation had been arranged to make the supply for the following year secure, even if losses increased.

"We can't make peace with a Germany dominated by autocracy," declared Premier Lloyd-George.

Struggle Between Ideals.

"The war now becomes a struggle between two definite groups of national ideals. Significant in this respect is the news announced today of the accession of that brilliant Russian statesman, Kerensky to the leadership of Russian democracy.

"I don't wish Germany to harbor any delusions that Great Britain will be put out of the fight until full liberty has been established. I predict it will not be long before the German chancellor delivers a different speech, and that is the one for which we are waiting."

Beating the U-Boats.

At another point in his speech, which was delivered in London, the premier said:

"Regarding the submarine menace, I must disagree with Chancellor Michaelis. Gradually, but surely we are increasing our protection and diminishing our losses."

Speaking of the ship building program, Mr. Lloyd George said Great Britain this year would turn out four times as many ships as last year. In the last two months of 1917 as many ships will be finished as in all of 1916.

"The chancellor's speech," Mr. Lloyd George said, offered no hope for Belgium. The determination of the allies was that Belgium must be restored as a free and independent people, not a German protectorate.

In conclusion the premier said that the allies would go on fighting to the end, knowing that the future of mankind was in their trust to maintain and defend."

NOT MUCH ENTHUSIASM.

NO HITCH IN FIRST DRAFT

Drawing for Army is Completed and Selection is Next Step.

PREPARING TO GET YOUNG MEN PICKED

In the 10,500 Numbers But One Blank Was Found by the Workers.

Washington, July 21.—With ten million men listed in the order of their liability to service, the federal government began today its task of preparation for organization of a selective draft army—the task of determining who among those chosen shall be exempt.

The drawing to determine who shall first be liable for service ended early today, after it had been in progress without interruption for more than 16 hours, and while the officials in charge rested from their long vigil, others took up the tabulation of official figures for forwarding to local exemption boards over the country.

Most of this work it is hoped to complete before the day is over so that the local authorities can be given their instructions early next week. Within ten days the men who are subject to the president's order of exemption of a war quota of 687,000 may be appearing before their boards for exemption and for decision as to exemption. Twice 687,000 are to be summoned by the boards, on the theory that two registrants must be examined for every soldier accepted, and the number each registration district must furnish has been carefully worked out.

Pleased by the outcome, the provost marshal's office was greatly pleased today over the outcome of the drawing, officials declaring it an accomplishment scarcely less noteworthy than the successful registration carried out six weeks ago. Ten million men they pointed out had been assigned places on the nation's muster roll within the space of less than a day, and apparently with only one minor error in the whole complicated process. The single error came to light near the end of the drawing this morning when a blank was found where there should have been a number in one of the 10,500 capsules by which the wartime fortunes of America's youth were determined. It did not materially interfere with the working out of the lotteries, however, and all officials agreed that it could work no injustice to any registrant. It means only a temporary complication, they said, and in no way impairs equality of the lotteries.

Will Find the Error.

What serial number should have been in the place of the blank had not been determined today, but it will be found shortly by a careful rechecking of the lists, then it will be assigned to the only place open on the liability list—No. 10,500 at the very foot. Because of its absence there only are 10,499 places now, with holders of the serial number 3,217 in last place. The vacant place was shifted to the end of the list because when the blank was drawn in 10,044th it immediately was replaced by the drawing of a number and that made the numbers lack one of hitting the 10,500 places.

It was said at the provost marshal's office that the error undoubtedly resulted from an oversight and that no one could be blamed. A shift in plans only a few hours before the drawing began threw on the general's assistants the task of providing quickly ten times as many capsules and ten times as many capsules as had been counted upon.

Blank Broke the Monotony.

Drawing of the blank came rather as a relief than a disappointment to the tired officials and correspondents who had become wearied hours since.

ARMY OF COOKS IS WANTED FOR THE BIG CAMPS

Washington, July 21.—The quartermaster general's department has sent out telegrams to presidents of fifty-eight hotel associations throughout the country requesting them the "loan" of 3,840 experienced cooks to supplement the kitchens in the sixteen cantonments for the new national army. Fifteen civilian cooks will be required for each regiment to be formed, making an average of 240 for each cantonment.

MEDICAL MEN IN STRONG APPEAL

Urge the Men to Take All Precautions for Their Physical State.

American Training Camp in France, July 21.—(By the Associated Press)—The chief medical officer of the American expeditionary forces yesterday made a round of the companies in camp near headquarters, and gave each troop section a brief talk on general health conditions.

He explained the dangers that confronted all armies and urged the men to take precautions available for each individual soldier.

The troops responded finely to his patriotic appeal to keep in good physical condition for the reputation of the American arms, and promised faithfully not to drink unfiltered water and to observe other health precautions.

FINLAND IS NEAR CRISIS

Conflict With Russia is Now Believed to Be Inevitable.

INDEPENDENCE IS THE DIET'S DEMAND

Socialists Believe Petrograd Government Too Busy to Contest.

Helsinki, Finland, July 19.—A conflict with Russia is regarded as inevitable because of the action of the Finnish diet in adopting a bill granting independence to Finland. The socialist members of parliament assert, however, that Petrograd has its hands too full with its own troubles to attempt repression.

Before the adoption of the bill providing for independence was adopted a decision was taken on the question whether the measure should be treated as urgent or postponed until the next session. The faction in favor of urgency required a five-sixth majority under article 60 of the constitution which the socialist majority had agreed to respect. The decision involved the immediate voting on the bill, the result giving a two-thirds majority necessary for the alteration of fundamental laws.

The announcement of vote was received by prolonged cheering and cries of "Long Live Finland" and "End Russian connection." The diet thereafter rejected 104 to 87, a proposal by M. Tallas, member of the young Finnish party, that the law as prescribed by the constitution be submitted for Russia's approval or veto. A final vote was taken on a resolution of M. Hornberg, member of the Swedish party, the import of which was that the diet reserve the right to break the old bonds with Russia. The Hornberg resolution was defeated chiefly by the vote of the socialists themselves, who stand for this policy but object to following the "initiative of the non-socialist party.

THE ARMY DRAWINGS.

Continuation of the army drawings in Fort Wayne and Allen county will be found on Page 14 and succeeding pages. The list is not complete. The lists are being corrected as rapidly as possible, but as transmitted by wire errors have occurred that are not yet wholly eliminated.

GERMANY HAS DUTCH GOAT

Anyway, It Comes from Berlin That Holland Has Made Fair Promises.

BRITISH RAID ON SHIPS DENOUNCED

Netherlands Government is Pledging It Shall Not Occur Again.

Copenhagen, July 21.—The British seizure of German ships was denounced as a "brutal assault on defenseless merchantmen" and a "profligate act" by Dr. Kriege, director of the judicial department of the German foreign office in replying to a question in the reichstag. Dr. Kriege added that Germany had urged Holland to demand an apology for this unheard of violation in Dutch waters, and a precise assurance that it would not recur.

Dr. Kriege said Germany was entitled to and would expect immediate restoration of the captured ships and compensation for the cargoes of those sunk, also for the wounded seamen and their dependents. Holland, he said, had already expressed regret at the occurrence and declared it would demand the fullest satisfaction.

Holland further promised that the Dutch fleet would do its utmost to prevent a repetition, and replying to the German representations said it was prepared to employ the utmost energy to obtain satisfaction of the German demands. The German government, Dr. Kriege said, was confident Holland would act accordingly.

DENIES THE CHARGE.

Washington, D. C., July 21.—Minister Van Rappard, of the Netherlands, issued a statement today denouncing as untrue reports that the Dutch government has allowed German submarines free passage through its territorial waters, and asserting that the rule adopted by his country to prevent abuse of its waters by belligerents is stricter than the rules adopted by any other neutral.

SUFFRAGIST WILL BE HEARD HERE SUNDAY

Dr. Effie Jones Will Speak at Plymouth Church and at Open-Air Meeting.

Dr. Effie McCollum Jones is touring the state of Indiana under the auspices of the National Woman's Suffrage association. Dr. Jones is an Iowa suffragist, and in the recent campaign in that state was a tower of strength, both as a speaker and as organizer. An officer of the State Charities and a prominent state and local worker in the W. C. T. U., she naturally became a force in the Iowa suffrage ranks. Her many years experience as a minister and chautauqua lecturer have developed her natural speaker's gift and as an orator she is both logical and eloquent. She was elected dean of Lombard college at Galesburg, Ill., and shortly thereafter was called to the national suffrage work. In this latter field she has won nationwide recognition as a charming and forceful speaker, but to those who know her personally she appeals not only as a brilliant lecturer and a magnetic leader in a great cause, but also as a devoted mother and the center of a charming home circle.

Dr. Jones is to speak at the Congregational church Sunday morning at 10:45 and at the open air meeting at Reservoir park, on the south side, Sunday evening at 7:30. Dr. Jones' subject will be, "Suffrage from a Christian Viewpoint," and her interpretation of this subject is both inspiring and convincing and everyone should avail themselves of this wonderful opportunity to hear her either in the morning or at the open air meeting at Reservoir park Sunday evening.

REICHSTAG ADJOURNS.

Copenhagen, July 21.—The reichstag adjourned yesterday until September 26, says a dispatch from Berlin.

HIRELING DISTURBERS ARE ARRESTED

Petrograd, July 21.—Detachments of soldiers and sailors with machine guns have arrested thirty-six maximilist (radical socialist) delegates to the Baltic fleet on board the Russian destroyer Orpheus, which was lying at the British quay.

LENINE IS ARRESTED.

London, July 21.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Petrograd says it is rumored there that Lenin, leader of the extremists, and seven of his lieutenants have been arrested while trying to escape to Kronstadt.

CABINET MEETING STORMY.

Petrograd, July 21.—The cabinet meeting leading to the announced resignation of Premier Lvoff sat until dawn yesterday and was somewhat stormy. Minister of War Kerensky criticized the ministers and military authorities for not rising to recent events and for not using their powers to suppress mutiny. M. Kerensky was particularly severe towards Gen. Polovtsov, governor of the Petrograd military district, who he had proposed to remove from the Petrograd command, but reconsidered the decision after the ministers had assumed the responsibility of changing the original orders of Gen. Polovtsov, which they considered were fraught with danger. It was made clear that Gen. Polovtsov's hands were tied.

RIGOR AWAITS TRAITORS.

Petrograd, July 21.—All Russians who have criminal relations with Germany are to be sought and vigorously prosecuted by the government. A beginning was made with the arrest of a notorious member of the Maximilists named Zinovieff, and Zechloff, ring

GEN. PERSHING MAKES VISIT TO BRITISH FRONT

Paris, July 21.—Maj. Gen. Pershing, the American commander, with two staff officers, left Paris yesterday on his first visit to the British front. The American officers will be the guests of Sir Douglas Haig, the British commander in chief, returning to the capital Sunday. Gen. Pershing will make a long tour with Gen. Haig along the British lines, studying the methods employed by the British in combating the enemy with a view to the adoption of those methods by the American forces.

Plans are already being prepared for the remodeling of this building. The old home of the Hamilton National bank will be remodeled to a great extent and every new banking facility will be installed in order to make the new home of the Citizens' Trust company.

In the deal is also included the building which was formerly occupied by the Dukes Clothing company. This portion of the building will be rented at once. It is said that a Chicago restaurant man will open an up-to-date restaurant in this part of the building. The partition between the two buildings will be torn out and the three upper floors will be changed into modern office rooms.

U-BOATS BEAT SHIP BUILDING ABOUT 4 TO 1

Washington, July 21.—Figures in the possession of the government based upon the best information with reach of the allies, make it appear that since the beginning of the German ruthless submarine warfare the destruction of merchantmen hitherto available for entrance commerce has been at least four times the amount of tonnage built. The figures show losses to be averaging about one million tons, "dead weight," monthly, this including the weight of cargoes, whereas the weekly statements from London are based upon registered tonnage.

GERMANY SCRAPS ZEPS; RUSHING TO BUILD AIRPLANES

Genoa, July 21.—Reliable reports from Romanshorn are that airplanes of the latest models manufactured at the Zeppelin factory at Friedrichshafen, daily are to be seen flying over Lake Constantine.

The reports added that the cessation of the manufacture of Zeppelins was due to the fact that German headquarters became convinced that Zeppelins were of little war value, and that supremacy in the air in the future belonged to the airplanes. The Germans also are said to have an extensive American aerial program and that therefore counter aerial preparations have been started by them.

It is stated that the workmen in all the Zeppelin factories in Germany have been doubled in number and that the airships on hand have been removed to unused sheds.

LID IS PLACED ON CONVENTION OF THE IRISH

J. J. WOOD RECEIVES MEDAL AND DIPLOMA

Panama-Pacific Exposition Pays Tribute to His Inventive Genius.

This morning a letter received by J. J. Wood, factory manager of the General Electric works, stated that under separate cover a medal and diploma from the Panama-Pacific International exposition was being mailed to him. The latter was from H. H. Gale, manager of the advertising department of the General Electric works, who stated that "You will note that this award is granted you as a collaborator in the exhibits of the General Electric company. The particular service the jury had in mind in connection with your work in connection with the designs in fractional horse power motors exhibited on various devices in the Home Electrical." The medal and the diploma will be assigned to places in the wall decorations in Mr. Wood's office. Mr. and Mrs. Wood are preparing for an extensive trip in the west, beginning August 1. "This will be my first real vacation during the thirty-eight years I have served the company," Mrs. Wood said. Mr. Wood has been in business fifty-one years, twenty-seven of them in Fort Wayne. During the half-century he was granted patents on 240 electrical and mechanical devices, all of which were of a high order and many of which are now being used. The output of the local General Electric works is composed of the Wood system to a great extent.

DUELLOW EMPLOYEES AT PLAY

The annual field day exercises of the employees of the Duell Manufacturing company is in progress at Swinney park, and a big crowd is there as participants in the events or as spectators. The program opened with a parade of automobiles, headed by the Elks band, which started from the Elks temple at 1 o'clock and proceeded directly to the park. There were several machines in the procession and they carried company and club officials and the baseball team. A large refreshment stand on the west bank of the lake is doing an immense business, and just west of it, on the track, are the athletic and other "stunts" of the day. This evening there will be an ice cream social and a band concert which will draw a big crowd to the park.

HIT THE SHOPS HARD

The selective conscription drawing hit many men in the industrial plants of the city, in some of the departments twenty-five per cent. of the employees being affected. Foreman L. S. Trachtel, of the cost department of the Pennsylvania shops, has less than twenty men and five of them had numbers in the early part of the drawing, bringing them within the 500 list. Departments in the General Electric and of the Bowser shop also, were affected to nearly the extent of the cost department of the Pennsylvania.

Between sessions of the convention, the participants will make trips through the shops.

New Shoe Department For Men and Boys

Owing to the ever-increasing demand from thousands of customers for shoes, Patterson-Fletcher Co. will, about August 1, open to the public one of the finest shoe departments in the state.

The appointments of this new department will be in keeping with the balance of this modern store and the fixtures are now being installed. Shoes of a quality that will conform to the high standard of merchandise for which this place has always been known will be featured.

The "Stetson" shoe for men, that has the reputation as being the finest shoe manufactured will be featured as the principal line and "The Not High Price But High Value for the Price" slogan of Patterson-Fletcher Co. can be very appropriately applied to this line of shoes. In connection to the above line the "Regal" shoe will be well represented.

The boys and girls will be especially pleased to know that "Buster Brown" will furnish the shoes for their section and parents, too, will appreciate this good news, as "Buster Brown" shoes for children represent a high quality shoe sold at reasonable prices.

Mr. L. R. Waterman, buyer and manager of this department, says that the usual policy of Patterson-Fletcher Co. will be upheld in the carrying of large assortments of the new styles, as well as a full line of staple shoes, and that regardless of the size you wear or the style you may prefer, you'll find it in this new department which will be the largest exclusive men's and boys' shoe department in the state.

Mr. Waterman is a new resident of Fort Wayne, recently moving here from Hudson, Ind. His assistant will be Mr. G. Morrow, another new Fort Wayne citizen, coming from Bluffton.

Watch for the opening announcement about August 1.

ROBISON CRUSOE ENTERS U. S. ARMY

Cave-Man Who Ran Wild for Year to Ward Off T. B. Leaves Retreat.

(By CHRISTIAN BAYER. (Modern Cave Man.)

Sun and wind beating free upon the body in its natural state can do more for health than all the doctors in the world.

I am sure of this because I have lived the life of a "cave man," as they call it, in Palestine, in Denmark, my native country, in the cattle lands of Argentina and on the lonely Santa Barbara islands of the Pacific.

A bronchial affliction at one time threatened to afflict my lungs. As a last resource I decided to dispense with clothing and plunge into the wilderness for the nature life.

In addition to the necessity for health's sake, there was a call of the wild which evidently came from my Christian Bayer as he looked the day he enlisted.

Danish ancestors. The stone age stories my mother told me as a boy set me longing to live as the hardy people of the north had lived.

It is not an easy matter to keep up a Robinson Crusoe existence nowadays unless one gets far from civilization. There are the conventions to be considered and the laws made by people who live bunched up in cities.

For many months prior to my enlistment in the army I had lived in a let my hair grow long, just like a real wild man.

That was not my first taste of the out-of-door existence. Several years ago I was considered doomed to tuberculosis. I left Denmark and went to Palestine, where I discarded clothing and lived on fruits and nuts in the unsettled places. Then I went to the Argentine cattle ranches in the north country, working nude, except for a loin cloth. In Paraguay I spent some time with a band of Indians.

Later I worked my way on a Danish boat to New Orleans, and from there up to Los Angeles, where I set out for the Santa Barbaras. A Mexican took me across and left me ashore on Santa Cruz at midnight.

The next morning I discovered a large rock cave, with a sand bank in front. Out of the hard, blue rock I made a stone hammer, Indian fashion, with a stick for a handle. It was for protection against wild pigs and for offense in obtaining animal food. As necessity demanded I made other implements for my daily life.

There are many inconveniences in the cave-man life, but the pleasure of building up a splendid body overbalances hardship. Swimming out to a reef to get mussels for breakfast is not a home comfort but vastly invigorating. I was also able to get small fruits and berries to vary my diet, so I did quite well.

Running clothesless over the island, plunging into the sea "as I wished," seemed a glorious life to me. My body is as hard as nails and I no longer fear the threat of disease.

When I heard from men on a fishing boat that the United States had gone to war I felt it my duty to offer my services to the country.

I like the army drill, but at night when the moon is shining over the bay I feel the old call to discard my clothing and run into the water. But the camp training is nearer the simple life than anything I have known except the caves in the wilds.

Mrs. Cromley was of a lovable disposition, and was regarded with high esteem by a large circle of friends here, especially among the younger set, who are greatly grieved by her death. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, from which place her funeral was held Friday at 2:30 p. m., her pastor, Rev. George B. Sessions, officiating. Interment in Maumee cemetery. The griefed husband has the deep sympathy of all in his bereavement.

Succeed Miss Spafford at Columbia City.

(Special to The Sentinel.)
Columbia City, Ind., July 21.—Tentative plans are now being considered by the city school officials to vocationalize two departments of the curriculum and extend it materially. Miss Gertrude Wiley, who has had ten years' experience at Whiteland, Ind., will succeed Miss Spafford, gone to Red Cross service, in the domestic science or home economics department. She will arrive here August 1st to inaugurate a canning campaign in the community. The school board has purchased a steam pressure canning outfit for this purpose. ## AN ARMY OF DEMOCRACY.

It is to be in all aspects an army of democracy. The principle of it is fundamentally democratic. The method of creating it is democratic. The government had said to all its young men of that age best fitted for service, "You must serve." In thorough equality of chance all were submitted to the process by which the lot of each was determined. From beginning to end, so far as conscription has gone, nothing could have been more just or fair in its bearing upon all under liability. Some will complain, but their numbers will not be great. Others will shirk and if they can, evade, but they will be few. A great many will be exempted because for some one of a great variety of reasons they ought not to be in the army, but that will be either a measure of justice to them or a consideration of the government's vital needs in other fields than of the battle.

The first army only will be brought at this time to the colors under the law of selection after the regiments of the regular establishment and of the national guards have been filled to war strength. The expectation is and the probability appears that ere many months another great army will be needed and other hundreds of thousands of young men will come forward in the order of their numbers as decided by fair lot. Ten millions are registered. Each of these has an exactly determined place in the lists of those liable to service. He is known, has an identity, and is subject to call whenever needed. Some who may be set aside in the making up of these first levies will be called when later armies are required. No one can say what the necessities of the nation are going to be and under what stress they will at length place the government for fighting men.

But there they are—ten millions of them—registered for service and answerable when needed. That is democracy. There can be no other plan of national defense more democratic save that which in good course will follow the step now proceeding. Universal training and service established even at the outbreak of the European war—the necessity of which a few of the more far-sighted then preached and which all now can see—would have this nation today in thorough state for defense upon the most democratic principle of military service any nation can establish.

The country has approximated that principle as closely as the emergencies of this crisis have made possible. The need is for armies at once and the best of the nation's manhood has been called to uphold the authority, the rights and the dignity of their government. The first essay of the government to apply real democracy to its military arm has been impressive. It has been successful. It has been so far carried on without hitch or disorder, without resistance and without confusion.

The young men who rally to the colors under the conscription law go full of honors and with loud acclaim of the people of the nation. They exemplify and exalt a new and bright aspect of democracy in the United States of America.

ALL WORKING TOGETHER.

General Goethals and Chairman Denman in the province of shipping and a few members of the senate in the uplifted fields they so highly ornament are working cheerfully together to aid this country to get licked.

We know and all know that neither General Goethals nor Chairman Denman has any purpose of the sort in mind, but are actuated in what they do by the best intentions. There is an undesirable country that is reputed to be paved with good intentions, which is a great metaphorical truth. The trouble with the pair of them seems to be that each fancies that the job of building ocean tonnage faster than William's energetic U-boats can destroy devolves wholly upon himself, whereas there is quite a contrary state of affairs. General Goethals was chosen to give executive direction to this work because on the Panama canal he proved himself an amazing genius for getting things done. Chairman Denman was put in the place he occupies because he knows about ship-building. General Goethals very probably knows a lot less about ships and ship-building than about some other things.

It would appear that these two estimable gentlemen, each great in his field and anxious to serve the country, might somehow dispose of their differences and permit the building of ships to be put under way and pressed with all the energy that both of them can put into the job. No one questions their patriotism; a good many are questioning their good sense.

On both counts some of those obstructionists, critics and carpers in the senate of the United States come in for utter condemnation. Their patriotism is questioned and their good sense has deserted them. There are a few of them whose names are fast becoming abomination in the land and the day is not far off when the voice of the people will be lifted loud and angrily against them. It is a sorrow to behold General Goethals and Chairman Denman in any way assisting these senators to get the country a licking.

The first man drawn for conscript service might make a bid for more than local fame if he were not quite so numerous. A few less than five thousand of him make the difficulties of creating an interesting movie of all he may henceforth do insuperable. And then some of him here and there is quite likely to claim exemption, which itself will add something to the emphasis of the distinction.

The favorite indoor sport at Indianapolis appears to be the indictment of municipal officials of that flourishing city. The batting average of them is 1,000, for those who haven't been the subject of true bills are made up for by others who have been lariatied twice or oftener.

The man who was worried because he didn't know and has now found out, ought to be relieved in mind if not made cheerful in spirit. Of course there are some disappointments—but everybody cannot get into the first army.

What Delay is Costing

BY HARRY B. HUNT.

The waste of thousands of tons of perishable foodstuffs—fruits and vegetables—through failure to provide a free channel from farm to city housewife, will be one of the immediate results of congress' food bill delay.

One of the country's greatest garden truck and fruit crops is now ready for harvest. The necessity for foodstuffs saving is greater than ever before. But producer and consumer are still held apart by obstructive middlemen and commission brokers.

These interests, to multiply their own profits, keep prices down to the farmer, discouraging his efforts to move his crop to market, and shoot prices up to the housewife. The result is she will not buy in quantity and persevere for next winter, but will purchase only for day-to-day use.

In an eleventh hour attempt to meet this situation the department of agriculture is planning a campaign among farmers and producers. It will help, but not save the situation.

Following a conference with big canners and food packers, Secretary Houston is laboring to get farmers to preserve, can and dry perishables for their own use.

This campaign plans no effort to get the city housewife these perishables at prices where she, too, may lay up her winter supply. She is to be left, as usual, dependant upon the big commercial canners.

Also, the average farm housewife always does put up sufficient fruits and vegetables for her own use, unless sugar and cans are impossibly high.

This situation well illustrates the difference between the department of agriculture viewpoint and that of Herbert Hoover.

Hoover would sweep away the obstacles that keep prices high to the city housewife and on the other hand, would maintain such prices to the producer that he could not afford to let his crop rot on the ground, which he often does now.

This he could accomplish, if congress would only grant the power the president has asked, by regulating distribution, forcing proper transportation and controlling marketing conditions.

Already the southern perishable crop is largely harvested. There has been much waste and loss, but northern prices have remained sky-high.

The harvest of perishables in the twenty-four north central states is just beginning. The maximum conservation can be met only by a control that will see that every city housewife, as well as every farmer's wife, has a chance to stock her pantry shelves against next winter.

This Herbert Hoover would like to do. Congress has prevented him.

FOOD ECONOMY.

(Chicago Tribune.)

Though we have a bumper crop of grain and potatoes this year we shall have to eat before we avoid waste to insure an adequate supply for ourselves and our allies. Even taking the crop forecasts of the department of agriculture at their face value, we cannot escape a serious food shortage unless we adopt rigorous methods of conservation. But a writer in the Manufacturers' Record asserts we have not expected even an average crop production, to say nothing of a bumper harvest. He deplores the optimistic forecast of the department of agriculture, declaring the apparent showing of a big yield was obtained by comparing this year's production with that of 1916—a famine year.

By comparing the indicated yield of wheat, corn, oats, barley and rye of the present year with the production of 1915 he arrives at the conclusion there will be a shortage of 327,525,000 bushels. The 1917 forecast indicates a yield of 678,000,000 bushels of wheat and 1,124,000,000 bushels of corn, as against 1,025,301,000 bushels of wheat in 1915 and 2,994,793,000 bushels of corn. The gain in corn this year is offset by shortage in other cereals.

It is obvious that greater drains upon our resources will be made this year than ever before. The foregoing analysis at least suggests that we ought not to be over-optimistic about our crop prospects. The necessity for adopting the most stringent food economy therefore becomes all the more urgent.

Of sin that stains its crimson on the heart

O Father, grace to smooth away impress
Of shame that fade before Thy righteousness—
The Gift to paint away those blot that start
Like lurid shadows from a canvased art
Seen in some studio of wickedness!

O Lord, as when the Tyrian dyer found
The blue that outshone every other blue,
Help us to win the crown and chrisom hue

Remoscopy.

If you will keep company with rich people don't
be too proud to accept the gratuities they offer.
The only place ambition should have in the general
scheme of things is the dictionary—and it ought to be marked obsolete even in there.

Try being good to everybody—there are lots of folks who will not answer back.
People who show best by borrowed light may be dead ones even though they are not dead suns.

We ask for a small portion of the Kaiser's American holdings when his property is confiscated by the state.

Bernstorf has been such a slimy crook that it is easy to see why Germany wishes to honor him.
Why conceal the fact—the German soldiers are
the king brutes of history and ought to be treated accordingly.

Not Lethargy—Perhaps.

"The ball was opened last Sunday week when Rev. D. V. Williams, of the First M. E. church, called the attention of his audience to the seemingly lethargy they were in, and that if half of the accusations that were being charged to Redkey were true, it was high time to act."

Our private opinion, brother, is that in "lethargy" it is always "high time to act."

It is a church!

Brad's Not Up Optically.

Men clearing brush for Joe Burr, at Alloway, N. J., complained of finding glass in the fried potatoes prepared by Joe's cook. Says Joe: "Come to find out the cook wore bifocal 'specs' and the heat from the cook stove had loosened them—and they dropped in the potatoes—I bought her a pair of goggles."

We've heard of glass eyes, and other things
Too, dropping in tomatoes,
But that can't hold a candle to Bifocals in potatoes;

To sum the situation, Joe,
When cooking specs of yokes,
If spectacles, the cook must wear—
Be sure they're NOT bifocals.

—Bradford in Phila. North American.

Most cooks wear goo-goo eyes, dear Joe,
As we now pipe to Bradford;

And some cook fast, and some cook slow,
And some cook very sad, lord;

So we'd suggest for those who cook
For you, me, and Miranda,

They wear what we do—have a look!—
They're KRYTOKS, and they're dandy!

(All opticians and optometrists kindly give us
baksheesh! Also admit that our taste is of the best!)

"Upon What Meat Doth This Our Caesar Feed?"

Anthrax, writing from the lake mists, seems tired of life. Says he: "I haven't caught a dinged-

didn't wait till next year for my vacation. You can't get fish enough here to live on, so I'm taking

Lemons, eat old Mrs. Vinegar—(Caustic old besom, and thin as a peel!)
Let's eat the things that von Hindenburg eats—
Flat Irons and Beets! Flat Irons and Beets!"

Our Daily Tip to the Kaiser.

WILLIAM, SPEAKING TO YOU AS YOUR PHYNCIAN, WE MAY SAY THAT YOU ARE

Farm Hint.

"Do not let the little pigs hang over a high

Certainly not. They should be coaxed to hang over a brisk fire. There is nothing like training
the young.

(Christian Science Monitor.)

There is a genuine note of encouragement in the information that the
ways have actually been laid for, and
that construction has actually begun
on, ten vessels of the great fleet of
ocean freighters, steel and wooden,
provided for in the war budget recently passed by the United States congress.
These ten vessels are to cost, altogether,
only $3,000,000 of the $750,000,000 appropriated to pay for the building of the new United States merchant marine. They are of the standardized type of wooden vessel, intended to be put together with all the expedition
that good workmanship will allow, the
main point in view being to overcome
and render negligible the activities of the German submarine. It is a fair
example of the efficiency that characterizes industrial methods in the United States, that, just as soon as congress enacted the necessary legislation, and the shipping board and General Goethals were ready to proceed from contract to shipbuilding, the Foundation company was prepared, not only to sign contracts for building its allotment of vessels, but to lay the keels, connect the ribs, and develop the skeletons of these craft, in its yards on the salt meadows along the Passaic river,
between Newark and Jersey City. All delays ended with the debates in congress and the controversy over the relative merits of steel and wooden ships.

Each wooden vessel is to be of 3,000
tons burden, and, as already said, of standardized design and construction.
Thus, there will be duplication of parts, and the vessels, making allowance for the difference in size, can be put together as rapidly as railway freight
cars, or a popular make of automobiles. The wooden ships will all look alike, when ready for commission.
Neither art nor aestheticism is considered in their construction. They are needed only to carry supplies to the allied countries. The principal thing
is to get them afloat, and the next
point of importance is to get enough
of them, and get them quickly. Since the ten ships in question may be regarded as the initial unit of the mammoth merchant fleet which the United States is going to float, primarily that
the allied nations may be relieved of
all menace of food shortage, what Franklin Remington, of the Foundation company, has to say regarding plans for carrying on the work should have profound interest for anxious people over a large part of the world, for what this country has planned, and what it accomplishes, may be taken as a fair indication of what may reasonably be expected of all the other corporations soon to be engaged in similar work. Said Mr. Remington a few days ago: "Hundreds of shipwrights,
carpenters, calkers, and other mechanics, drawn from the Foundation company's construction force of 15,000
men, will be brought to the plant.
Many have arrived. And the ways at the head of the Passaic, west of the company's regular yards, are being rushed to completion. Deliveries are to be fifteen days apart, until the ten ships are completed. All timber, machinery and material necessary for the big task are to be given precedence
over other less important shipments
by the central rail board, now operating the railroads of the country in harmony. Fourteen mills in the south and northwest will turn out the timber, which will be yellow pine, and deliveries are to be no longer than two weeks in transit from mill to
yard."

This statement will go far toward explaining why the public has been so
impatient in the matter of getting the
war preliminaries out of political hands, away from parliamentary obstruction, free from official controversy and red tape, and safely lodged

in the embrace of organized American industry. Organized American industry, being a human invention and achievement, is far from being perfect.
It has some very serious faults, it must be confessed by even its best friends,
but inefficiency is not one of them. All organized American industry needs is
a contract, and a liberal contract price,
and it will turn out the finished article
with as strict a regard for specifications as any organized industry in the world, private or governmental, independent or subsidized.

Herein has Germany made one more
of its tremendous mistakes in estimating the war strength of other countries. It assumes that, because the United States is a peaceful, rather than
a warrior, nation, neither its government nor its people can carry on war
successfully. It has sneered at the war declaration of the United States, a country without a great military system, a country untaught in martial ways, a crude, careless, inefficient,
happy-go-lucky democracy, forgetting completely that the organized industries of the United States, the greatest in the world, could be quickly transformed into organized war-making industries.

There have been serious and regrettable delays in United States war preparations, but when the things that have been accomplished in three months are considered, how the country has provided a $7,000,000,000 war
fund for itself and its allies; how it has registered nearly 10,000,000 men of
service age; how it has mobilized its
regulars and its national guardsmen;
how it has sent a fleet to British waters, and the vanguard of a great army
to France, what need is there of thinking that it will fail in shipbuilding, or
in any other particular?

Uncle Sam's embargo grip on the kaiser's throat is tightening day by day.

Its effect is keenly felt on both sides
of the Atlantic. There are neutral protests from Holland and Scandinavia,
and from American exporters.

Some of the latter seem to have imagined the embargo would lift the British blockade, and that things would be easier. They have discovered Uncle Sam
is not going off half-cocked.

To enforce a real embargo takes an elaborate organization to issue the necessary export license for every shipment,
and inspect all shipments.

Building up that organization is the present embargo task. Until it is complete the British blockade will continue
in full force.

At present shipment from America involves complicated legal procedure and
three permits, (1) the usual ship clearance papers, issued by the collector of customs; (2) the American export license; (3) the British "letter of assurance," issued by British diplomatic agents to secure passage through the British blockade. Even then the ship is liable to British admiralty search and anything suspicious in an American port brings a search by the American custom house "neutrality squads."

This gives an idea of how hard it is to ship something to the Kaiser through a neutral port.

The British have built up efficient inspection in American ports, now being copied in the American organization and eventually to be replaced by it. Then the American export license will supersede the British "letter of assurance."

Co-operation with the British in the first stages of the embargo gives the key to the whole purpose, to crush Germany
by making the blockade air-tight. Every other consideration is secondary, neutral
pleas and needs and the demands of the American export business alike.

Organization of the embargo machinery
will proceed rapidly. The nucleus already exists in the customs service, the coast guard, the steamboat inspection bureau
and the "neutrality squads."

It is no secret that the principal business of the license men will be declining
licenses, not granting them.

CONDEMNING MR. BARLEYCORN.

(Tipton Times.)

At Indianapolis an effort is being made to keep the soldiers away from the saloons and places of vice. If the booze traffic was knocked out there
would not be one-fifth of the vices as
now exist. Why will a sane people tolerate the sale of intoxicating liquors which are ruining so many people and rendering them incapable
of taking care of themselves, to say nothing of the continued vices which
they do not seem to resist. A man who drinks, especially those who get drunk, do not seem to have any of the finer or keener senses, and will do things that he would not think of doing if he were sober and at himself.
For the good of humanity in every community in the United States John Barleycorn must go and should stay
gone.

FROM THE SENTINEL PAGES 25 YEARS AGO

The hot waves continued.
James Shepler opened his new grocery
at 256 Calhoun street this afternoon.

Jeff Meyers was injured in a runaway accident tin the country yesterday. His right arm was dislocated.

The murder of last Tuesday turns out
to have been but a drunken row and adds
one more crime to the record of drink.

"Skinny" Moore cut his right hand in a frightful manner yesterday. He slipped and fell, striking a broken beer glass.

William Busching, of Wallace street,
was handling a pop bottle yesterday,
when it exploded, cutting his right hand
and forehead severely.

Calhoun street is now a perfect network of wires. The old-time political processions with their high poles could not have moved through our streets.

Beebe R. Alexander, bookkeeper for Bond, the miller, was severely bitten by a dog yesterday morning. Dr. Myers cauterized the wounds on the injured man's
right hand.

The republican district committee of the Twelfth district will meet at Fort Wayne Wednesday, July 27, to select a chairman to succeed Hon. Harry C. Han-
nan, resigned.

Last night a meeting of the republicans
of South Wayne was held at the town hall and the "South Wayne Republican club" was organized with the following officers: President, E. W. Cook; first vice-president, J. N. Taylor; second vice-president, Ezra Nickerson; treasurer,
John Erickson; secretary, F. J. Bechtold.

While conversing with a friend near
Meyer Brothers' drug store last evening,
Corporal Jones, of the Zollinger battery,
met with a peculiar mishap. His friend
noticed a stream of blood oozing from his neck and inquired the cause. Jones placed his hand over the stream and rushed into
the drug store, where an examination
showed that he had in some manner rup-
tured a blood vessel.

About the Price of Coal

MORE coal was mined in the United States in 1916 than ever before, and under normal conditions prices should have been lower. However, conditions have not been normal.

Last year brought wonderful prosperity to practically all lines of industry. Factories not only ran with full forces of workmen, but they ran overtime—and they used coal—more than for several years back. On top of the general business consumption there were new and enormous demands from powder companies, munition plants, steel mills, and other special lines of industry, as a direct result of war conditions.

According to estimate of the United States Geological Survey, there were 509,000,000 tons of bituminous or soft coal mined last year. The enormous demand not only consumed all of this, but it wiped out also all of the coal in storage, estimated at about 40,000,000 tons.

With this condition of demand and supply, a coal shortage was inevitable. In order to prevent any possibility of a shut-down of their plants, the factories who are making war supplies offered big premiums for prompt delivery of quantities of coal. They could sell their product for almost any price, and the cost of the coal was a small consideration. The prices that they offered not only diverted heavy shipments of coal from their normal markets, causing shortages there, but they established the prices that all markets had to pay.

When Indiana wanted coal, the only way any supply could be secured was by payment of the prices that other markets were willing to pay.

That was the situation that the Indiana retail coal merchant faced in buying his coal, and this condition is one of the reasons why he in turn had to demand high retail coal prices from the public.

This is the second of a series of talks about the retail coal business to appear once each week in these columns. We ask that you read them and consider the facts that they present in a spirit of fairness to the man from whom you buy your coal.

REAL ESTATE INSTRUCTION COURSE.

The announcement that the National Association of Real Estate Boards will sponsor a uniform course of real estate instruction constitutes a timely milestone between the old order and the new in the field of real estate endeavor.

For several years educational agencies in various parts of the country have been offering courses in "Real Estate." Despite the lack of co-ordination between these agencies, and the lack of precedent in formulating their methods of instruction, popular demand for authentic and systematized information on the more important phases of real estate operation has enabled them to successfully accomplish their mission, in most cases.

Now comes the National Association of Real Estate Boards with a uniform course of instruction. The movement has assumed an importance proportionate to the vital economic benefits to be secured. The national association proposes, in substance, to produce a text adapted to the requirements of modern real estate practice. To adapt the text by the use of master sheets and substituted chapters to conditions as they exist in various parts of the country, preserving in each case only the sound economic basis and fundamental form of the national text. To present this text together with a complete and thoroughly tested plan of instruction to the various educational agencies which are qualified to preserve the high academic standard of practical instruction which the national association hopes to maintain.

It is reported that a text has already been prepared which is in the process of revision for actual use; and that many colleges and universities throughout the country, through their extension divisions and school of commerce, have hailed the production of this course with enthusiasm and have pledged their aid in its successful development.

The plan of instruction will enable the national association to standardize and improve real estate methods throughout the country; to raise ethical and professional standards and increase the sphere of economic usefulness of the real estate broker; to make a scientific investigation of the laws of real estate development; to promulgate among the real estate fraternity and its clients the evolution of real estate practice which has accompanied the progress of modern commercial and industrial expansion, and to secure the assistance and coordinate the experiences of the leading authorities throughout the country on the various phases of real estate development and operation.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All Druggists, etc.

"FLAG RAISING" EDDY-TRIUL

Altho the Yurriplean war has been agoing on now for 3 yrs or better, Bingville aint did nothink mutch of ennythink to speak of to indcate her patriotism. There is several good reasons for this.

In the 1st place the war had been ragin a yr or more before we found out here in Bingville that there was a war! Thats one reason. We nacherly couldnt be expected to make mutch fuss about the Yurriplean war when we didnt know there was enny could we? Answer—No!

In the 2nd place Bingville allus goes slow about things and takes her time as we mite say. It aint like the respected citizens of this town to rush in like fools where angels fears to tread, or words to that effect and do something in a hotheaded manner which they will regret afterwards. Bingville may be a slow town but it is terrible shure.

In this ishue however this town has made up its mind on which side it stands and has come to the front and showd its collers, as we mite say. In other words this ishue of the Boogie we mite almost call a "Patriotick Edishion" and not be fur wrong becuz in this column we shall tell about a big flag raisin whitch tuk place on the publick sq. last Saturday and in another column of this same ishue you will find a graffick & thrilling act of the Bingville Home Guard whitch has been formed to perctek the lifes and limbs of our residents during the war.

After the Home Guard had been got up and formed (as is told about elshwere perviding we dont let the type fall after we git it set up and spile the hull blamed thing) it was thort that Bingville ort to have the Stars and Stripes a waving above us so a informal mtg. was cald at the Town Hall folloing the Home Guard mtg. and a committee of our most respected wimmen fokes was appointed to make a flag whitch was to be hoisted as soon as finished.

The Chairman of the Flag Making Committee was Missus Cyrus Hoskins and the other members was Missusses Luke Packard, Sally West, Melindy Brown, Samanthu Higgins, Polly Andrews and Mehtabel Smith. These ladies went to Hen Weathersbys store and purchased red white and blue muslin and went to work on the flag with flyin fingers.

On tother hand a posse of men headed by Wes Woodruff our expert hunter and trapper set out for Sawridge Mountain with saws and axes to find a flagpole. After beatin thru the woods for quite a spell they located a tall thin spruce tree whitch they kalkulated was jest the ticket being as it was jest the right hite and strate as a string.

Wes he felde the tree with a axe and when it come down with a crash it come within a ace of hittin Hank Dewberry on the head. Hank was settin in the sun and had dozed off, but the rest of the crowd whitch seen whitch way the tree was fallin hollerd at him as loud as their lungs would let em and Hank got awake jest in time to jump and dodge the tree. He jumpt so quick that he jumpt out from under his hat, whitch was smashd flattern a pancake by the fallin tree.

The tree was lugged to Bingville on the shoulders of willing men and trimmed and a rope and pully fixt on the tip top of same to run up the flag on after whitch a hole was dug and all preperashions made to raise the pole on Saturday whitch event tuk place at 10 a. m.

Ame Hillyer our talented loryer & legal lite made a b'reef speech on patriotism after whitch the flag pole was boosted up by menny hands, set into the hole and tampt down plum and strate, folloing whitch the flag whitch the wimmen fokes had made was histed to the top and unfurld its folds to the breeze amidst loud cheering, hollering and applause.

And as we go to press there she waves today, a simbul of Freedom & Libberty E Pluribus Unus, Amen!

Big Snaik Kild

Jim Hill kild a big black snaik in his dooryard last Saturday whitch measured 7 ft 3 inches from tip to tip. Missus Hill went out back to feed the chicken and discovered the snaik and she shroke & hollerd so loud that she was heard all over Bingville. When foks heard her holler they thort her husband must be a murderink case or somethink but this was not the case and them as knows Melindy Hill knows as well as we know her knows that if there was enny murderink did Jim would be the victim, not her!

In response to her skreems Jim with grate presents of mind come a running with a shovel and kild the snaik. It was a ole booster. Jim says he kalkulates its mate must be a hangin around somewhere and is keeping a party sharp eye out for it.

Just tryed out the snaik and has made 4 ounces of snake ile from it whitch he says is a powerful good cure for roymytiz and all other akes to whitch the humming jints is heir.

Want a Watch Cheeze

About six months ago I purchased a watch at the co seat giving one dollar for same and after it run for a wk or two the blamed thing stopd.

I tuk it apart to see what the matter was with it and put it together agin but after I had did so I found that I had forget to put the main spring back in also a few wheels and screws.

After that it didnt run no bettern after it stopd afore I fixt it. As a result this watch aint of no value to me and I will sell same for only 50 cts. There is a chaust to git a watch cheap speshially if you know ennythink about watches and can put this one together agin so it will run.

Bingville Home Gard Formd

First Step to Protect the Lives of the Non Combatants of Bingville from the Germans Who Had Better Let This Town Alone Unless They Desire to Git Hurt

On Thursday evg of last wk there was a big mass mtg at the Bingville Town Hall whitch was cald for the purpose of forming a Home Gard for Bingville.

The mtg was largely attended by nearly every man woman child and dog from the town and surrounding country and was a grand suckcess from evry standpoint.

The mtg was cald to order by Cy Hoskins chairman of the board of selectmen in a neat speech in whitch Cy said that the time had come for Bingville to do her bit in furning a home gard to perctek the lifes of its men wimmen and children aginst invashion. Cy then appointed Seth Dewberry our lion harted constubble as leader and official captin of the Bingville Home Cards and said he hoped there would be a large number of volunteers volunteer promptly to train and drill under Seth. With that Cy set down.

It was a good cald of a surprise to Seth to be appointed leader and captin of the Home Cards and Seth was on his feet in a minnit and desired to ask a few questshions before he excepted the honnor of the appointment. Seth inquired to be informed whether if he became captin of the Home Cards he would be expected to expose his life on the firing line where the bullets would fly thickest becuz if this was the case he didnt see how he could except being as he had only one life to risk and he was riskin that life evry day as it was in his perilus dooties as town constubble.

Cy then informed Seth that all the risk he would take of being shot would be by a musket in the hands of some irresponsible member of the Home Gard while drilling and when Seth was assured of this he said he would except the position and conduk himself to the best of his several ability. Thereupon Seth set down.

Cy then cald for volunteers and they come so thick and fast that they must swamped Cy in gittin down their names whitch is as folloers:

Seth Dewberry, Captin. Cards—Lem Quigly, Bill Hoover, Hank Dewberry, Ame Hillyer, Ransie Smiler, Harve Hines, Lafe Whitacre, Brad Hoover, Arioch Perkins, Eph Higgins, Wes Woodruff, Clem Wilkins, Abner Doolittle, Peter Wadsworth, Hen Weathersby, Bill Hepburn, Bige Barker, Seth Green and Daad Henderson.

Dad Henderson is the oldest member of the Home Cards. Dad fit and bled in the Civil War and has a wood leg to show for it. But Dad says he kin handle a rifle with the best of em yet and he perposes to go armed and if he sees enny Germans skulkin around Bingville it will give him grate pleasure to make em skadob—le. Bud Hinkley also volunteered to be one a Home Card but was rejected becuz he was over the lit into Amelia jest outside the church door and told her what he thort of her. Tabitha would of said he would either shoot hisself or some-buddy else in the vitals.

There has been one mtg to drill on the publick square sint the Home Gard was formed and Seth says that after he drills his troops a few times he'll wager they can gard ennything.

HOORAY FOR THE BINGVILLE HOME GARDS!

Personal Breefs

Its terrible hot as we go to press, but we kalkulate you can stand it if we can.

Old Dad Henderson says he cant pear to recall a July whitch has been so hot take it all thru as this one has been and thats saying a good eal becuz Dad is old and full of yrs and has saw more Julys than ennybuddy else in Bingville being as he has the honnor of being our oldest inhabitant.

Hank Dewberry who has been biling fence for Lem Quigly says he is a going to work next wk for Ransie Smiley for a change altho Lem aint nee done biling fence yet. Thats the trouble with Hank—he makes too menny changes. Hank will work at one job a few days until he gits tired and then he'll drop that job and rest a few days and then tackle another one. Who could ever expect to git along in the world in this manner we ask? Nobuddy, we anser.

Ame Hillyer our talented loryer & legal lite was terrible sick with a sick headache last Monday all day and couldnt be to his office as usual but remained at home in bed. Ame allus most generally had a bad headache Monday being as on Sunday he allus stuffs hisself at dinner and etes enuff for about three persons inlooding a dog.

We have jest found out why Eph Higgins our accomodating P. M. has never become a subscriber to the Boogie. Tother day we tuk the bull by the horns and askd Eph why he didnt support his home noosepaper by becoming a subscriber to same and Eph jest lafd in his sly way and askd us if we didnt think he would be a blamed fool to support the Boogie his home paper speshially when evry wk he has a chaust to read the Bugle thru from cover without it costing him a cent. There is a good eal of truth in this but we haddent never happend to think of it.

A little rain at this writing would do the crops a mighty sight of good and we kalkulate that if we have the paghents to wait long enuff we will git some rain yet. It is said that all things comes to him who waits, and the chances is that when it does rain it will overdo the job. It generally happens that way.

How would you like to pay us some-think on your back subscription for a change? It would be quite a welcome bit of change for us if you did and we trust you will guvurn yourselfs accordingly.

There aint as mutch sickness in our midst as there was a spell back. Why is this we ask? Are we becoming more healthier or what?

Lokal Squiblets

Abe Skinner informs us that his roymytiz has come back on him agin to the extent of a few twinges lately. Eb has been rubbin a consokosion of snake ile and asafedity on hisself whitch was gave to him by a friend who had roymytiz over Hardscrabble way. Abe says it pears to him that the order of that mixthure itself ort to drive away the blamed roymytiz its that powerful and that his wife makes him set out in the piazzer most of the time during the day and sleep in the woodshed at nites its that strong.

Miss Tabitha Jones our fashionable dressmaker wore a new hat to church Sunday a wk ago and last Sunday Miss Amelia Tucker Bingvilles raising sassie-teen appeard in church with a hat on just like Miss Tabithas. Tabitha was terrible cross about it and after church was over she lit into Amelia jest outside the church door and told her what she thort of her. Tabitha would of said more praps if Rev. Moore our beluvud paster haddent come along whereupon she shes up and went home with her head in the air. Miss Amelia says this is a free country and she kalkulates she'll wear what she pleases on her own head.

Rev Saml Moore our beluvud paster had a aggravating thing to happen to him last Sabbath. While Rev. Moore was jest in the height of his discourse a yaller jacket crawl'd up his leg and give him a jab that made him grunt with agony. Rev. Moore without excoisin hisself retired to the vestry and kild the yaller jacket after whitch he resoomd his discourse with a paind ex-preshion on his face.

Mrs. Samantha Deevers is on the sick list this wk as usual but she thinks she suffers from the extrem heat moren ennythink else and Samanthu says shes jest too listless and weak to fan herself. This must be a terrible fix to be in.

Jasper Hawkins has a ingrowink toenail whitch is giving him considerable bother lately, in fact so mutch so that Jasp is obliged to wear a slipper on one foot whitch the ingrowink toenail is on. Whitch foot did you expect it would be on, tother foot!—you ignoramus!

"Lokal Squiblets" aint what you would call so terrible plenty this wk and for this reason we wont persent enny more at this writing. Praps they'll be more plentifuler by next wk.

A MESSAGE BY LUTHER BURBANK TO AMERICANS
AMERICAN FOOD MAY DETERMINE WORLD'S FATE

Minds Must Be Concentrated on Filling the World's Food Bins, is Declaration of Famous Plant Wizard—Everybody Urged to Study Gardening.

(Editor's Note—Luther Burbank, gray, little general of the nation's food production army, has done more than any other man to plow the world's larder.
Creator of hundreds of wonder grains, fruits, vegetables and flowers, this plant wizard is now identified with the national emergency food garden commission, and is freely devoting his genius and energy to the food situation.
The ringing call sounded in the accompanying message, the call to "victory farming and gardening," is of vital interest to every American.
Burbank seldom speaks for publication, but when he does it carries a punch.) (Copyright, 1917, Newspaper Enterprise Association.)
(World's Greatest Scientific Agri-culturalist.)

Santa Rosa, Cal., July 20.—Wheat, corn, potatoes—they may directly determine the fate of embattled democracy and the trend of world civilization.
It is therefore imperative that, in addition to organized effort expended upon sustenance problems, every American man, woman and youngster, no matter of what station or occupation, take a vital interest in the food supply.
This doesn't mean mere planting and harvesting alone. It means scientific farming and gardening.
It means that 100,000,000 American minds must be concentrated on filling the world's food bins.
There must be a universal passion and application to make two bushels of potatoes grow where one grew before; to raise four bushels of wheat in place of two; to develop and cultivate larger, richer, grains, fruits and vegetables.
This entails a national education, at least, in the fundamentals of agriculture—knowledge that should perhaps be compulsory throughout the United States.
Every man, whether he work in shop, office, bank or in the ditch,

Beauty Bubbles Blown by Dainty Dame Fashion

The arrival of the draft numbers has brought the matter of Red Cross work still closer to the hearts of women and girls, and even boys who can make their fingers nimble enough to fold carefully. At Red Cross headquarters, 126 East Berry street, there is a great cry for help, but it hasn't yet reached the ears of many a woman and girl who can spare time if she only will. It is not the cry of the local headquarters that is heard but it comes from the battlefields where are not sponges enough, wash cloths enough, bandages enough and nurses and surgeons are using paper in place of the needed soft pieces of cheese cloth and knitted cotton that are so much more comforting and pliable. Surely everyone will go for a little while, if not for more than an hour a day, and lend her hand for the aid of her country. Every woman is patriotic and the heat and the tired fingers and eyes of those who work every day and many hours a day as well, are all forgotten when she thinks of her country's soldiers either in the field or going there.

Mrs. Charles Reese, wife of Major Reese, left today for Indianapolis, and in a few days will go to Vancouver to join Major Reese, who is stationed there. Mrs. Reese has been visiting relatives and friends here for several days.

Miss Jane Mooney, of 835 Lewis street, is visiting in Chicago.

Delbert Davis, of Schenectady, N. Y., is visiting relatives here for a few days.

Miss Helen Stacy, who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. M. L. Cooper, has returned to her home in Howe. Dr. and Mrs. A. L. Mikesell and daughter, Miss Helen, have returned from a motor trip to Chicago.

"Bubble, bubble, toil and trouble," coos the old witch.

That young witch, Dame Fashion, must bubble with merriment as she quotes the line and continues to blow her great glittering bubbles to lighten beauty's charms.

Take coiffures, for example. Nothing but toil and trouble this fall for the girl who would be smartly coiffed. Fashion has thrown a score of style ideas into the air and most of them have burst. There remains no set ways of dressing the hair. Only a few ideas persist to float into popularity: Coiffures cover the ears.

hair waves low over one eye or the other, if the face is long; or right in the middle of the forehead, if the face is round.

Sophisticated coils are carelessly piled, curled, twisted, coiled and puffed. That is where the toil and trouble comes in. How to achieve that careless look and still be well groomed takes time, study and much experiment.

Just where to adjust one's curls and coils depends altogether on the shape of one's head.

Swimming Develops Symmetrical Body

By VALLEY MAHN.

Western Aquatic Marvel.

A beautifully rounded figure, a physique in which perfect form and splendid strength are blended, in my opinion, is the greatest reason why young girls should take to swimming. "Oh, Miss Mahn, I'd give anything in the world to swim the Golden Gate."

Since the mile and a quarter race across the Golden Gate, entrance to San Francisco harbor, last month, many young girls have expressed the foregoing to me.

The Golden Gate swim for women is one of the most daring feats in the history of feminine swimming; not so much because of the distance as on account of the treacherous cross-currents sweeping in and out from the ocean even under the best conditions.

This time of the swim was early morning in almost a fog and the water at a temperature of 53 degrees. It is obvious that only the most hardy could expect to make the distance.

But as I have said before, supreme tests in the water are not necessarily required to secure the utmost advantage. The girl who becomes an ordinaire, of Warren, Ohio, are visiting Dr. and Mrs. G. L. Greenawald.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Maritene have returned from an extended automobile trip to eastern points.

Mrs. George Geake and daughter, Douglas, are spending the end of the week at Lake James.

Miss Emma Armstrong, of West Berry street, has returned from a visit in Chicago with relatives.

Mrs. G. Irving Lutz and little child has gone to Lake James to remain some time with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Stiefel.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Oltman and son, Robert, of Grand Rapids, Mich., are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bowser.

Mrs. Louise Morey and Misses Edith and Marian Morey are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Selden Morey at their cottage at Lake George.

Miss Esther Schuessler and Miss Lillian Lange have returned home to Lafayette after a week's visit with the Misses Anna and Elizabeth Foerster of this city.

Miss Gladys Hughes is going to Harbor Point, Mich., to spend the rest of the summer and will leave for that place on Sunday. Other relatives of Miss Hughes will join her during the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Mearl Thomson, of West Williams street, have gone to Toledo, to visit their brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Thomson, and from Toledo will go to Logansport to visit other near relatives, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Thomson.

Mr. and Mrs. Berne Merrick and son, Robert, are expected to motor to this city on Monday and make a short visit with Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Burch, of West Wayne street. The visitors will be on their way to Indianapolis.

Mrs. J. D. Fisher and Miss Elizabeth Fisher, of Hoagland avenue, have gone to Stryker, Ohio, to visit relatives.

The choir boys of Trinity Episcopal church are in camp at Lake Tippecanoe, near Oswego. F. G. Church is in charge of the camp.

Mrs. Sarah Richey and granddaughter, Miss Gladys Hadley, who with other members of the Hadley family, are spending the summer at Clear lake, are in town for a short visit and Mr. Hadley will accompany them to the lake for the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Centlivre and family are going to Rome City the first of the coming week to remain about a month. Misses Esther and Alma Centlivre have returned from a two weeks' visit with their cousin, Miss Marian Franke, of Detroit.

Members of Little Turtle campfire, with Miss Evelyn Walter as guardian and chaperon, are going to Clear lake on Monday for a ten days' outing at the Logan cottage. Members of the campfire are Margaret Evans, Lillian Smith, Mae Clutter, Thelma Damon, Mary Williams, Louise Baede, Marie Keller, Irene Liggett, Kathleen Rohan and Margaret Strieder.

Master Alvin Carvin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Carvin, of East Leith street, celebrated the fourth anniversary of his birth on Friday afternoon with a number of playmates helping out the fun of hunting for peanuts and in playing games. The refreshments were equally enjoyed by the children, who were Kathleen and Richard O'Connor, Eleanor Allgeier, Helen Heck, Gerald Ayers.

Mrs. L. R. Coburn, of Broadway, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Beaber, of the same residence, received a brief message by mail Saturday, from Miss Lillie Beaber, who has been a missionary in Persia for many years. Miss Beaber's letter was dated May 27 and was written from her home in Tabriz, Persia, and contained the information that she was to leave in June for this country, via Siberia, China, Japan and Honolulu. No other information was given, owing probably to the censorship. A letter that reached here recently stated that Miss Beaber expected to remain in Persia, so whether the missionaries have been ordered out for safety's sake or what brought about the apparently sudden decision to leave, is only a matter of conjecture.

Miss Ruth Knapp, who is a capable and bright young woman elected to be a bride early in August, was honored by a lovely party given by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Victor Knapp, of Alabama avenue, on Friday evening. A dozen intimate friends of Miss Knapp were asked to bring their thimbles and gifts of aluminum ware and the merry company at once busied

Some Ideal Cooling Drinks for Summer

Drink more and eat less in hot weather.

That is real economy, war or peace. Water forms over 60 per cent of the body's weight. The quantity lost by perspiration and evaporation on a hot day must be replaced for health's as well as for comfort's sake.

Nothing but pure water is required as a drink, but among all of man's inventions, none is more universally appreciated than the various kinds of cold flavored drinks.

The lemon is the basis of the home-made hot weather drink in any latitude. It is said to have refrigerant qualities when used without sugar. Sugarless lemonade is thus a genuine war economy.

Plain Lemonade—One-half of a lemon to glass of water, sweetened to taste, is the rule for plain lemonade. The less sugar the more cooling the drink. In England the drink is called "lemon squash."

Orangeade—Use as many oranges as lemons, allow one tablespoonful of sugar and two glasses of water to each orange and lemon, and mix all ingredients several hours before serving.

Lemon Whey—Mix one pint milk, one pint sugar, the juice of two lemons and boil five minutes. Strain, sweeten to taste, and set in icebox to cool.

Pineapple Punch—Grate a fresh pineapple or use one can of grated pineapple. Squeeze the juice from six lemons and six oranges and add the juice from one can of strawberries, raspberries or cherries. Sweeten as preferred and mix several hours before serving.

Current Cup—Mix two cupfuls sugar with two cupfuls water and boil to make a syrup. Cool and pour over stemmed currants. Set on ice three hours.

Grapefruit Cocktail—Mix equal quantities of the juice of grapefruit, orange and pineapple and sugar syrup. Pour over cracked ice, add a section of grapefruit and two maraschino cherries.

Fruitade—Almost any jelly will make a delicious liquid refreshment on a hot day. Put a heaping dessert spoonful of the jelly in a glass, add the juice of one-fourth of a lemon, and fill the glass with water, stirring until the jelly is dissolved.

Grape Juice—Grape juice is an ideal summer drink. Like the lemon, the grape contains an abundance of potash, salts which are essential to good health. Grape juice is usually diluted by pouring over cracked ice.

Sherbets—Sherbets and ices are made by freezing a strong fruit punch. Ices are best when eaten in a half melted condition. They should be well frozen, set aside to ripen for several hours, and then allowed to melt to a mush in the glass in which they are served.

NOVEL NOTES.

Fresh, cool water at meal time generally adds to the pleasure and wholesomeness of a meal.

When paring vegetables or fruit do not waste a clean pan; a newspaper will catch the parings.

Cucumber parings are supposed to give the skin a soft, velvety appearance if rubbed on the face and allowed to dry.

The water that is generally poured off the dried beans after they are boiled will make a good addition to the stock pot.

Bread should be baked slowly and long if you want good, sweet bread. If it is baked too quickly it is apt to be sour.

When applying an ice bag a cloth should be wrung out of ice water and put between the patient's head and the ice bag.

SHOE WORN BY ENGLISH GOLFERS PROVES POPULAR.

For walking boots plaid effects are shown, and with the golf shoes go knitted socks which turn back just under the knee. One of the most interesting of the golf shoes is the "Scotch brogue" with a little tongue, an adaption of a model that has long been worn by English golfers. The tongue, which is sewed to the shoe on either side and ends above the top in a fringe, prevents water, burrs, etc., from getting inside, while a strip of rawhide between the inner and outer soles makes the soles water proof. The counters are on the outside.

Well—they came home in the rain.

Father is wet and peevish. He can't figure out why he had to carry the basket back and doesn't know whether he left the heater under the hot-water tank going or not.

Mother hasn't had much to say for Dad's losing the door key. Now they must wait for the rain to slow up so he can boost the baby in the window.

Sister doesn't enjoy the fact that the dining room curtains and rug need wringing.

'Tis the end of a perfect family picnic.

MISS VALLEY MAHN. Note the swart, graceful lines of the mermaid's body as she draws herself from the tank. Development of a well rounded figure can be achieved by any girl who learns to swim, Miss Mahn says.

nary swimmer can secure the same physical development as the girl who learns to do "stunts."

In this connection it may be encouraging to those who hesitate about making the first plunge to know that one of the greatest women swimmers in this country confesses that she was almost an abject coward until accustomed to the water.

But you just have to overcome any backwardness. Beginners always flop about in a few feet of water and there is no danger of drowning. A few mouthfuls of water won't hurt a bit. Determine that you are going to learn a certain stroke, keep to it and there is no chance that you will fail to master it.

The reward of swimming acquired by a girl is too great to be overlooked. Girls who lack symmetry are bound to find themselves becoming round and beautiful instead of scrawny and awkward looking. Women who are too heavy will discover that supple muscles take the place of fatty arms and legs.

In short, girls, the best physique possible for you to acquire will come quicker from swimming than from any other form of sport.

There Are Many Advantages in Raising Mules Which the Farmer Would Do Well to Consider.

Those who are accustomed to handling mules and who know of their remarkable faculty for adapting themselves to almost any condition, realize their value and do not hesitate to pay well for good animals.

of their toughness and steadiness of nerve may be kept at it twice as long as horses are fit for service. Mules can be raised more cheaply than any other stock, and, unlike horses, will never founder themselves if by chance they should have access to more feed than is good for them. They can be put into the market much sooner than horses, and if properly handled, when two years old, will do as much work and stand it better, than four-year-old colts. Mules are less liable to contract diseases than horses, and their value is not decreased by blemishes as is that of horses. Mules seldom run away, but when they do seem to run more from sport than fright and generally wind up safely. They instinctively avoid holes, obstacles or dangerous places. They can stand heat, abuse or hardship better than horses and can always be relied upon. They are sensitive as well as sensible animals, responding quickly to kind treatment by docility and gentleness. The great profit in mule raising lies largely in their growth. Mules grow so quickly that they are marketable when three years old, while horse colts cannot advantageously be sold under five years. In this way the cost of feeding and the trouble and risk of raising are decreased.

Buyers will always handle good mules, as the demand for them is steady. Where large numbers of mules are raised there are always plenty of mule buyers in that section of the country. Buyers do not go where there are no mules to sell. In time of war mules are always in great demand and bring good prices owing to their powers of endurance.

Comparing cattle with mules, one steer will eat as much as two mules. As compared with swine, if the same amount of feed that is fed to a bunch of hogs is fed to mules it will not take long to find which make the most money, aside from the fact that there is no risk from cholera.

In orchards or nurseries mules are invaluable. No animal can equal them for running out straight lines, and in cultivating young trees they seldom break or injure them. When well trained they are careful and obedient. Mules occupy a place among our domestic animals that is indicative of honesty, durability and valuable service, and their failure to breed is looked upon by many as an indication of the fact that in them the climax of perfection has been reached.

The objection many farmers raise to the use of mules is that they do not breed, that they are stubborn, often vicious, and that they are entirely unsuited to pleasure purposes. Those objections are worthy of consideration, but the many good qualities of these sturdy beasts seem to more than offset them.

From a commercial standpoint, it may be well to remember that a pair of 6-year-old mules, well matched, well broken, and well grown, weighing from 1100 to 1300 pounds each, will bring from $550 to $600.

More mules should be raised by the farmers all over the country. Breed your heavy-set mares to a good-sized, stylish Jack, and when your colts come, take care of them and they will prove to be about the most profitable stock on the place, either to work or to sell.

LATE ONIONS. There are several kinds of onions that may remain in the soil over winter. The multiplier, or potato onion, for example, can be planted from sets in the autumn and will produce excellent green early onions. A large onion plant of this type contains a number of distinct hearts, and if planted will produce a number of small onions. On the other hand, a small onion contains but one heart and will produce a large onion. A few of the large ones may be planted to produce sets for the following year's planting.

BANKERS ASKED TO ASSIST IN PORK PRODUCTION

Bankers in Many Parts of the Country Who Have Given Encouragement and Financial Assistance to Members of Pig Clubs During the Past Few Years Are Being Strongly Urged to Continue Their Aid as a Patriotic Duty.

Since hogs afford the quickest means of increasing our meat supply, continued and extended efforts of public-spirited bankers in furthering the organization of pig clubs by advancing to club members the money needed for the purchase of pure-bred sow pigs is doubly desirable and greatly appreciated at this time.

Pig clubs have increased very rapidly during the past seven years, the specialists point out. In 1910 there were 59 members in the United States; today the number exceeds 30,000, found principally in Arkansas, Alabama, California, North Carolina, Louisiana, Georgia, Texas, Oregon, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Kentucky, Indiana, and Massachusetts. These states contained 21,573 members last year, but pig clubs are being formed rapidly in other states. The demand for gilts and bred gilts by club members is unprecedented, even at the high prices at which they are held.

Financial assistance to the pig club members has been the means of introducing pure-bred hogs in places where otherwise this might have been impossible, and has helped to build up the agriculture of the communities which the banks serve. These clubs stand not alone for greater pork production. By increasing the amount of live stock they encourage the production of much of the feed on the farm, and as their activities are coincident with or follow club work in the growing of corn and forage crops, they are part of a system that favors a sound diversity in agriculture and a rotation of crops that will maintain the fertility of the soil. Two plans have been followed by bankers in providing the sow pigs necessary to enable the boys and girls to engage in pig club work. One method is the so-called promissory note plan. The banker makes individual contracts with the pig club members. In each case he agrees to lend them a certain sum of money at 6 per cent interest for one year, or longer if necessary. The member agrees to keep up a membership in a pig club, to invest the loan under the direction of the county agent or county club representative and to repay it at maturity out of the proceeds of the sale of the original stock or the increase. As security for the loan, the banker takes the member's promissory note. The member's parents consent to the contract, in writing, and agrees not to claim any right in the pigs purchased or their proceeds.

The other method is called the "endless chain" plan. This also involves individual contracts. The banker agrees to furnish a registered sow pig. The boy or girl agrees to join a local pig club, obey its rules, care for the sow according to instructions, breed her at not less than eight months of age to a registered boar of the same breed, raise the litter according to the rules of the club, and deliver to the banker two choice gilts (not less than eight weeks old) from the first litter. The member agrees also to take out registration papers for all the first-litter pigs not sold for immediate slaughter. When these agreements are met, the original sow and the remaining pigs become the member's property. If the member is unable to return two sow pigs out of the first litter the agreement continues until this is possible. If the original sow dies before farrowing a healthy litter the banker bears the loss. If the member does not fulfill all agreements, rights to the sow and her progeny are forfeited. The parent agrees to the contract, in writing, and acknowledges that the sow and increase shall belong to the boy or girl. When the banker receives the two sow pigs from the member and puts them out with other boys or girls under the same agreement, the endless chain feature of the activities is set in motion. This plan may be varied in details to suit conditions. For instance, the banker may require the return of only one sow pig, and stipulate that the boy or girl must join a corn or peanut club, raise at least half an acre of green feed, and exhibit the sow and her offspring at the county fair or live-stock show.

Under similar arrangements, boys have received calves to raise, and both boys and girls have received eggs of pure-bred chickens for hatching. It is urged that bankers in the south who have taken part in these projects heretofore continue their aid, and others, both in the north and in the south, take up the work, as it is a patriotic duty at this time to increase the nation's supply of food. County agents, state agricultural colleges, and the Department of Agriculture will answer gladly any questions regarding details of these activities.

THERE IS MONEY IN HOG RAISING THESE DAYS.

EFFECTIVE CODLING MOTH TRAP

New Device to Be Used in Place of the "Banding" Method—Not a Substitute for Spraying.

A codling moth trap has been devised, no openings occur in them they will require no further attention. The codling moth larva, having completed its feeding in the fruit, seeks a place to spin its cocoon, and for this purpose generally crawls up or down a tree trunk. Meeting the trap, it enters through one of the openings in the mesh of the wire screen and spins its cocoon beneath the burlap band. When it emerges as a moth its large size makes it unable to escape through the opening in the screen by which it entered the trap.

It must be clearly understood, however, that this trap is not a substitute for spraying. Strips of burlap 6 inches wide are folded into three thicknesses. The loose bark from the lower branches and trunk of the tree is removed and a strip of this burlap folded once around the trunk. It is held in place by large tacks, which should be driven in such a way that the edge projects about one-fourth of an inch beyond the burlap. The burlap is then covered by black-painted wire screen with 12 meshes to the inch. This is cut into strips 6 inches wide and the edges of each strip are folded twice, allowing one-fourth of an inch to each fold. The strip of screen should be long enough to allow for an overlap of 3 to 4 inches when placed around the trunk of the tree. The wire screen is placed over the burlap band and tacked to the tree in such a way that both the upper and lower edges fit snugly against the bark. The projecting tacks used to fasten the burlap to the tree prevent the wire pressing against the cloth.

To make sure that no moths may escape through openings along the edges of the trap or along the flap, a thin coating of pitch tar may be used. This material, when heated, may be applied readily with a brush. The traps may be placed on the tree at any time during the winter or in the spring not later than one month after the petals have dropped. As long as for spraying, but merely an additional precaution. Nevertheless, some larvae will invariably escape, and the offspring of these are largely responsible for the damage to the fruit crop. By the use of the codling moth trap, in addition to thorough spraying, the majority of the unpunctured larvae may be captured and injury by later broods will be materially reduced.

By the use of the codling moth trap, in addition to thorough spraying, the majority of the unpunctured larvae may be captured and injury by later broods will be materially reduced.

CUTTING ALFALFA.

When for any reason alfalfa turns yellow it should be cut immediately and removed from the field. A careful examination at such a time may indicate a lack of effective inoculation, disease, or the need of lime. Yellowing sometimes occurs, however, when all of these conditions are apparently favorable to the growth of the alfalfa.

CARE IN TRIMMING TREES.

In trimming trees, the wound made by cutting off a limb close to the trunk will soon heal over, while the wound made by cutting off the limb two or three inches from the trunk, leads to decay and sometimes causes the ultimate loss of the tree itself.

DUCKS EASY TO RAISE.

Ducks are more tractable than hens and more easily cared for. They can be tamed with a little care. Those that are kept over for breeding stock should have dry quarters but may be allowed to run all winter. The thick down protects them from the severe cold.

MIXED FEEDS.

Don't buy mixed feeds. They are generally speaking, the offal at best, and too much of the farm thrown in for good measure. Mixed feeds are sold at the value of the highest priced ingredient, and they may be the least in amount. They offer a temptation to the mixer to misrepresent, and you pay dear for your whistle.

TRAP NESTS EXCELLENT DETECTIVES

Poultrymen who have never handled the individual hen as a unit, but judge the matter wholly by the records of flocks as a whole, have frequently claimed, and have found apparent reason to support the claim, that the type of hen which lays well in winter is not the type that lays well in summer, but trap-nest records of flocks that have been competently handled for eggs all through the year do not support that theory. The hen that does not lay freely and profitably in summer when properly handled, does not, as a rule, show up on the trap-nest records as having laid remarkably well, either the previous or following winter. There are exceptions, of course, but they are relatively few. It is a most excellent idea to keep the stock carefully culled of drones and moderate layers, all the time, summer and winter. It is the "persistent layer" that pays the year-round profit in market eggs, and she is the true "laying-type" that trap-nesters count upon to perpetuate the prolific-laying habit in their stock.

Trap Nest With Trigger Set.

Summer has its own peculiar conditions that antagonize egg production, and the profits are shrunk unless the adverse conditions are overcome. The "strictly fresh eggs" is always in demand, but eggs which are allowed to remain in a hot nest, covered by sundry hens that visit the nest throughout the day, lose considerable of their first freshness by night; whether the eggs are to be incubated, marketed soon or held in storage for future marketing, their quality has been lowered. Trap-nesters remove the eggs from the nests from three to five times during the day; as a rule the trap nest is an individual nest, and the layers are not able to crowd two, three or more at once upon a nest of eggs, overheating eggs and hens, both, as is frequently the case where the ordinary box nest is used.

with broody hens are greatly lessened by judiciously handling the traps. The frequent removal of the layers and prompt removal from the nest seems to diminish their brooding inclinations, and they are more easily "broken up" when they do become broody. Many persistent layers in the incubating broods do not become broody at all when using the trap nests, but continue to lay right through the summer. "Egg eating is a vice practically unknown where these nests are used," is the report of many who have had long experience with good trap nests.

It is an interesting fact that quite a number of the most successful trap-nesters installed and began to use trap nests during the summer months. By fall they had become quite familiar with their use, and were in a position to exercise good judgment in trap-nesting and culling the pullets, and the yearling hens through the molting period. It will be found that the great layers are remarkable for a tendency to molt without apparent loss of vigor, and they will continue to lay during a considerable portion, or the whole, of that period.

It certainly is an excellent plan to get the trap nests installed during the summer months, become familiar with handling them, without loss of time, and then one is prepared to start the new generation of layers upon the right road. A. F. HUNT, JR.

About the June Bug

Have you ever seen the so-called June bug buzzing around an electric light or seen them swarm on the sidewalk in the gray of a spring morning? They are a big, dark-brown beetle and at night when they bump against the window panes or fly thumping against the ceiling make you crawl and hunt for the broom.

This blundering, awkward beetle, of which the chickens and birds are so fond, are the parents of the corn pest known as the "white grub" which feeds on the roots of the plants and destroys them.

Millions of them are destroyed in spring by hungry birds and myriad others go down to death in swarming around the lights of a city. They are so sensitive to light that a flame, miles away, will attract them.

It takes three years for one of these beetles to develop from the egg. The beetles deposit their eggs in meadows and sometimes in corn fields. The tiny grubs which emerge from the eggs develop into thick, fleshy, white grubs which are also much sought for by birds. When matured they are fully one and one-half inches long.

Luckily for Mr. Beetle, the grub spends most of his three years in the soil out of the reach of enemies. Different beetles, however, are completing their growth every year and so we have the June bug with us each spring.

All corn is apt to suffer from them but owing to the habit of the beetle in depositing its eggs in meadows, corn that is planted in newly turned soil is more apt to suffer from these pests.

The best way to destroy them is to plow and cultivate so that their natural food is destroyed and they are starved to death before planting the field. Some farmers let the chickens follow the plow and destroy hundreds of them in this way.—Chas. C. Wentzler.

KEEP THE COW STABLE WELL AIDED.

There is no surer way of producing milk with undesirable odors, than by forcing cows to breathe the confined air of their stables, saturated with the fumes of their perspiration and excrement. The consequences of breathing such odors is so plain and certain that it seems strange that dairymen will allow it to be permitted to the extent it is.—Vincent M. Couch.

ECONOMY IN DRESS.

People who dress well on moderate means never make the mistake of having too many garments at one time. It is better to take good care of one's belongings, brushing, cleaning and mending when necessary and then replenishing them with new as needed.

THE SHETLAND PONY ALWAYS POPULAR

The Shetland pony is always an object of interest, whether seen drawing a shining cart in the city park or bending beneath the cruel weight of his heavy burden on the mountain-trails of his native country. If he were less hardy he could not endure the severe labor he is made to perform in his native land, for there he is purely and simply a burden-bearer. Grain, iron, furniture, coal, ore and merchandise of all kinds are transported to all parts of the islands on the backs of the tough little animals. Three hundred pounds is the usual load for each pony, and long lines of these laden little beasts wind in and out among the hills of their native land.

The genuine Shetland pony, produced from the pure breeds of the Shetland and Orkney Islands, has become so popular and useful that the business of raising ponies has grown important. The business is not so simple as it might appear at first glance. In the first place, the progenitors—sires and dams—are usually selected in the Shetland Islands. Occasionally desirable breeds may be found in the interior of some of the other northern islands bordering Scotland, but the majority are found in the Shetland Islands.

The Shetland pony is unlike the horse in many respects other than that of size. He is more patient, and as a class is better tempered. Mute under punishment, patient during severe labor, constant as a dog in friendship, combining marvelous intelligence with a tractable spirit, the Shetland pony is of all animals the best servant, companion and friend for children. There are grown persons who so admire the sturdy little ponies that they prefer a cart and pair to the best trotting horse. They make up in strength and endurance what they lack in size.

On farms where these little ponies are raised for the market, kindness is practiced under all circumstances in their training. This is very important, because most of these animals in this country at least, are sold for the pleasure of young boys and girls and it is essential that they be trained to be docile and gentle. When the little pony colt, which a man can take up in his arms and carry about, is strong enough to run and play with its mother, a little halter is put on it, and it is taught to lead and start and stop at the word. When it grows stronger, but is not yet nearly full grown, a set of silver-mounted harness is fitted upon it, a smooth, easy bit is slipped into its mouth, and it is driven about with the lines. A very gentle pressure of the bit on the tender mouth is sufficient to guide it. Later on it is hitched to a little yellow cart, and trotted about the smooth gravel drives under the spreading, beautiful trees, until it becomes thoroughly broke-wise—that is, until it becomes trained to turn about instantly without hesitation in response to the bit. It is taken close to pulling locomotives and alongside queer-looking vehicles, into the neighborhood of shops where there is the sound of clanging iron and pounding hammers and ringing bells. Its action under all these conditions are carefully noted and recorded, and its special qualifications for particular purposes fully ascertained.

The trainer knows the natural propensities and acquired qualifications of every pony about the farm fully as well as the teacher knows those traits in a pupil, and all those things go to make up a pony's record.

MAKE THE CHICKS EXERCISE.

There is only one sure way of growing strong, thrifty chicks, and that is by making them exercise. Having the floor of the brooders littered with fine cut hay or straw, and a few handfuls of grain at a time strewn among this litter, will make the youngsters scratch—and it is this scratching that warms up their blood, sharpens their appetite, and gives them good health.

LOOKING FORWARD.

In the future there will be higher standards of farming, whether it be a fruit farm or other branches of agriculture. The achievements that today read like the fairy tales of our childhood, will become more and more frequent until the whole average of farming production will be raised.

THIS HELPS.

A good tight fence around each field helps to make the rotation count for the most. Every field should permit of pasturing not only with cattle but hogs and sheep as well.

Don't can anything that can be kept just as well dried or in other forms. Dry navy and mature Lima beans for winter use.

There is no reason why any farmer who can afford a manure spreader should not have running water, hot and cold, in his house.

CAUSES OF ACCIDENTS.

Narrow driveways are responsible for such accidents as fracture of the hip, which may also be caused by a horse running against a doorpost when allowed to rush out of the shafts of a vehicle immediately he finds himself unharnessed. In the case of two-wheel rigs, after all the buckles and straps are free, it is better to push the vehicle from the horse, than let the horse walk out of the shafts.

TO SUCCESSFULLY GROW POTATOES.

Select highly fertile land, so situated that it will suffer as little as possible from either excessive rain or from drought. Spray for insects and blight, early and often. Keep the crop free from weeds and the surface of the soil loose during the whole season.

SANITARY SURROUNDINGS.

Filth, such as flies bred in, should be carefully removed, and, in addition, flies should be kept from carrying germs from unscreened closets, open spittoons, or uncovered garbage cans, into the house.

LIME.

The lime requirement of sweet clover is as high as that of red clover or alfalfa. Maximum growth is obtained only on soils that are not acid.

THE FLEA.

The flea is one of the most annoying of household pests. In many cases fleas are bred on dogs or cats, and the first thing to be done is to eliminate the source of supply. If the animal is not badly infested, insect powder, well rubbed into the hair, or a creolin wash, may be effective. Remove all carpets and similar articles and scrub the floors thoroughly with hot soap suds or lye, being careful to get into every crack and crevice. Fleas thrive in dirt and do not like to be disturbed.

WINDBREAKS.

Windbreaks are popular. They protect the farm house, the stock and give to the farm an appearance in winter of coziness. If you have failed to plant a windbreak plan to do so this next spring. Select the proper trees and location and get in your order for trees early.

FEEDING TURKEYS.

As the turkeys grow and begin to wander about the fields in search of insects it is well to establish the practice of feeding them at their regular roosting place about sunset every evening. This brings them home where they are safe.

No openings in your cow stables to admit sunlight? This is a great mistake. Sunlight is death to many forms of germ life.

PROGRESS.

The younger generation, the graduates of farm colleges, the members of farmer boys' and girls' clubs will tend to demand a higher production; to be satisfied with nothing less than the bettering of former records; and it will require the development of specialists in all lines to insure this result. So the farm specialist, like the tribe of Abou ben-Adem, will, we hope, go on increasing. He is needed in all this big land to add fertility and increase to the teeming earth.

NATURE IS WISE.

Nature's plan of improving soils is to use a cover crop of weeds, grass, shrubs, or trees and to subsoil by sending the roots down 1, 2, 3, or 4 feet, as the case may be, thus airing and enriching the subsoil without bringing it to the surface.

A GOOD FEED.

Clover hay is a great cow feed with ensilage, or without it if you are not the owner of a silo. Nor should you forget that clover is fifty per cent more valuable for the cows than timothy.

I pray not that men tremble at my power of place and lordly sway. I only pray for simple grace to look my neighbor in the face full honestly from day to day.—James Whitcomb Riley.

LOOKING BACKWARD.

The first postoffices were established in 1464. Printed musical notes appeared in 1473. The first printing press was operated in 1493. Spinning wheels were first used in 1545. Knives were first used in England in 1559. Wheeled carriages appeared in France in 1558. The telescope was first used in 1590.

ILLINOIS IN EARNEST.

The state of Illinois will put to its voters at the 1913 election the question of issuing $30,000,000 in highway bonds, the interest and refunding fund for which is to be provided for by an increase in the motor vehicle registration fees.

IT DOESN'T PAY.

When a man buys a tuberculous animal he could better afford to take it out and knock it in the head than to take it into his herd and let it spread the disease.

Better see that the lamb gets a good, big fill before it is very old, else it may be too late. The easiest time to feed it is just after it is born, when it begins nosing around for its first meal.

EXERCISE JUDGMENT.

Affections of the stomach and bowels brought on by incorrect feeding and watering are far too numerous to mention. To reduce as much as possible the number of accidents to horses at grass see that their hind shoes are removed, to prevent serious injury by kicks, and keep your horses as far away from ditches and barbed wire as you can.

CULTIVATE THE SMALL FRUITS.

Give the small-fruit plantation thorough cultivation just as long as possible. When the fruit is too far advanced to be longer cultivated, put clean straw or hay between the rows, to keep down weeds and conserve moisture.

THE BROODY HEN.

A setting hen can be broken from the settling propensity in a few days and be made to shell out eggs, and at a much less loss of vitality than to sit for three weeks and raise a large family.

INSPECTION IS POSTPONED

Examining Officer is Sent to Inspect the Nebraska Guard.

SIGNAL CORPS WILL BE CALLED, HOWEVER

Drill Slated for Tuesday Night and Preparations Gon On.

Federal inspection of Company B, Indiana Signal Corps, which was to have been held Monday night, has been postponed indefinitely and may not be held at all, according to late communications received by officers here. Whether or not the company is inspected it will be called into service August 5, when the national guard of the state is drafted into federal service.

Maj. James V. Heldt, who was to make the inspection, has been sent to Nebraska to inspect the entire guard of that state. For that reason it was necessary to postpone the inspection of the new Indiana companies on his itinerary.

A communication from Maj. F. H. Hill, commander of the First battalion, Indiana Signal Corps, which is made up of the local company together with Company A, of Indianapolis, bears the statement that the battalion is in high standing with the central war department, Chicago, and that signal officers are very anxious that it be accepted.

In the meantime preparations for the departure of the local company are being pushed rapidly and will be completed by the time for the call. The postponement of the inspection was followed by a postponement of Sunday drill, but the regular weekly work of the company will be carried on Tuesday evening.

A "canteen" has been opened in the company headquarters, third floor of the Old National bank building, and there members of the company are purchasing their smoking materials and other incidentals carried in stock. By this means the profits derived go into the company fund, which is expected to be a source of comfort to the members in the field.

CATHOLICS CAMPAIGN FOR WAR CAMP FUND

Many Are Pledged to Help in Drive for Million Dollars.

At a meeting in Knights of Columbus hall Friday night, nearly two hundred Catholics pledged themselves to work next week to do this city's share in the campaign to raise one million dollars, this fund to be used for the care and comfort of Catholic soldiers in the war camps.

Maurice Nizer, who made the principal talk at the meeting, pointed out that from 25 to 30 per cent. of the soldiers would be Catholics, and the object of the campaign was to furnish recreation and divine services to these men. Others who talked were Rev. Edward Dillon, Charles M. Nizer, Dr. E. J. McOscar and Harry Hogan.

The campaign will start Sunday, and announcement will be made in every parish in the city. Teams will be organized to solicit subscriptions.

RANSACKED HOUSE.

Henry Korn, 127 West Woodland avenue, reported to the police that somebody had entered his home Friday night and had ransacked the building. Several of the rooms in the house were found to be in a wild state of disorder when the family arrived at the residence late in the evening. No valuables are missing.

CANT TAKE COOPS.

Oscar Lenz, patrolman, and Will Brown, motorcycle policeman, were among the first whose names were drawn for conscription. They expect to be exempted because of their present duties.

FIRST PHOTO OF PERSHING'S MAIN ARMY LANDING IN FRANCE

This is the first photograph of the actual disembarkation of General Pershing's main army in France. It has been passed by the censor. On the transport here shown, and many others like it, the American soldiers were carried to Europe. The soldiers shown in the foreground have just stepped from the ship. Others still aboard are eagerly waiting opportunity to get down the gangplank. Below is shown Maj. Gen. Sibert, Pershing's right-hand man on the job, conferring with staff officers.

OBJECTS TO HAVING HER EYES BLACKENED

Sadie Stull Says Charles Also Threatened to Take Her Life.

Sadie Stull has begun suit for divorce against Charles Stull, her husband, and sets forth in the complaint that she objects to having her eyes blackened when Charles gets mad.

The plaintiff also alleges that the defendant threatened to take her life and that she fears he will carry out his threat because he is accustomed to taking heavily of intoxicating liquors. She asks the court to restrain him from molesting her.

In addition to these complaints she also states that Charles has called her names which are too vile and indecent in their nature to set forth in print. She states they were married February 11, 1912, and separated June 12, 1917. She asks for twenty-five dollars support money per week.

PAY CLAIM TO CLERK.

Supreme Order of Ben Hur's Pay Death Claim Over Which Suit Was Begun.

Through the district deputy, M. J. Clear, the supreme lodge of Ben Hur have paid to the clerk of Allen county a death claim of $1,500 over which suit was begun several weeks ago. Bessie Zurbuch begun action against the lodge enjoining them from paying Mrs. Hosford the beneficiary of the insurance policy the amount of the policy. It was also stated at that time that the lodge had refused to make payment, but Mr. Clear states that at that time the death proof had not been filed.

COUNTY AGENT TO ASSIST.

A. J. Hutchins Will Help Government in Securing Farm Labor.

County Agent A. J. Hutchins Friday received posters and instructions from Washington, D. C., which ask him to act as a sort of clearing house for the government in securing labor on the farms throughout the country. The idea is to equalize the help in the harvest fields throughout the country. If one district is oversupplied while another is wanting it will be equalized.

Money to German Nieces.

The last will and testament of Sophie Seacrist, deceased, which was filed in circuit court Friday, provides that the estate, valued at $12,000, be left to her two nieces who reside in Baden, Germany. Settlement of the estate cannot be made until the war is over.

TO CHOOSE LIEUTENANTS.

Washington, July 21.—To determine the fitness for provisional appointment as second lieutenants of candidates at the various officers' training camps, boards of officers have been named to meet at the various camps July 23.

WILL BE TRIED FOR FAILING TO REGISTER

William Burke, a nomad, who gives his home as Toledo, will be sent before the federal court in Toledo for trial upon a charge of failing to register for conscription. He was arrested several days ago by police on a loitering charge. He failed to show, in police court, that he had registered.

United States Commissioner Logan held a questioning session in his office Friday afternoon. He was convinced that Burke has not signed for draft. He bound the man over to the federal court. Burke will be taken to Indianapolis for a brief preliminary hearing and sent from there to Toledo.

William Thompson and Harry Henninger, turned over to the commissioner by police, were able to show that they had registered when brought before the government representative.

WAR STATE EXISTS AGAINST CITY WEEDS

All property owners are given notice that they are drafted into the army of weed exterminators. Drastic declaration of Police Chief Lenz states that all weeds must be laid low before next Tuesday. Affidavits will be made out against neglecting citizens after that time, the chief announces.

In several parts of town, where food gardens do not flourish, the weeds have been allowed to grow riot. While there are not as many weeds this year, because of the garden campaign, yet the plants which do wave were never heartier. They have been encouraged by much rainfall. They have reached the nuisance state. They must be wiped out.

"Get busy with the scythe now," urged Chief Lenz, who is not anxious to prosecute citizens.

GETS PENALTY JUST FOR STORY TELLING

Daniel Huner Begs in Vain for Judge to Wait a Minute.

Just because he told a matrimonial yarn Daniel Huner was fined $25 and costs by Judge H. W. Kerr, in the city court, Saturday morning. Huner was charged with loitering on Friday, but the charge could not be substantiated. When the young man was about to be turned loose the judge asked him:

"What did you do with your wife?" "Have no wife," was the short reply.

"Where is the woman who was staying with you at the rooming house?" continued the judge.

"There was no woman staying with me," came the stout answer.

But the judge had heard different. He continued the case until Saturday. A boarding house keeper told the Huner had signed up at her place with a woman. When confronted by the landlady Huner admitted that he had storiad.

"I will have to fine you for perjury," said Judge Kerr and he named a $25 penalty.

"Wait a minute," urged Huner.

"That is all," said Judge Kerr.

"Well, thank you, judge," concluded Huner.

Will Support.

James Raughman admitted that he has been slack in making payments for keeping of his wife and child. His wife stated he had given her some money but not enough. Raughman agreed to pay $20 a month in the future and the case was dismissed.

Other Police Court Cases.

Mrs. George Raber, 1119 Broadway, has signed an affidavit charging Charles Frymouth, 60, with indecent relations with her 6-year-old son. The woman claims that the man had assaulted the boy. More witnesses will be summoned and Frymouth will be tried on Monday. He is in jail upon failure to furnish $300 bond.

Mary Roe is the name given by the woman charged with assault upon one of her neighbors. More will be known of the case on Tuesday when the interested parties are brought into court for trial.

Joseph Colona, charged with driving his automobile past a street car when passengers were being discharged, was acquitted.

Ruth Porter was given over to juvenile authorities. She is charged with loitering.

Ed L. Morris raised a row at the Wayne hotel Friday evening. He was fined $1 and costs.

Cases of public intoxication were: Homer Converse, fined $5 and costs; Harry Brown, Will McGee, Phillip Brady and George Morrow were each fined $1 and costs. Harry Fornwell will be tried on next Wednesday.

METAL MINERS STRIKE.

Leadville, Col., July 21.—Metal miners in this district struck this morning. "Thirty-seven properties are involved. In each mine eight or ten men remained to keep the property free from water."

SIX MILLION AID HOOVER.

Washington, July 21.—The Baptists and Disciples of Christ denominations have endorsed the food conservation movement and pledged their support to Herbert Hoover. The two churches are said to represent 6,000,000 persons.

MOTHER IS RELEASED FROM LARCENY CHARGE

Had Taken Hood for Baby Before Clerk Halted Exploit.

The mother of six small children and wife of a farmer living near Fort Wayne was apparently shopping in a downtown apartment store Friday afternoon. The woman carried a hand bag. A clerk thought that he saw a pair of shiny white stockings slit into the top of the bag.

The clerk followed the woman. She went into the basement and wandered aimlessly about. As she carried her hand bag back up the stairs a part of a stocking dangled loosely from its side.

"If you want to purchase those stockings I will wrap them up," politely stated the clerk.

The woman appeared angered and grew turbulent. The clerk called the police. Patrolman Ernst Paul took the mother to police headquarters. In the hand bag was found a baby's hood, two shirts, two pairs of canvas slippers and a hat. The woman was identified as being a respected farmer's wife and the mother of six children. She was released upon her promise never to shop lift again.

FRIARS PREPARE FOR THEIR ANNUAL PICNIC

Rumor hath it that many members of the Friars club went on a diet Saturday, having good cause for the deed. Sunday the annual picnic of the clubmen will be held and Oscar Cotton has been very busy for several days preparing the "feed." The men will leave the club quarters about 10 o'clock in the morning and go to stop 10 on the Robison park car line.

There the annual picnic stunts will be staged. In the afternoon the annual baseball game between the married members and the single birds will be staged. Many other festivities are planned, but members of the club insist that the "eats" will have the whole bunch eclipsed.

GOVERNMENT OF CHINA BELIEVED MUCH STRONGER

London, July 21.—Confirming the announcement that Feng Koo Chang has accepted the presidency of China, a dispatch to the Times from Peking today says this fact serves to strengthen the hands of Tuan Chi Jui, who has now completed a cabinet of moderate men.

"The victorious entrance of the northern army into Peking," adds the dispatch, "places Tuan Chi Jui temporarily in the position of dictator and gives him an opportunity to establish a firm government."

"It is unlikely that China will declare war now, but when the long deferred step is taken it will arouse much opposition in the south."

In the pronunciation key straight lines over the letters A and U indicate long sounds, as in "hâte" and "Jude"; curved lines denote their short sounds as in "hât" and "Jüde"; two dots over the U indicate a sound similar to the German "ue," which may be approached by Americans by sounding "oo" and "ee" at the same time; the small G above the line indicates the French nasal and is not pronounced.

ALL ABOARD FOR ROBISON PARK FOR THE FIRST AND ONLY TIME THIS YEAR FOR THE MAJORITY OF THE CHILDREN IN THIS GROUP.

In the above photograph are seen the children of the Rescue Mission who enjoyed the annual outing held at Robison park. The picture was taken just before the three special cars of the traction company took them to the pleasure resort. A chicken dinner was served at noon. Rev. J. A. Nipper, superintendent of the mission, wishes in this manner to thank the merchants who together donated all the foodstuffs for the dinner. Many of the children seen in this crowd only get to Robison park once a year, and that is when the mission has its annual picnic.

Warring Old Soldiers Fail to Get by With Ruff Stuff

Johnny Nee Can't Stand a Beating and Gets Nasty to Umps.

Johnny Nee can't stand having his club defeated or else he's a little sort of a dabbler. Anyway in the second inning when the pressure was getting hot, he decided to settle himself, and going up to Ump. Kuhns he proceeded to push his mitt in that gentleman's kind and open face. The Chiefs quickly forced an alliance with the arbitrator and managed to down the militarism represented by Nee. Johnny played no more baseball yesterday.

In the meantime the Chiefs played ball and proceeded to show the Vets up considerably. They ranned the Buckeye outfit 9 to 4, and seemed to take great delight in doing it. Two pitchers were used by both clubs, but neither visiting slabsman proved effective.

Theyon started in hard and took two runs for an opener in the first. Stewart and Derick were the hitters. In the second half the local took over. Then came the big frame. Kelly started with a single and Williams bunted. Wells fielded the bunt and heaved the pill an awful distance, allowing Kelly to score and Williams to take third. Vandy walked and Higbee doubled, scoring Williams. A sacrifice fly by Breau sent the manager across and Smith's triple scored Higbee. Smith only managed to hit three times out of five times up yesterday, which makes us fear that he is slipping.

In the fourth the Chiefs got another when Vandy singled, Higbee sacrificed, Breau singled and Slegfried came through with a sacrifice fly. In the fifth Dayton scored one and in the sixth they put another across. At this point Higbee was removed in favor of Roberts and then the Chiefs made three runs.

Roberts and Vandy singled and a long triple by Breau sent them both across. The little outfielder went across on Slegfried's second sacrifice fly.

Today we have with us the Springfield League leaders, hitting demons, fielding sharks and all around high-class ball players. The Chiefs would like very much to top the series and have sworn to do the dearest.

A preliminary to the game will be played by the Turner and Pouncy shop league clubs, this game starting at 1:15 o'clock.

ABOLITION OF THE PIE!

By WINONA WILCOX.

A hint of the first great national war horror comes from the middle west. Kansas, so safely situated between coast and coast, originates the first American atrocity.

Already the men of Kansas send out an S. O. S.—"Help or we perish!" For Kansas may become a pieless state.

Her council of defense recommends that all pie timber be diverted to other uses for the duration of the war.

Now, nobody doubts the patriotism of the native Kansan. So doesn't this look like another of those German spy plots?

Only the Teutonic mind could conceive of a plan which would so completely destroy the peace of America; or could stage such a conspiracy right in the middle of our fair land, doubtless with paid propagandists to spread it all over these free states, even unto the motherland of pie, New England.

Why discuss liberty further? What are the censorship, conspiracy, or a free press, when the existence of our sacred pie is threatened?

Some say suffragists started the movement to abolish pie. The militants reasoned it is better that congress could not be harassed more effectively than by calling the American woman, the world's most famous pie-maker, off the job.

To be sure, man eats too much pie. After one full meal, he insists on eating another in the form of rich crust and sweetened fruit or custard. And perhaps we might avoid a war famine by cutting all desserts from our menus.

But why commit the atrocity of dropping pie out of American history? Better far make pie a substitute for something, say meat or tobacco.

When somebody remonstrated with a noted author for eating pie at breakfast, he mildly inquired, "What is pie for?"

It has been left for the war to disclose the reason for pie—perhaps it is part of the great German preparedness, planned decades ago, to set this republic by the ears, to disrupt the nation, to swamp our food bill in congress by centering the attention of the common people on the perils of the pie situation.

Again we must look to England's experience. She still feeds her Tommies on jam, "plum or apple." War wisdom. We must never deprive our Sammies of pie, at least as long as they are at home where mother can feed them.

And it is safe to say we never will.

Though all Kansan women go to jail for it, Kansas will never be a pieless state. Man likes pie.

EHMKE, BRILLIANT PITCHER FOR SEVEN FRAMES, CAN'T GO THE WHOLE ROUTE

By PAUL PURMAN.

An astute baseball manager once made a pertinent statement.

"Ball games," he declared, "are not played with last year's averages and must be won with what you have on the field the day the game is played."

All of which calls to mind one Howard Ehmke, Detroit pitcher.

Ehmke, in the early days of the spring when prophecy counted more than figures and when last year's figures were all there was to go on, looked like one of the veriest roadblocks of the season, a player who had it in him to win some twenty or twenty-five games and pull the Tigers out of the hole poor pitching had put them in since the palmy days of George Mullin and Wild Bill Donovan.

This Ehmke figured as an iron man, a pitcher with bewildering speed, a wizardly assortment of curves and a change of pace which kept the batters off their balance.

Hughie Jennings counted on him to fill the hole in the Detroit outfit which games were sitting through preventing Hughes from floating a pennant over Navin park.

Let us see how Ehmke panned out. The last records show Ehmke has lost eight and won seven games with an earned run average of three per game. But what the records don't show is that Ehmke has lost the great majority of his games in the last two or three innings, indicating that he is a seven-inning pitcher.

Box scores show that Ehmke has allowed but 1.50 runs in the first seven innings of the games he has pitched and has permitted nine runs per nine inning game on the basis of his last two innings.

Detroit critics are divided on the cause of Ehmke's failure to do better. His friends are inclined to be easy on him and say his failure to produce is due to overconfidence.

Others, not so kindly inclined, say he is lazy.

Perhaps it is a combination of the two.

Ehmke is not the type who should tire at the end of seven innings. He is tall and slender with the muscle tissue which is built for endurance. He was regarded as sort of an iron man and his poor performances probably are due to a mental rather than a physical condition.

The main trouble with Ehmke may be that he is too young to take himself and baseball seriously. That has caused the downfall of many promising stars.

THINGS THAT NEVER HAPPEN

Cruise and Roush are Tied For American Stick Honors

Cobb's Lead Slightly Shortened Still 30 Points to Good.

Chicago, July 21.—Coming from behind, Walter Cruise, of St. Louis, had batted into a tie with Ed Roush, of Cincinnati, for National league honors, unofficial averages released today showing them hitting .331.

Roush playing in 73 games—five less than his rival—has driven out 59 hits for 124 bases, while Cruise has stretched 59 hits for a total of 121 bases. The St. Louis outfielder made twelve doubles, six triples and three home runs as against eight doubles, six three-base hits and one circuit drive for Roush.

The terrific hitting of six Cincinnati players is keeping the club safely reposing in the first division and in possession of team batting honors. Hal Chase, the veteran first base star with Cincinnati, is a point below the 300 class, and Clarke, one of Christy Mathewson's catchers, is hitting .221, but has only played in 26 games.

Hans Wagner, the Pittsburgh veteran, is batting .313 for thirty-five games.

Deal, of Chicago, took the lead in sacrifice hitting with 19, while Burns, of New York, crossed the plate 55 times. Carey, of Pittsburgh, increased his lead in base stealing to 21. Hornsby is in possession of home run honors with eight. The averages include games of Wednesday.

RELIGION, TEMPERANCE AND HEALTH

REPENTANCE AND CONVERSION AS SCRIPTURES COMPILED BY MR. SPANGLE MAKE THEM CLEAR

BY A. SPANGLE.

What is said of the natural heart?
"The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked: who can know it?" Heb. iv:13.

"I the Lord search the heart, I try the reins, even to give every man according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his doings." Jer. xvii:9-10.

Where do the sins that men commit have their origin?
"For out of the heart proceed evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false witness, blasphemies." Matt. xv:19-20.

These are the things which defile a man: but to eat with unwashed hands defile not a man." Matt. xv:19-20.

Is it possible for man in his own strength to cease to commit sin and do that which is right and good?
Can the Ethiopian change his skin, or the leopard his spots? then may ye also do good, that are accustomed to do evil." Jer. xlii:23.

What change does the Savior say must take place in every one's heart before they can enter the kingdom of heaven?
"And Jesus called a little child unto him, and set him in the midst of them." And said, Verily I say unto you, except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven." Matt. xviii:2-3.

What does conversion mean?
The word convert means to turn.—Webster.

"Therefore I will judge you O house of Israel, every one according to his ways, saith the Lord God. Repent, and turn yourselves from all your transgressions; so iniquity shall not be your ruin." Jer. xlii:23.

"For I have no pleasure in the death of him that dieth, saith the Lord God: wherefore turn yourselves, and live ye." Eze. xlii:23-24.

"But shewed first unto them of Damascus, and at Jerusalem, and throughout all the coasts of Judea, and then to the Gentiles, that they should repent and turn to God, and do works meet for repentance." Acts xxi:20.

What does God command all people everywhere to do?
"And the times of this ignorance God winked at; but now commandeth all men everywhere to repent." Acts xvi:30.

What leads to true repentance?
"Now I rejoice not that ye were made sorry, but that ye sorrowed to repentance: for ye were made sorry after a godly manner, that ye might receive damage by us in nothing." "For Godly sorrow worketh repentance to salvation not to be repented of; but the sorrow of the world worketh death." 2 Cor. vii:9-10.

Of what are we to repent?—Sin.

"Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord." Acts iii:19.

What is sin?
"Whoever committeth sin transgresseth also the law: for sin is the transgression of the law." 1 John iii:4.

What law? The fourth commandment. The seventh day Sabbath.

"For whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all." James ii:10-12.

What means does God use to convert, or turn, the soul from sin?
"The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul: the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple." Ps. xlvii:7.

"Nevertheless I tell you the truth: it is expedient for you that I go away: for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you; but if I depart, I will send him unto you." "And when he is come, he will reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment." John xvi:7-8.

Is it not necessary for us to acknowledge our sins but to God only?
"I acknowledge my sin unto thee, and mine iniquity have I not hid. I will confess my transgressions unto the Lord; and thou forgavest the iniquity of my sin. Selah." "For this shall every one that is godly pray unto thee in a time when thou mayest be found: surely in the floods of great waters they shall not come nigh unto him." Ps. xxxiv:5-6.

Does God require sinners to make restoration as far as lies in their power, to those they have wronged?
"If the wicked restore the pledge, give again that he hath robbed, walk in the statutes of life, without committing iniquity; he shall surely live, he shall not die." "None of his sins that he hath committed shall be mentioned unto him: he hath done what is lawful and right; he shall surely live." Eze. xxxiii:15-16.

Is there an example of a conversion of this kind in the time of Christ?
"And Zaccheus stood, and said unto the Lord: Behold Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor; and if I have taken anything from any man by false accusation, I restore him fourfold." Luke xvi:8.

What did Jesus say to Zaccheus when he had decided to take this course?
"And Jesus said unto him, this day is salvation come to this house, for as much as he also is a son of Abraham." "For the son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost." Verses 9-10. Has God promised to forgive us if we confess our sins?
"If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." 1 John i:9.

Can we deceive God in reference to our true condition?
"O Lord, thou hast searched me, and known me." "Thou knowest my downsitting and mine uprising, thou understandest my thought afar off." "Thou compassedst my path and my lying down, and art acquainted with all my ways." "For there is not a word in my tongue, but, lo, O Lord, thou knowest it altogether." Ps. cxxxix:1-4.

"Neither is there any creature that is not manifest in his sight: but all

MY CONSCIENCE

BY JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY.

(Reprinted from the Century Magazine.)

Sometimes my conscience says, says he,
"Don't you know me?"
And I, says I, skinned through and through,
"Of course I do.
You air a nice chap ever' way,
I'm here to say!
You make me cry—you make me pray.
And all them good things that away—
That is at night. Where do you stay Durin' the day?"

And then my conscience says, one's more,
"You know me—shore?"
"Oh yes," says I, a-tremblin' faint,
"You're jes' a saint!
Your ways is all so holy-right,
I love you better ever' night
You come around—tel plum daylight,
When you air out o' sight!"

And then my conscience sort of grits
His teeth, and spits
On his two hands and grabs, of course,
Some old remorse,
And beats me with the big butt-end
O' that thing—tel my closest friend T'd hardly know me. "Now," says he,
"Be keerful as you'd orto be And allus think o' me."

(Youth's Companion.)

Robert came home from church in a thoughtful mood. "As far as I can see," he said to his father, as they walked along, "real success in life depends not upon goodness, but upon cleverness. Everywhere I see bad men enjoying long-continued prosperity and health and happiness, and conscientious, earnest men and women suffering from poverty and ill health and loneliness and despair. If there were One Who controlled the universe, and Who cared, could it be so?"

"I think," said his father, "that you expect the Almighty to reward and punish as human fathers do. When you were a little boy, I used to tell you that if you would keep your shoes shined I would give you a book, or a knife, or a pair of skates, or any other suitable reward. I used to say also that if you were tardy or impertinent, I should whip you, or send you to bed, or keep you from going to the circus, or inflict any other punishment that seemed to me just. The rewards I offered and the punishment I threatened had no inherent relation to the virtue or offense that brought them."

"You mean that they were arbitrary?" asked Robert.

"Exactly," answered his father. "But God's rewards and punishments never are. Divine rewards and punishments are always such as naturally result from the thing done. The richest man in the world may be the wickedest. The amount of his wealth depends not on his goodness or his badness, but on his obedience to the laws of the increase of wealth. If the wickedest man on earth most perfectly obeyed the laws of physical health, he would be the healthiest man on earth."

"Isn't that just what I said?" asked Robert. "If a bad man be clever enough he can reap his reward and go scot-free. Goodness doesn't matter!"

"Nothing in the universe matters so much!" answered his father. "Nothing in the universe is more certain than that evil will be punished. Its punishment is the most awful that the mind of men can conceive. The punishment of evil is the increase of evil in the soul of the offender. The dishonest man, by his dishonesty, becomes capable of greater dishonesty. He becomes dishonestly incarnate. At last he fails to know even the meaning of the words 'honesty' and 'dishonesty.' So it is with impurity. The man who has given himself over to impurity, literally becomes impurity; he can not distinguish between the pure and the impure. He doesn't really know what the words mean! So it is with meanness and with every other evil. It would be infinitely less hideous to be beaten or to be burned than it is to be transformed into the likeness of the evil we have committed!"

"But in what lies the reward for the suffering good man?" Robert asked.

"His reward never can fail," answered his father. "The reward of being honest and generous and clean is no little insignificant thing such as unthinking men would be glad to have it. If, after a man had tried for years to live up to his best the Almighty should give him a roll of $1,000 bills, he would not doubt His care. But how infinitely greater than that is the sure reward God gives him!"

"What is the reward for being honest under great temptation? It isn't a little thing like being made governor of a state; it's an infinitely bigger thing. It is that the man becomes more honest. The reward of controlling your temper isn't something like a house and lot; it's the reward of having a strong character, perfectly controlled."

"If God should say to us that if we trifled with our moral sense, for these coming twelve months, He would cut off our hands or put out our eyes, we'd be pretty careful! But God says more than that. He says, and every one of us knows He says, that if we trifled with our moral sense, we'll degrade ourselves and stifle the divine in our souls, and that we must die!"

"If God should tell us that if we'd be true to our best for a few years, land."

He'd make us enormously rich, we'd try harder, I'm afraid. But God says more than that. He says that if we will be true to our best, we shall grow nobler and stronger and more divine. He will give us not a crown of gold, but a crown of life! Divine rewards and punishments are sure. One is the most awful thing that man can conceive; the other is too wonderful for man adequately to appreciate."

Practical Religion As Great Sculptor Felt It in His Life

(Home and School.)

John Bacon, the noted English sculptor, whose genius was immortalized in prose by Lord Macaulay and in verse by the poet Cowper, was a man of pronounced and practical piety. No matter how much he was occupied with business, how excited by applause, or how tempted by wealth, religion was always his greatest concern.

One day when Bacon was hard at work in his studio a lady visited him, and in the course of the conversation he happened to make a remark about religion. The lady then said: "My religion is to fear God and to keep the commandments." Then she showed plainly that she did not care to discuss religion any further; whereupon Bacon said quietly: "Do you not recollect that it is said 'They that fear the Lord spake often one to another'?"

In other words, he believed that if two people with true religious feeling met they should never be afraid or feel embarrassed to talk about their religion.

On the day of his death, Bacon desired to bear such testimony that it would be lasting and have a good influence upon others, and so he dictated the following and requested that it be placed near his grave:

What I was an Artist
Seemed to me of some importance
While I lived; but
What I really was as a Believer
In Christ Jesus
Is the only thing of importance
To me now.

THE SOURCE OF ITS BEAUTY.

Once there was a brier growing in a ditch, and there came along a gardener with his spade. As he dug around it, and lifted it out, the brier said to itself, "What is he doing that for? Doesn't he know that I am only an old worthless brier?" But the gardener took it into the garden and planted it amid his flowers, while the brier said, "What a mistake he has made, planting an old brier like myself among such rose trees as these!" With the gardener came once more with his keen-edged knife, made a slit in the brier, and "budded" it with a rose, and by and by when summer came, lovely roses were blooming on that old brier. Then the gardener said, "Your beauty is not due to that which came out, but to that which I put into you." This it just what Christ is doing all the time with poor human lives.—Selected.

THE FIRST SUBMARINE.

The first submarine of which we have any record was invented by God, and the first passenger to travel in it was his disobedient prophet, Jonah. This submarine was created and on hand at the moment of Jonah's greatest need. God's providence was over him even in his sin, and God would not let him perish until after he had had time for serious reflection. This submarine, Jonah, was the only human passenger, and he had no perilous journey. He was going on a voyage of discovery to find out what was going on outside and to distract his mind. Those few days of undisturbed communion with God, while it did not broaden Jonah into a prophet with a world vision, did lead him to decide to obey Jehovah, and through his obedience to save his own life for worthy service for God. This decision being made, Jonah was carried, free of charge, in God's submarine, and landed at a point nearest to Nineveh, where he was able to do the greatest work of his life.—Watchman-Examiner.

"The bird that sings in winter is dreaming of the orange grove, and the land of sunshine, and of flowers. We learn to sing in our winter of trial as we dream of Canaan, the Lord's land."

YOUR HEALTH AND HOW YOU CAN KEEP IT

A Medical Test Once a Year Avoids Attack of Disease.

Just what the total death toll taken on the battlefields of Europe is has not been completely and authentically compiled as yet.

But it is known that since the war in Europe began one million citizens of the United States have died from preventable, or at least postposable diseases of the heart, arteries and kidneys, including apoplexy.

The most probable reason for this enormous and increasing loss of adult lives is the rapid and extraordinary change that has been going on in our living conditions during the past two generations.

Before the war there was no marked increase of death rates in Europe, where living conditions had been unchanged for many years and where the high nervous tension so characteristic of America was unknown.

There is also significance in the fact that during the past fifty years the proportion of our population which has changed from a physically active to a physically inactive, from an outdoor to an indoor life, has enormously increased.

This has been caused by the great gain in our wealth, in time saving and labor saving devices and in cheap transportation. With this has also come a change in the nature and richness of our food.

To avoid the degenerative diseases of middle life temperance in all things should be the universal rule. A life well balanced with work, play, exercise and sleep, with moderation practiced in habits of food and drink will fortify a body against attacks of many kinds.

To check up the results of an orderly life there should be periodic medical examination. This is a means of learning what preventive measures should be taken to cure disorders in their very beginning.

Nutrition Is Not Valued by the Expense of It.

The most expensive food is not always the most nutritious. In fact the contrary is more often true.

According to systematic investigation, two-thirds of the families of industrial workers are chronically underfed, due more to ignorance than to poverty.

Many people are governed in their buying solely by the appeal to the eye, which is a temporary appeal or to the appetite which is often abnormal.

A general knowledge of food values may be obtained by a little study. Guided by it any woman may feel she is getting the worth of the money she spends for food.

She will realize that fruits and vegetables out of their natural season add more novelty than nutrition to the meals of the day. She will understand the lure of fancy pastry and richly sweetened varieties of bread displayed in the bakery, because she knows their cost is out of all proportion to their value and they are more apt to disturb digestion than to promote it.

She will not provide two foods from the same class for the same meal, such as macaroni and corn-starch pudding, meat and eggs, lettuce and celery. She will know how to substitute for a food that is scarce and high one that is cheaper but practically the same in fuel-content, such as rice for potatoes, cornmeal for wheat flour and one of the various table oils in place of olive oil.

Danger of Typhoid Lurks in Sparkling Streams.

Favorite camping grounds are usually those along the attractive-looking brooks.

But too often it is these attractive waters, which we find so soothing to the thirst that are deceptive. They are often clear and sparkling, yet loaded with "miserable house drainage, carrying at times the deadly germs of typhoid fever."

This summer the waters may be more dangerous than usual because of the hurried arrangements of military camps, with the want of sanitary planning to protect our springs and streams.

Don't be deceived by the old-fashioned pump, the boiling springs and the clear water rippling over the pebbles in our little mountain streams for frequently they have been poisoned by people who are not yet sufficiently educated to protect the streams thoroughly against pollution.

When camping in strange locations never drink the waters without filtering or boiling. If possible carry pure drinking water with you in bottles or jugs.

Most typhoid fever is contracted from drinking water. It is the great carrier and typhoid enters the system by drinking, by cleansing the teeth, by rinsing the face and mouth, or through raw vegetables that are washed in infected waters.

SHALLOW WATERS AND DEEP.

I remember walking across the intervening mile between Loch Lomond and Loch Long. Loch Lomond is an inland lake, and when I left it its waters were disquieted and boisterous, lashing the shores with angry waves.

Loch Long is an arm of the sea, and its waters were perfectly calm, and I could look through its lucid depths and see the seaweed rooted on the rocks beneath. And the life of the soul, when it is like a small, measurable lake, is easily disquieted, and little disturbances toss it into convulsions. But when the soul knows God, it has the secret of a great calm, and the little things leave it undisturbed. When the soul knows God it can be still.—Rev. J. H. Jowett in The Christian Herald.

BIBLE ONLY BOOK TO BRING CHEER AND INSPIRATION TO SOLDIERS IN THE TRENCHES

BY REV. CHARLES STELLE.

A close-up experience in the trenches and hospitals will convince any man that the Bible is the greatest comforter and inspirer in the world. This is why it is the "best seller" in the world.

The Bible was written thousands of years ago, but nothing that has since appeared in printed form has had anything like the same circulation.

Men may talk as they please about other books being "inspired," but when a soldier is about to go to the front, or when he realizes that he must get ready for "the roll call up yonder," he doesn't ask that the chaplain or nurse read something to him from Shakespeare or Milton—he wants the Bible.

And because this is true, it's a fine thing that the American Bible society has for just 100 years been placing Bibles with soldiers in every notable war on American or foreign soil.

It prints the Bible in 150 languages, and employs over 2,000 correspondents for distributing the Bible, in whole or in parts. Last year about 8,000,000 volumes were distributed, and during the 100 years of its history nearly 118,000,000 volumes.

Hundreds of the society's correspondents are now busy in the trenches and training camps giving copies of Khaki-covered Bibles and testaments to the soldiers.

And it isn't done in a perfunctory fashion, either. For there's always a word of advice as to how to read and what to read, so that the soldier may get the best use of the Bible.

As he reads for inspiration, suddenly the old book of Psalms takes on a new meaning. For many of these old songs were written in times of war or in

The Danger to Girls in Great City Told by Grace Humiston

For many years the complaint has been made of the city of New York that it lacked the element of home life that produced the solid men and women of affairs. The congestion of population, the fact that a family living in a flat might not have any means of knowing the character of the nearest neighbor, and the necessity of permitting children to go to the streets for recreation and air have all contributed to taking from the girlhood of the city the guarding influences that are essential for the proper safeguarding of the young.

Such a condition demands the most careful work on the part of the police to keep the streets free from evil-minded men and women who make a business of ensnaring innocence for personal profit. If there is the slightest laxity on the part of the police a danger spot is at once created. Many such danger spots exist in this city. There are many men and women who are essentially wolves at large in this big town.

One of the most glaring results has been the growing list of missing girls. Many of these girls have gone away from home leaving no trace of their course. Police investigation has failed to find them. In many instances the search has been perfunctory, on the theory that was employed in the case of Ruth Cruger that they have voluntarily gone away and that the element of crime was at best incidental and minor.

I am convinced that any number of girls have been so taken from their homes through influences that the law ought to prevent. To drive out these influences and make less possible the spoliation of the young, while seeking to recover the girls themselves, is a crying need. I wish to see an organization of serious and able men and women take a hand in this work. Such an organization is now well under way. Many men and women who do not wish their names to be connected with this movement are silent partakers in this venture. It is sure to bring astonishing revelations and important results.

Mrs. Humiston is a New York city lawyer who finally solved the mystery of the Ruth Cruger case. She will devote herself to fighting white slave iniquities in the great metropolis.)

Efficiency in What? Can You Answer the Questions He Asked?

(The Presbyterian Advance.)

A young man of twenty-four stepped into a business office in a large city and walked up to the desk where an elderly man sat examining a bundle of papers.

"Look at that, father!" the young man said with a smile of pride. "I've made nearly one hundred on my efficiency chart! What do you think of that?"

The business man looked up at his son with a smile and a feeling of pride at his appearance, and then his eye fell on the list of questions put by the efficiency bureau that had interested the young man to compete with many others for the first place.

1. Are you physically sound and free from all traces of disease?
2. Can you apply yourself to mental labor without great fatigue?
3. Are you an exact mathematician?
4. Do you have any bad habits?
5. Would you be willing to employ yourself in a business that required honesty, quickness of judgment, keen intellect?

6. Are you quick to see and take advantage of a business opportunity?
7. Are you in debt? If so, how did you become so?
8. Do you have extravagant habits of dress, amusements, or social life?
9. Can you secure good letters of recommendation from business men in the city who know you?
10. How much money have you ever earned, and how did you earn it?

The father read the list and then, without a word, reached for a sheet of paper and put down the following:

1. Are you a Christian? Would you follow the teachings of Jesus if it so should result in the loss of money and position?

2. Do you have some great cause of humanity at heart, and are you ready to give your heart's enthusiasm for it?

3. Are you as active and as useful in some church as you are in your business of making money?

4. Do you pray and read the Bible daily?

5. Are you planning to do a man's part by sharing in the burden of good citizenship?

preparation for war. You can almost hear the sounds of martial music and the shouting of fighting men.

And when comfort is needed, the Twenty-third psalm stands out, familiar, and filled with memories of childhood days when mother taught him "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want," and all the rest of it, even down to "the valley of the shadow of death," where he'll "fear no evil."

Other scripture there is, to satisfy every mood and every need.

What the Bible is doing for the men in the army no man can tell, but here are a few snapshots:

A professional man who had been drinking hard and living high was tired out, badly wounded, between the Canadian and German lines. "It was all right, though," he said, "for thanks to the silent influence of this little book (pulling a testament out of his pocket), I was able to make my peace with my Maker."

They found a testament in the hands of a dead soldier on the battlefield, with these words written on the fly-leaf: "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life." Who can deny that this made him a better soldier?

To a correspondent who had given a soldier a new testament came a letter in which the soldier wrote: "I have found the pearl of great price"—referring to what he had discovered in the Bible.

"We are coming face to face with death—we have mighty need of consolation," wrote another.

The Bible keeps men human, and often makes them divine. This is what is needed in the great war we are now fighting.

For Peace Hath Her Heroes Faithful as Those Famed in War

(Literary Digest.)

It's midnight on the Oklahoma prairies. A heavy passenger train, loaded with precious human freight, is rushing through the gloom. The engineer hears a sound behind him, he turns his head, and gazes into the muzzle of a "45." "Hands up!" comes the crisp command, "slow down, quick!"

The driver is an old-timer and obeys. The bandits, fifteen in number, cover the train from end to end. They marshal the train crew, in short order, near the engine.

"Get in line!" is the order. Comes Ed. Oldham, rear brakeman, lantern in hand, a black-visaged robber holding a pistol to his ear. "Line up there, you!" the bandit chief tells him.

"I can't," says Oldham; "freight behind. I've gotta flag it, and he starts back over the hill.

A bullet sings by his ear. "Stop!" echoes the sharp command. Oldham turns his head, but keeps a-going.

"There's a freight just over the hill. I tell you it will be a wreck if I don't get back there," he retorts.

The coals crack again. Close enough this time. The tips of two fingers fly off the brakeman's hand. Not the lantern hand, though, thank God.

"I'll shoot to kill next time," warns the robber, as he follows up the still-retreating trainman. Oldham answers, but plods doggedly on, "Can't help it, I must flag that freight."

The robber lowers his gun, a look of admiration glinting in his eyes.

"One game—fool," quoth he. Then he listens intently. Far away, over the hill, comes a rumble.

"There sure is a train coming, boys," he says to his mates. To the brakeman, "Come along!" They break into a run together, pant up the steep hill, gain the crest, the rumble growing into a roar. Then the red lantern waves warningly, brakes whine, and as the headlights flash over the rim of the hill, the freight stops—just in time. Three Pullmans of sleeping passengers, besides the packed day coaches, are saved from a death-dealing collision.

That brakeman was trained to obey. He knew his duty and did it. Is any soldier upon Europe's firing line, of a run together, pant up the steep hill, gain the crest, the rumble growing into a roar. Then the red lantern waves warningly, brakes whine, and as the headlights flash over the rim of the hill, the freight stops—just in time. Three Pullmans of sleeping passengers, besides the packed day coaches, are saved from a death-dealing collision.

There is no being so poor and contemptible who does not think there is somebody still poorer and still more contemptible.—Dr. Johnson.

RUSS ARMIES LITTLE GOOD

INSUBORDINATION AMONG SOLDIERS

Army Forced to Another Retreat When Men Refuse to Give Battle.

London, July 21.—A dispatch from the correspondent of the Times at the headquarters of the eighth Russian army dated July 16, says that the system of military committees has failed and that the future success of the Russian army depends upon the restoration of a proper spirit of subordination among the soldiers.

FORCED TO RETREAT.

Petrograd, July 21.—A further retreat has been made by the Russians in eastern Galicia, the war office announces, because the troops did not show the necessary stability and at points did not fulfill commands. Dispatches say that a most intense artillery battle is raging on the Smorgenskovo front. Several hundred German heavy guns are said to be engaged. The Germans sought to advance but were driven back by the Russian fire, a crack Siberian corps bearing the brunt of the fighting. It is said the Russian guns are obtaining the mastery. Fighting was begun yesterday on the Rumanian front, Austro-German troops made an attack which was met by a Rumanian counter attack. The Rumanians drove back the enemy and restored the situation.

LOANS TO THE ALLIES.
 Washington, July 21.—Total loans by the United States to Great Britain including the eighty-five million dollars placed to that country's credit yesterday, stand today at $770,000,000 and the grand total of all loans to the allies at $1,388,000,000.

Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Strawbridge, of 1021 East Wayne street, received a telegram notifying them that their son, William H. Strawbridge, was drifted. The young man holds a responsible position in New York.

JERSEY GUARD ARRESTED.
 Newark, N. J., July 21.—Karl Desel, a member of the First regiment of the New Jersey national guard, said to have been formerly a non-commissioned officer in the German army and to have a brother who is now an officer in the German army, was today arrested here and put in jail on orders from the department of justice at Washington.

GOLD AWAITS the MAN WHO CAN HIT a BASEBALL with a BASEBALL BAT

BY J. B. SHERIDAN.

CAN he hit? That is always the first question asked by employers of baseball players when the name of a possible employe is mentioned to them. There is a great demand for labor, especially for intelligent and special labor nowadays. But the greatest demand for unique labor is in baseball.

Any capable boy of from 18 to 20 can get from $200 to $1000 a month, work three hours a day, half his expenses paid, travel all over the United States, have five months of the year at his own disposal, provided he can hit, field a little, throw a baseball fairly well and run reasonably fast.

It is the biggest clinch in the world. The money paid to baseball players and to persons connected with baseball is the marvel of men in other business who come into contact with its lavishness.

It may be said that baseball offers more opportunities to a young man to get ready money quickly than any other possible profession.

Now Gets $5000 a Year.

In the year of grace, 1917, the same Rogers Hornsby will draw $5000 for playing baseball with the St. Louis National League team for six months. He will travel all over the United States and part of Canada, his expenses will be paid, all in first-class style, Pullmans, hotels, valet service, etc.

And all that Rogers Hornsby can do for his $5000 a month is to hit a baseball. Hornsby is no great fielder. Nor is he a fast runner. In all respects he is an average, raw-boned, sun-burnt Texas lad, save that he can hit a baseball hard, far and frequently.

If Hornsby had stuck to the laundry wagon he was driving when the scout of the Denison club of the Western Association found him, he would probably be making $95 a month.

But a baseball scout saw him hit. Then the scout went to the manager of the Denison team and said:

"I saw a kid playing on a lot at Fort Worth that might do you some good."

"Can he hit?" asked the manager.

"He sure can," said the scout.

"Gimme his address," said the manager, quickly.

Next day Hornsby got a telegraphic offer of a position with the Denison club. He quit his laundry wagon and started to play ball.

Robert Connelly, a scout of the St. Louis National League club, saw Hornsby play for Denison.

"That kid looks as if he can hit," said Connelly. So he paid $500 for the transfer of Hornsby's services from Denison to St. Louis.

Looked Like Anything but Athletic.

Hornsby did not look like much when he arrived in St. Louis. He was just a hollow-chested, razor-backed boy, lanky, loose-jointed. He did not look like an athlete or like a baseball player.

He went back to Texas with several hundred dollars in his pocket, went out on a ranch, slept long, drank lots of milk, and appeared in the spring 25 pounds heavier than he had been the preceding fall. He stood up to the bat with more confidence and took a healthy swing at the ball. He began to meet it. He began to hit. In two months' time, or a year after he had left his laundry wagon, Hornsby was famous all over the United States.

It all was because he could hit a baseball with a baseball bat.

Now, this Texas longhorn is drawing $5000 for six months' work. A year ago he was scared when he saw a big city.

Mark you, Hornsby is as yet nothing but a hitter. He is playing shortstop for the St. Louis Nationals. He is far from being a capable shortstop. He has been tried at third and first base, but as yet has to find himself a place in the field. He cannot run bases very well. But he can hit. So they pay him $5000 a year and are glad to get him at the price.

That's what you get for being able to hit a baseball.

Remember, too, that in the fall of 1915, when he came from Texas to St. Louis, Hornsby looked hopeless. He looked like a very poor amateur. But he had it in him to hit. It came out. He gets $333.33 a month.

Tris Speaker's Rise.

Take another Texas longhorn, Tris Speaker. Speaker comes from Temple, which is in the cow country. Speaker was a cowboy himself. He ran about the village and played a little ball. They put him on the team in Temple. He meant to be a bookkeeper, but found he could hit baseballs much better than he could keep books. Also that he could get much more money for hitting baseballs than for keeping books.

Then Roberts offered to sell his contract to St. Louis for $700. The St. Louis people said that they had enough wild Texas steers on their club, that they did not want any more. Roberts sold Speaker to Boston. Boston loaned him to Little Rock for a season, then recalled. Speaker began to hit. The result of it all is that for the last three years this Texas tyke has been drawing $3000 a month, or $18,000 for six months, for hitting baseballs with a baseball bat.

That is $5000 more for six months' work than the chief justice of the Supreme Court of the United States gets for twelve months' service. The chief justice gets about $1100 a month. Speaker gets almost thrice that much.

In many senses, Speaker outshines Hornsby. Speaker is a great fielder and a great thrower. Hornsby is not. Speaker was a star for years before he got over $3500. Hornsby says that he is not yet 22 years old. He is not more than 24. Hornsby's day broke earlier than Speaker's.

But Speaker is taking down more money every month merely for hitting baseballs than great judges get for rendering decisions of mighty moment to the nation, to humanity and to the world.

Income $30,000 a Year.

When Speaker was in Boston and got his share of the world's championship spoils, he made $22,000 a year in salary and bonuses directly from baseball. He owns a ranch in Texas and he deals in cattle. His income is estimated at $30,000 a year. He is only a big, lusty boy. $1 he says; surely not more than $5.

It does not matter if you cannot sign your name to a contract—you can make your mark—if you cannot read, so long as you can hit a baseball with a baseball bat.

Take Joe Jackson, the great left fielder of the Chicago Americans. "Cracker Joe" they call him. Jackson is a Tennessean, born poor. He had scant educational advantages. He lived in the country and grew up like, tall and strong. His eyes are as keen as the eye of an eagle. He comes from the mountain districts where a distant horizon lends power to the vision.

Jackson grew up to manhood in the mountains. Then he went to town and engaged at work in a cotton mill. He played some baseball with the mill team. He found out that he could hit.

In those days Jackson went barefoot. He played ball barefooted. Years later, when he was a star in a small Southern league, he would take off his spiked shoes, because they worried him, and would play in his stocking feet. So they gave him his other nickname, "Shoeless Joe."

Jackson played with the mill team. Later he

Wanted to Stay in South.

The great teams of the North, Philadelphia, Chicago, Cleveland, etc., begged Jackson to join them. They offered him fabulous sums to leave the South. Jackson proved himself a real Tennessee mountaineer. He rejected large sums to stay at home in the Appalachians.

Eventually he was obliged to join Philadelphia. That club had bought the contract on his services from Columbia. Jackson had to play in Philadelphia or not play at all. He got a 200 per cent increase in salary to go. He went.

But he did not like it. He had been getting $175 for four and one-half months' play in the South, and he was getting $400 a month for six months' play in the North. Still his heart yearned for the land of cotton, cinnamon seed, sandy bottom. His heart was not in his playing. He did not appear to advantage.

Connie Mack, the paternal manager of the Athletics undertook to hold council with Jackson one day. He told him that he was not showing proper interest in his work, that he should brace up and do his best, that he was a great player, had fine prospects, etc.

"Ah, Connie," said Cracker Joe, "I don't keer much for the big leagues. I'd rather be at home in Tennessee."

"Well," said Mack, angered for once in his life, "if you have no more ambition than that you never will make a great player. You can go back to Tennessee."

So Mack sent him back to Columbia. Joe was perfectly content. He lost something like $250 a month or $1300 a season, by the change, but his nose longed for the odor of the pine trees.

Next year Cleveland bought the contract of "Shoeless Joe." He came North again. Again he was stricken by nostalgia for the mountains. Getting around the bigger Southern cities weaned him insensibly away from his mountain home.

The following spring found Jackson, pretty well cured of his homesickness, back in Cleveland. He was not lonely. His heart was singing. He felt good. Then he got wading into baseballs and hitting them a mile. His fame was made.

Now this mountaineer, who comes from a country in which 50 cents a day and bacon and corn bread to eat, makes a man's wage, who worked in a cotton mill and who cared nothing for money, is making $6500 a season for hitting baseballs with a baseball bat.

It is a unique talent. It is heaven born. No man can impart it. No man can acquire it. Great hitters of baseballs with baseball bats are, like poets, born, not made.

Nobody ever taught Speaker or Jackson or Hornsby to hit baseballs, although there is an established style of correct hitting, just as there is an established style of correct handwriting.

Nowadays, they say that baseball players come out of colleges. They do. But the colleges do not make baseball players. The baseball players who come out of colleges have previously gone into the same colleges as baseball players. They go in or are coaxed in, because they are good baseball players. They come out, four years later, naturally better baseball players.

Hornsby, Jackson and Speaker never saw the inside of a college. It may be that Speaker did go, for a time, to a business college. Tris said that he meant to learn to keep books. It is doubtful that he ever did go even to business college. Hornsby and Jackson never made a bluff at going to college. Their educations have been of the most elementary character.

Once I spoke to Harry Lord, a famous hitter and third baseman, about the possibility of improving by instruction capable young men in hitting and in playing baseball.

"You can't do it," said Lord. "You can take the best-looking young athlete you know, a chap with good average baseball ability, and instruct and educate him for five years. But you never will put into him what is in Joe Jackson, who would not know his own name if he saw it in letters a foot high on a billboard."

That's the way it is. You can't instruct men to hit baseballs with baseball bats. The talent must be natural to them.

Yet there are well-established formulas which govern the successful hitter. He must not swing back from the plate as he hits. He must swing evenly, horizontally, with the course of the pitched ball. He must "follow through."

Now Jackson, Speaker and Hornsby do all these things without knowing that they do them. No one ever taught them. They just naturally fell into perfect styles of hitting.

Perfect Hitting Position.

Look at Jackson's position at the bat. Regard his right foot and his right shoulder. The left, or front, foot is in advance, closer to the plate than the right, or rear, foot. The right or forward shoulder is nearer to the plate than the rear or left shoulder. It is a perfect hitting position. That, a keen eye and a strong pair of wrists, make Jackson the greatest fair-away or slugging batter in the game.

The man grew wild in the mountains, but he is a picture of ease and grace that no physical instructor could produce. Jackson is built like a deer, slim, strong legs, powerful thighs, slender waist, immense back, chest and shoulders, powerful neck and small head. The man is graceful as a fawn, straight as an arrow. Yet he never took a lesson in physical culture in his life. He knows nothing about systems of physical education, about dieting, internal bathing, etc. All he knows is to hit baseballs with that big bat of his.

Now, Joe has a wife, a fine family and several large motor cars. He is up in his thirties, for he did not come out of the mountains until he was a grown man, but he is made of steel, his eye is clear as the eye of an eagle, his sinews tough as sinews of steel.

Hornsby is a mere kid, though. It is only a year or so ago that he was making $400 a year. Out of 600 balls he struck at he managed to hit some 200 safely. For that he got an increase of $4500 a year in salary. He can't field; at least he has not yet found a position in which he can play. He can't run bases very well. All he can do is to hit. He did this for but one season. So he gets $5000 a season, about $25 for every safe hit he makes.

Speaker and Jackson get more money than Hornsby, but they are players of long-established, all-around merit. They can field and run bases as well as hit. Hence, Hornsby's rapid rise is most extraordinary of all.

This spring will see millions of young men considering choice of careers. Most of them will accept, not what they want, but what they can get. The job that comes first to hand probably will settle their future careers. Others will have sense and sand enough to wait, to fight the best they can and to finally choose for themselves.

I do not recommend baseball as a final profession or ultimate goal for any young man. As a means to ready money, as a means to an education, as a means to a start, no business or profession of the day offers such facilities of getting cash quickly as baseball.

But to get money in baseball, you must be able to hit a baseball.

If you can do that, son, and are poor and ambitious, or want, or need, the money, go to baseball. It is a gold mine for a poor boy.

Roping Matches

DURING a meeting of the stock growers on the reservation opposite Miles City, Mont., there were some roping matches of more than ordinary interest. Of all cowboy sports, roping contests are the most exciting, and call forth more skill and agility than the man who has never visited the Far West can appreciate. never visited the Far West can appreciate, unless he comes to know it through reading Wild West stories.

When a contest of this kind is arranged, a piece of ground is selected, care being taken that it is level and free from any dog holes, rocks or brush that might bring down a horse while running at full speed, and injure both it and its rider.

A bunch of thirty or forty lively young steers, full of grit, are then driven up by three cowboys, two of whom hold the bunch, while the third "cuts out" the animals one by one for the contest. Timekeepers are appointed, and the first competitor comes forward on his pony.

He takes his stand 40 or 50 yards from the bunch, and a fine picture he generally makes, with his big white hat, his spurs and his lasso. Then a steer is cut out from the bunch and started on the run. At a given signal the cutter-out pulls up his broncho in the proverbial 4 feet of space, and the competitor dashes after the steer.

A sharp race follows, and the second cowboy gets near enough he swings the rope above his head, takes careful aim and circles it around the steer's horns. In an instant the broncho stops suddenly, bringing the steer to a halt.

Then the horse runs around the steer, which is promptly thrown. The rider fastens the rope to the horn of the saddle and dismounts, leaving the horse to hold down the steer, which it invariably does by sitting down on its haunches and bracing itself with its forelegs. The cowboy proceeds to tie the steer's hind legs, and the moment he has it done his task is completed and the time is taken.

Each competitor follows in turn, and the one making the quickest time is the winner.

EACH MAN TO BE NOTIFIED

Those Conscripted Will Be Told When to Report for Examination.

Each Person is Subject to Call in the Order Drawn.

Seven hundred and nine young men of Allen county will compose the first honor roll that will have to answer the country's call for soldiers for participation in the world war for democracy. Five hundred and fifty-seven of the 709 will go from Fort Wayne.

Every man who registered is subject to call, but in the order that their names were drawn at Washington, Friday. The fact that any man's conscription number has to report immediately to his district board for examination. There has been some misunderstanding as to the next step to be taken in raising the national army.

Jesse E. Eschbach, state conscription agent, with headquarters at Indianapolis, declares that every man will be notified by the board in his district when to report for examination. There is nothing for any man to do, he said, until he has been so notified, either by letter or in some other way, to be determined later.

There was no limit to the interest taken in the drawing. Thousands upon thousands were affected. In some families three or four boys within the conscription ages were drawn early. It was also noticeable that some streets were hit harder than other streets. Within the next few months it is not at all improbable that the 709 young men that Allen county has been called upon to furnish will be seeing service upon the battlefields of Europe. They are subject to their country's call whenever and wherever their services are needed.

The young men who will make up Uncle Sam's new army will be subject to call, however, in the order that their numbers were drawn. A man way down in the list should not be too certain of not having to respond. There will be a great many rejected because of physical defects and many others will be excused because of valid claims of exemption.

Fort Wayne is divided into three districts. All outside of Fort Wayne in Allen county comprises another district. There are 2,500 in district No. 1; 2,232 in district No. 2; 3,151, the highest number, in district No. 3, and 2,616 in the rural district, making a total of 10,500.

It is stated that the building which the trust company now occupies at Berry and Clinton streets will be sold. It is believed that the company has already a buyer in view. This building is two stories high and is twenty feet wide and eighty feet long.

of the monotonous drag of the drawing and recording of numbers. The participating officials worked in relays, but the strain of the tedious process began to weigh heavily on all of them before the end. General Crowder, the provost marshal, replaced the blindfolded official at the drawing bowl, and himself drew out the last number. Scarcely had the historic event thus reached its close than the news of the last drawing had been flashed over the country. The telegraphic feat of transmitting the 10,500 numbers as rapidly as they were drawn was pronounced by officials today as among the most notable features of the whole process.

Had Right of Way on Wires.

The Associated Press virtually cleared its wires of other matter and gave the right of way to the drawing numbers from the start of the drawing, with the result that newspapers everywhere were able to give to their readers promptly the lists of those chosen in the various local districts.

No small part in the country-wide success of the lottery plan was played by The Associated Press operators who worked for long hours with nothing before them but the eternal groups of figures and with the thought in their minds that a mistake of a single figure would be a matter of utmost concern to thousands of men and tens of thousands of their friends and relatives.

For that reason, no attempt at annual speed could be made, with the result that errors were kept at a minimum. Some mistakes were unavoidable, however, for in some respects the official tellers' reports were at variance and a comparison and rectification was proceeding today. The rule followed was that agreement in records of two of the three tellers in any case should be sufficient to show that the variation was the mistake of the third. All the records of the drawing will be so rectified before the official reports are forwarded to local boards.

Will Provide Cancelled Lists.

In reporting the numbers to the boards, the federal government also will provide special lists with the high numbers which do not apply in the given district and cancelled. The process will not be reduced to the fine point of providing a cancelled sheet that shall exactly fit each district in the country but lists with cancellations made by groups of thousands will be used and one will be supplied each local board with the line drawn at the thousand mark next above the highest number in that district.

With the close of the drawing the great bulk of the business of making the new army ready for service will pass to the state and local authorities. They now must post the numbers of the men to be called for examination and later must take up the subject of exemptions. It will be their duty, in short, to turn over to the federal government when the mobilization call comes in September their given quota of men all ready to be soldiers.

AUTHOR OF LAW PLEASED.

Washington, D. C., July 21.—Senator Chamberlain, chairman of the senate military affairs committee and joint author of the draft law, who drew the second number for the selective draft, today issued the following statement: "Everything went off with absolute precision, testifying to the care with which the admirable plans had been formulated by the president under the skillful management of Provost Marshal General Crowder. It will prove to the country that the selective draft plan for securing an army is the fairest that could have been devised, distributing the burden of the war so far as man power is concerned equitably, evenly and justly among all young men of the country between 21 and 31. Any other system would have taken only the willing."

"It is not a conscript system nor does it provide a conscript army. On the contrary every man drawn ought to feel honored and I believe will feel honored that he has been selected to serve his country."

Medical records thus far make it appear that the appeal had been anticipated by the majority of men for health conditions are excellent. What little sickness prevails is limited almost exclusively to a few cases of measles and mumps contracted before leaving the United States.

Every soldier already had been vaccinated against typhoid, and in addition each troop section is equipped for filtering every drop of water.

Likewise, every man under 45 years of age has been vaccinated against smallpox and will be similarly protected against cholera should it make its appearance.

The American army has just completed taking over the French base hospital near here which will be opened within a few days, with the Johns Hopkins unit comprising thirty persons and surgeons, including a number of noted surgeons, 25 attendants and 125 American nurses. The hospital has a capacity of a thousand beds and will be exclusively for the American forces.

tered upon the battlefields in the east, where the Russians are having to contend with disaffection in their ranks as well as with the Germans and Austrians, there is sufficient action in progress on the western front to command close attention.

The German crown prince received a severe beating in his recent attack along a wide front in the Alsine region, but nevertheless is sacrificing more of his troops in renewed efforts to shake the French lines. There was violent fighting last night south of Cerny, on this front, but although the French positions were twice penetrated the end of the fighting showed them to have remained intact in French hands.

A British attack on the northern end of the Belgian-Franco front, which the intensity of the big gun fire of late had seemed to indicate as impending, has not yet been delivered. Raids on an extensive scale are being continued by General Haig's troops, however,

THE MARKETS

NE WHAY APPEARS ON THE WHOLESALE MART

Five Loads Are Sold at $10.00 to $12.00 on Saturday.

New hay put in an appearance on the local wholesale market Saturday morning, five loads having been sold at $10 to $12. The appearance is somewhat belated this year, due to adverse conditions under which farmers have been working. Six loads of old hay were sold at $17 to $18.50.

Corn was in for another boost, too, only one load appearing and that going at $1.85. In addition to the hay and corn, five loads of oats were weighed at the city scales, these selling at 75 and 77 cents per bushel.

DISCOUNT OF CROP PUTS CORN AHEAD

Reaction Follows Course of Early Gain—Wheat Shows Strength.

Chicago, July 21.—Fresh strength developed in the corn market today owing in the main apparently to the wide discounts of new crop futures as compared with corn ready for immediate use. Opening prices, which ranged from the same as yesterday's finish to 1/4 cent higher, with September at $1.63 to $1.64, and December at $1.16 to $1.17, were followed by material further gains, but then a decided reaction.

The close was heavy, at the same as yesterday's finish to 1/4 cent lower, with September at $1.63 to $1.64 and December at $1.15 to $1.16.

Prospects of quick action in congress in fixing a minimum price was credited with helping to lift wheat prices. After opening unchanged at $2.50 July, and $2.18 September, the market rose to $2.26 for September.

The close was strong, 5/8 to 3/4 cent higher, with July at $2.55 and September at $2.27.

New high price levels were reached in oats.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

High pressure persists off the Atlantic coast and a high area of moderate intensity is moving inland over the north Pacific states. A depression of considerable depth, central over Saskatchewan reaches southward over the Rockies to Arizona. During the last 24 hours showers have occurred in the south Atlantic and gulf states, and locally on the middle eastern slope and in north-central sections. The weather is slightly cooler than the seasonal average in the gulf states but in northern districts from the Rockies eastward to the north Atlantic coast temperatures are generally above the normal. As a rule the temperature changes of the last 24 hours have been unimportant.
